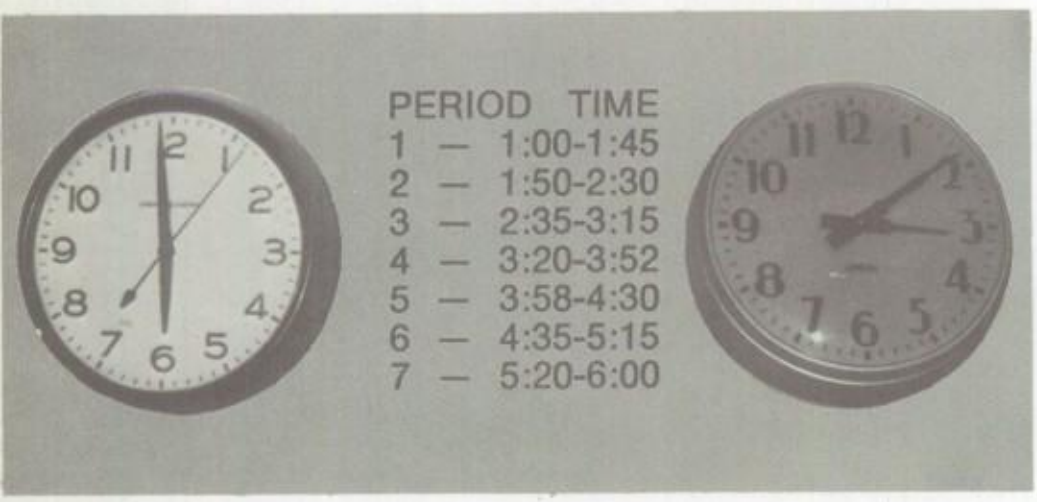
The Pirates And Cardinals Shared PHS

Sharing our campus with San Bernardino High School during the first four weeks of the school year caused the faculty and students of both schools many inconveniences. This situation was a direct result of the demolition of the San Bernardino campus and the delay in completion of Cajon's facilities. Construction had been scheduled to be finished in time for fall classes; however, union strikes halted all progress. The students of both schools were cooperative with the double session. The school day started early for San Bernardino High and ended late for Pacific.

Relocation in Pacific's cafeteria caused many problems for the San Bernardino High School administration. Space was of a premium and privacy was nearly nonexistent. The usual extra activity and confusion at the beginning of the school year was made more unbearable because of these conditions. Double sessions also took its toll on the Pacific administration. Because the school was allowed only a certain number of telephones and many of these had to be used in Berdoo's offices, some of Pacific's offices did not have phones during the four weeks of double sessions.



DOUBLE SESSIONS

Temporary Arrangements Were Set Up For Both Schools

Above: San Bernardino High's counselors had to use offices made from temporary partitions since our cafeteria had no rooms small enough for their offices. These were very inconvenient.

Right: Mr. Fitzgerald, our Vice Principal, counseled a Pacific High School student just before time to go home. Pacific's administration did not particularly enjoy working in the evening.

Below far left: One of Berdoo's attendance secretaries worked busily in her cramped quarters. Keeping accurate attendance records was very difficult during double sessions for Cardinals.

OFFICE ACCOMODATIONS

Homeless Little Red Birdies

Below left: The line of buses in front of the school snarled up traffic and resulted in mad chaos. This situation was quite upsetting to many students and parents, both coming and going.

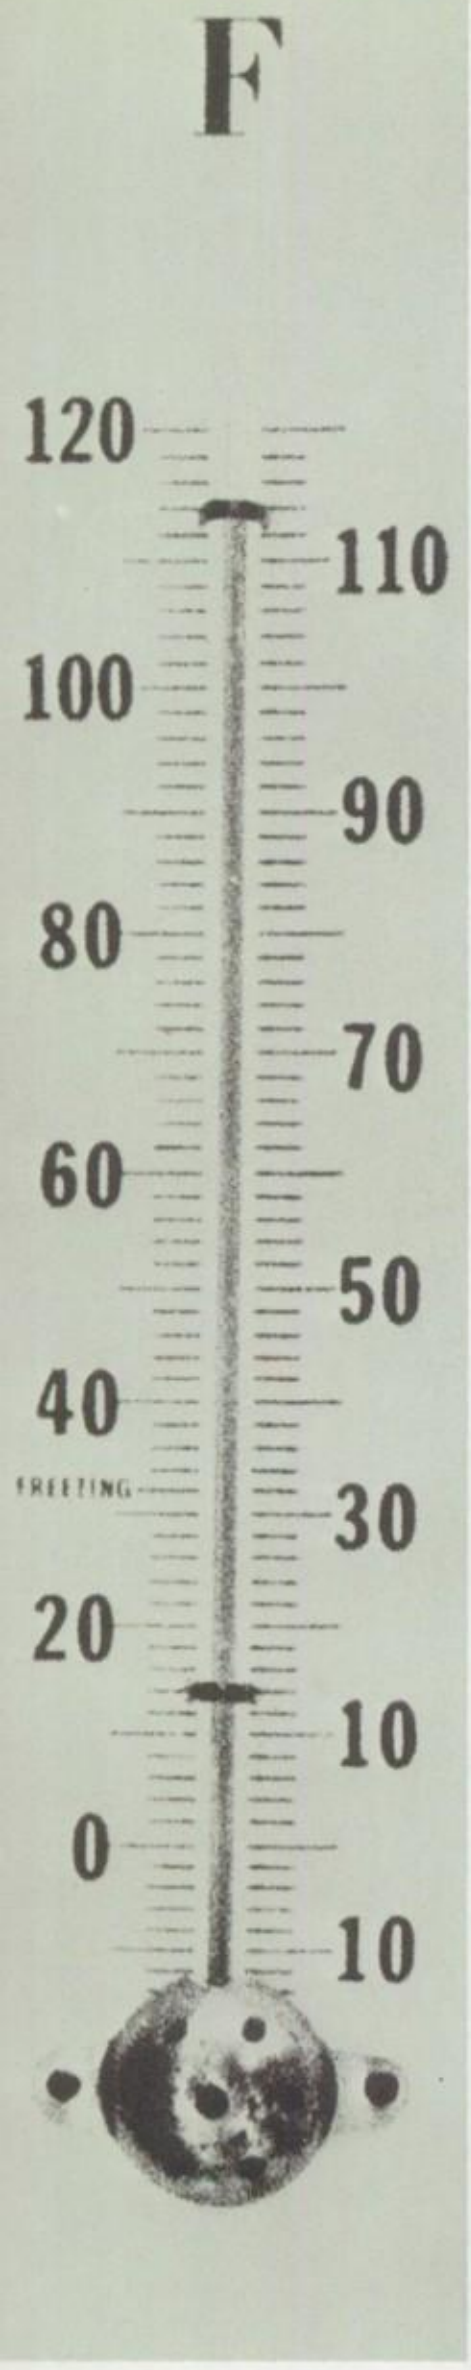
Becoming accustomed to a strange campus was not too difficult for San Bernardino High School students. They made themselves at home and soon such well-known spots as the anchor, the hill, and the Boulder of Champions were familiar places to them. The Cardinals used the Pacific High School campus from seven a.m. to twelve noon each day and had to completely vacate the grounds by twelve-thirty. Their early hours made it possible for many San Bernardino High School students to get afternoon jobs. Others used free afternoons for homework or recreation.

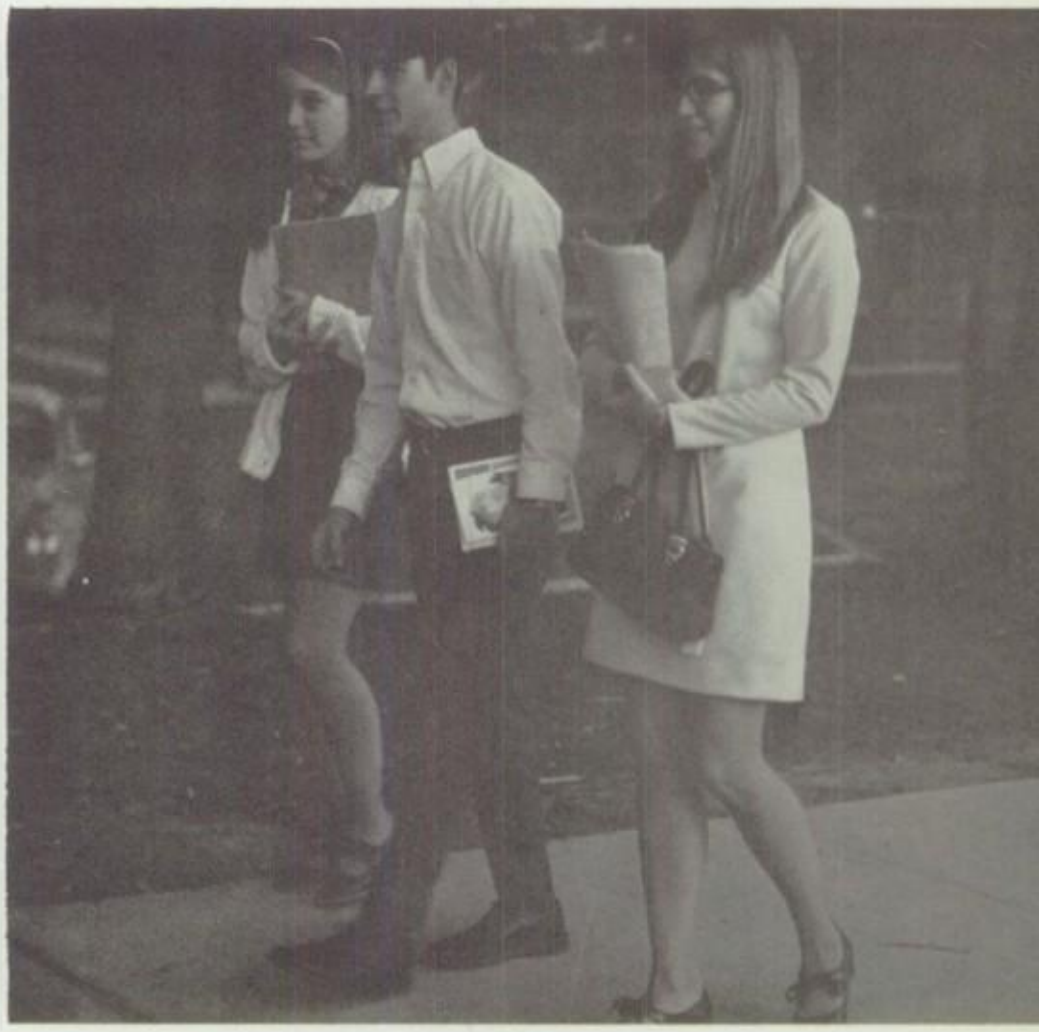
SAN BERNARDINO ON OUR CAMPUS



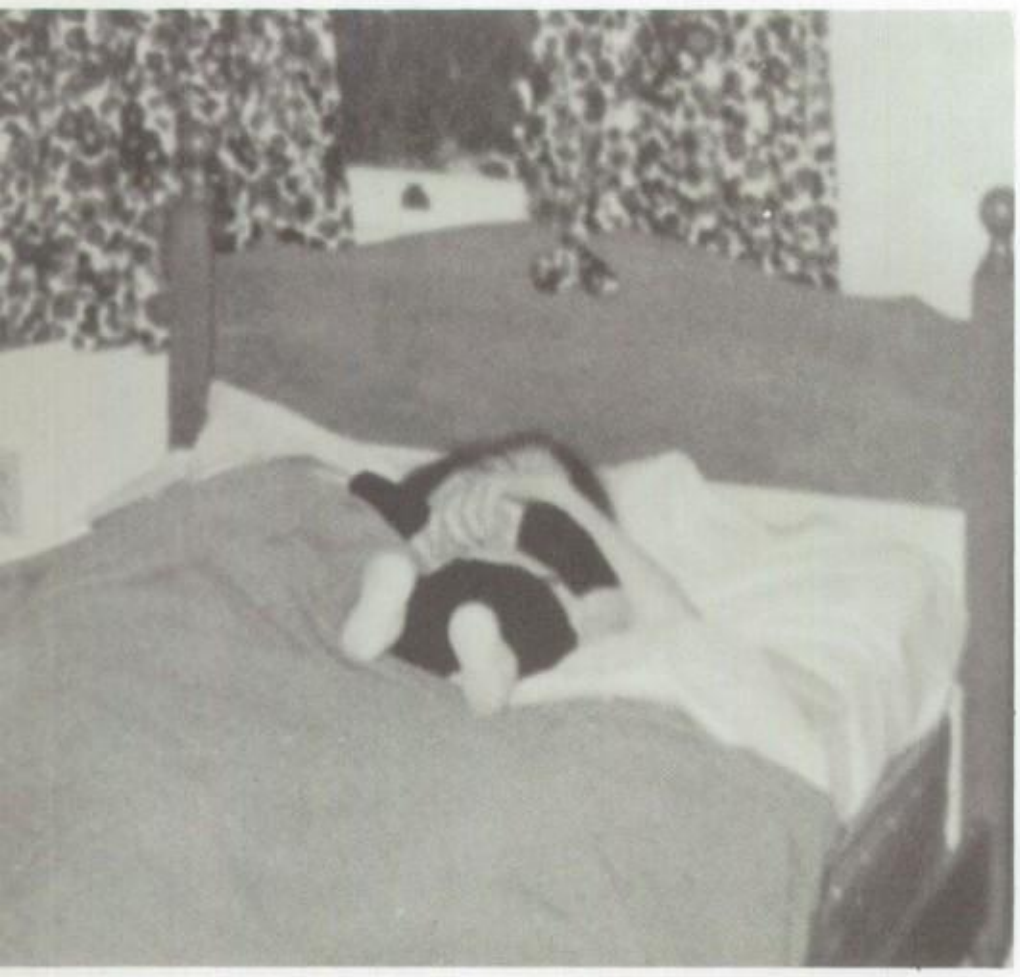
Left: A sign of the times, the thermometer, showed one of the worst problems caused by double sessions. Pacific held classes during the hottest time of the day, causing discomfort for both the students and the faculty as the rooms were often warmer than the outside temperature. Below: Entering and leaving the student parking lot posed numerous problems such as watching for police and other obstacles. Below right: Kristi Jones, Ken Bruning and Pam Knea walk home after school as it is getting dark. This situation got worse and worse as it got later and later in the fall of the year. Above right: Football practice for the Pirates was in the morning from 9:00 to 11:00 to escape the terrific heat of the afternoon.

"110 In The Shade"

Sizzling temperatures, traffic jams, and late dinners were the main problems that faced Pacific High School students during double sessions. The students and faculty arrived on campus at the time of day when the temperature was highest and things got worse instead of better as the afternoon progressed. Because many of San Bernardino High School's students and faculty were just leaving as we were arriving there was often quite a traffic jam on all the streets surrounding the campus. Another inconvenience was the fact that some students had to walk home in the dark.



PACIFIC SUFFERED SILENTLY



the BROADWAY

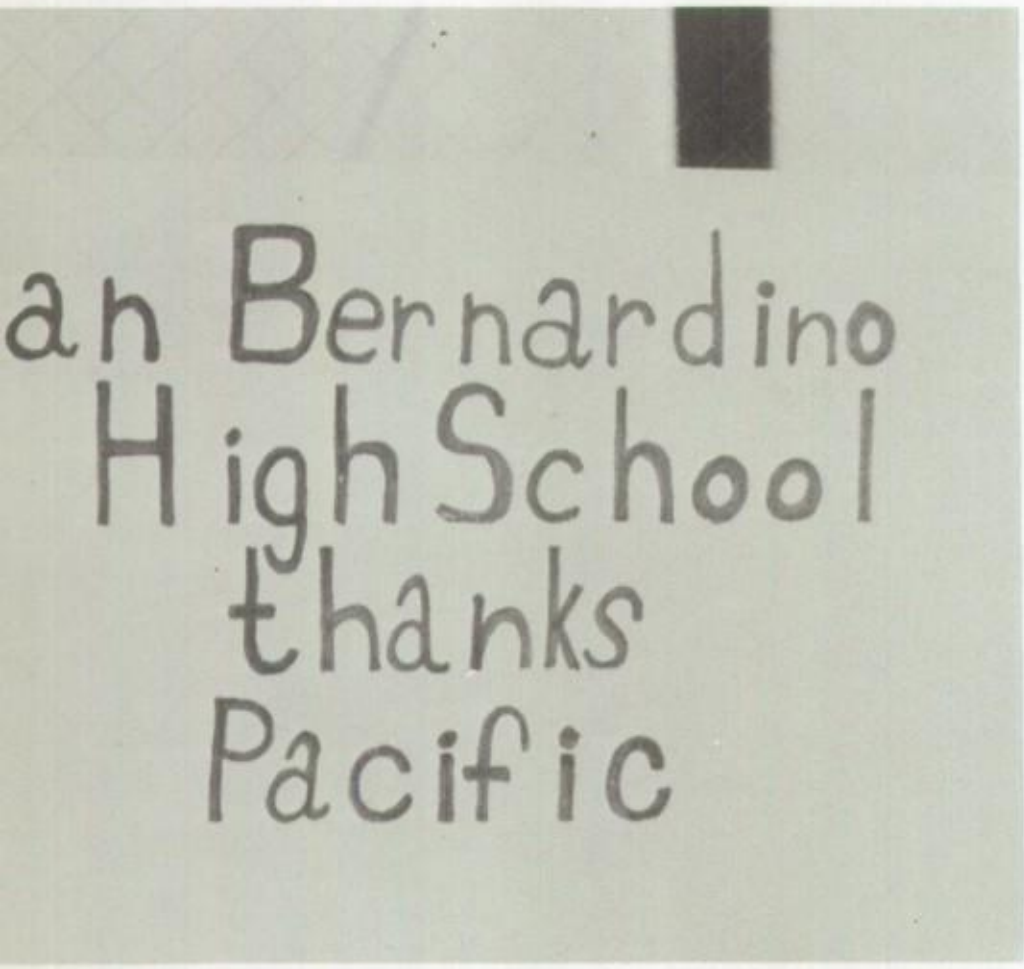
The Pirates' Mornings Included Various Activities

Having their morning hours free, Pacific High School students used the time in many various ways. Some Pirates, such as the football team and the members of leadership, had practice sessions in the a.m. that they would usually have held after school. Many students simply "messed around" with their friends, however some used the time constructively, doing such things as their homework or holding down a job. Although everyone did adjust to the unusual schedule, all were happy to return to 8:30 to 3:10.

Far left, above: Since she was able to sleep in during her free mornings Mary MacGregor could stay up late at night and enjoy herself. Left, above: Because it was so late in the evening when school let out some students didn't do their homework until the next morning. Below, left: Candy Bumgardner and Greg Moloney used one of their mornings to shop at the Inland Center. Since most other people were either at work or in school, shopping areas weren't crowded.

Directly below: The warm September weather was conducive to such recreation as swimming, even during the morning hours. Above right: Many clubs had morning breakfast meetings as it was too late to hold meetings after school. Richies was a popular place for these meetings because of its proximity to our campus. Below, right: Many Pirates had jobs during their free morning hours like Melodee John who was a lab assistant at the Root-Scott Medical Laboratory.

PHS IN THE A. M.



Sharing campuses for four weeks (exactly nineteen school days) caused many inconveniences for both Pacific and San Bernardino High Schools, nevertheless the two traditional cross-town rivals lived in peaceful coexistence for the entire time. There was a bit of apprehension on the final day of double sessions, however Bye-Bye Birdie Day proved to be a joyous occasion for the Pirates and Cardinals. Berdoo's move was from one temporary home to another. They moved to the new Cajon High School facilities until their campus on "E" Street has been rejuvenated.

Opposite page, top left: San Bernardino High School decorated our campus with these signs on their last day here. Opposite page, lower left: These boxes, stacked in the cafeteria, were full of supplies to be moved to the new Cajon facilities. Opposite page, right, San Bernardino High School North, temporary home for the Cardinals. Above left: Many students and teachers from both schools expressed their gratitude for the peacefulness during double sessions. Top right: The faculty and teachers of Pacific High School had a Bye-Bye Birdie Pool. The winners were: Mr. Kalnin ($30), Mr. Smilac ($15), and Mr. Farr ($15). Right: This message, found in one of the classrooms, expressed the feelings of all those who were affected.

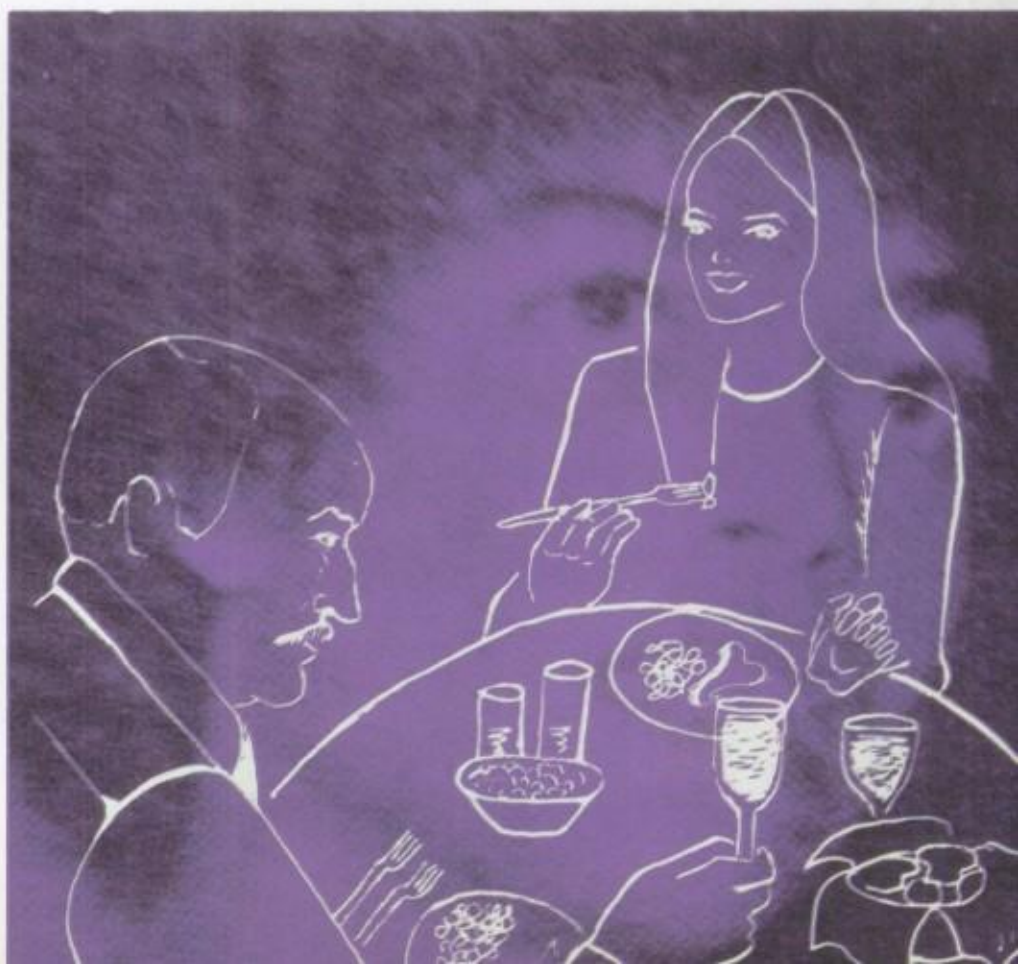
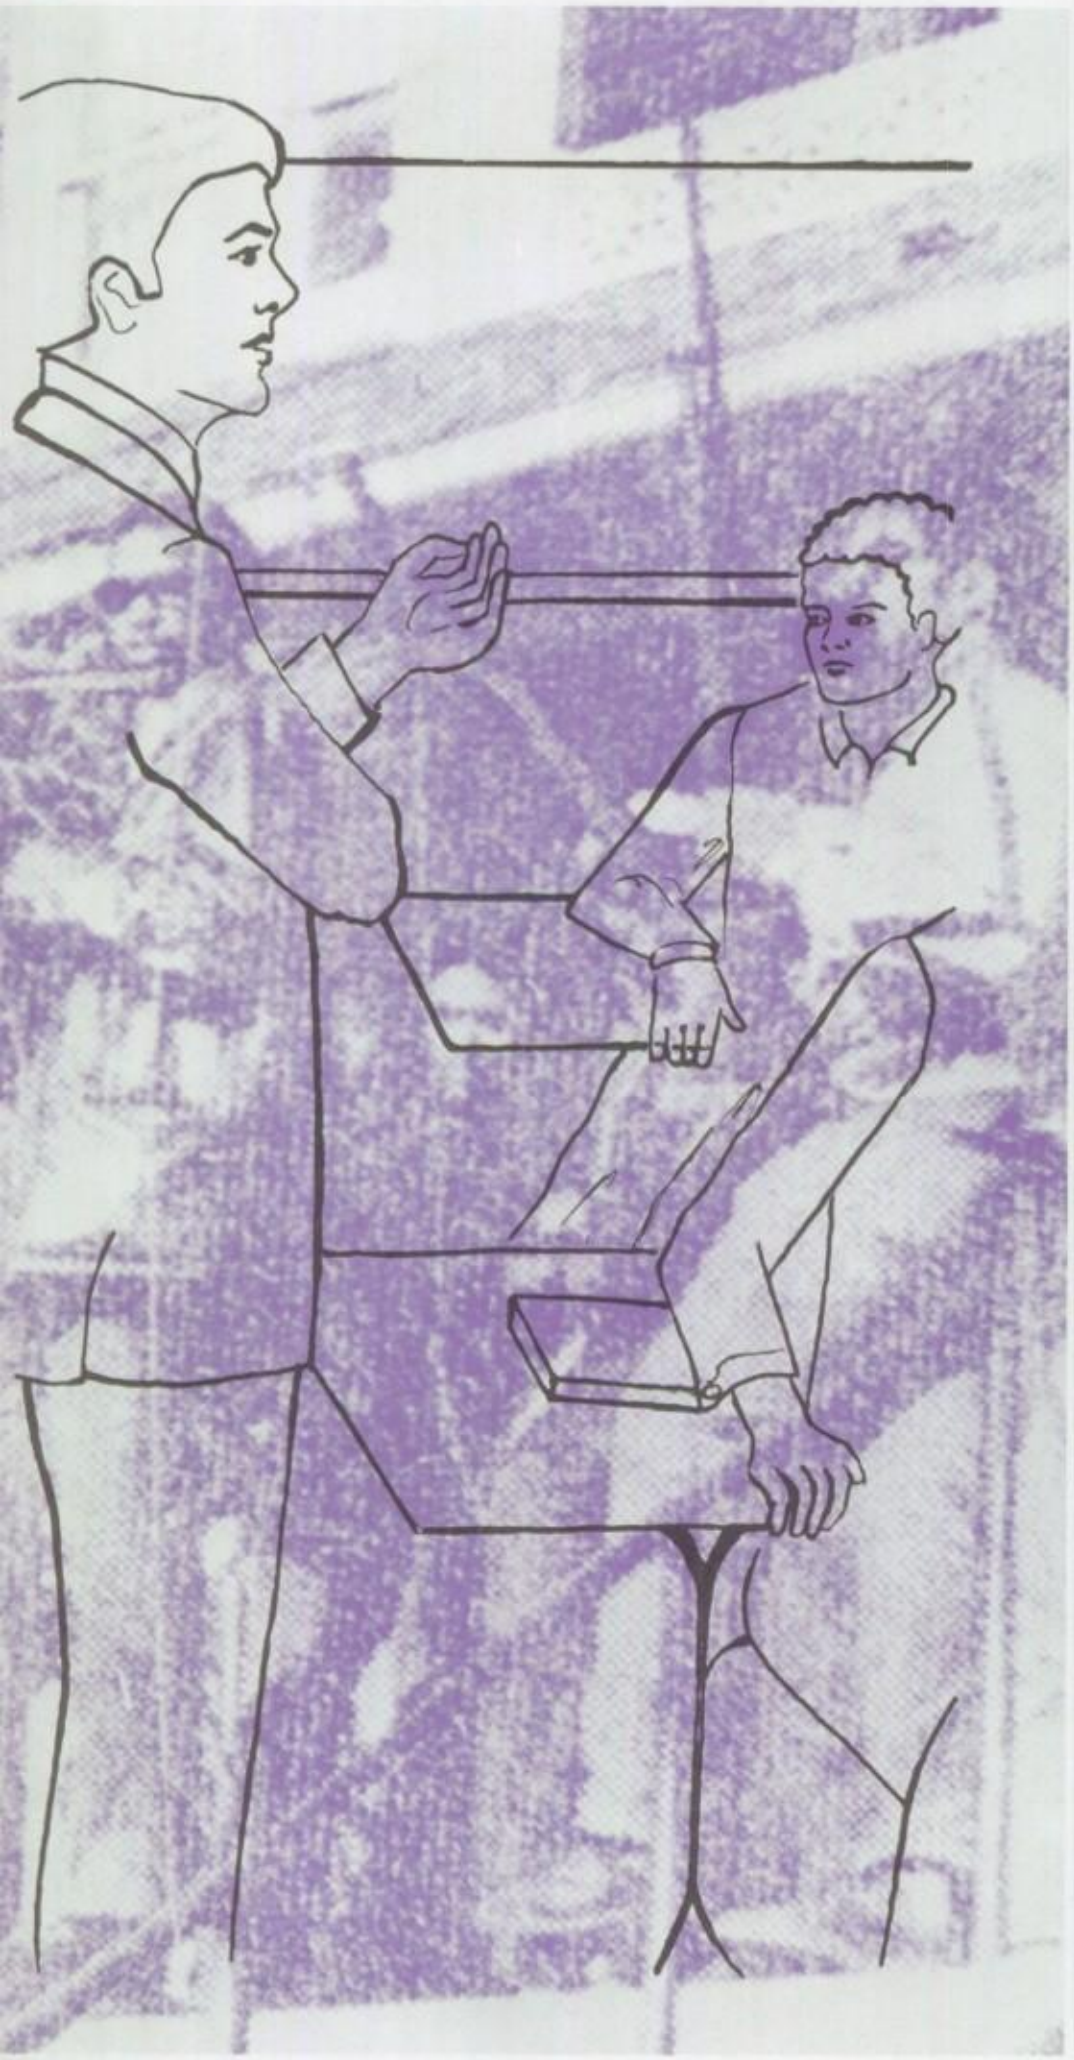
FACULTY

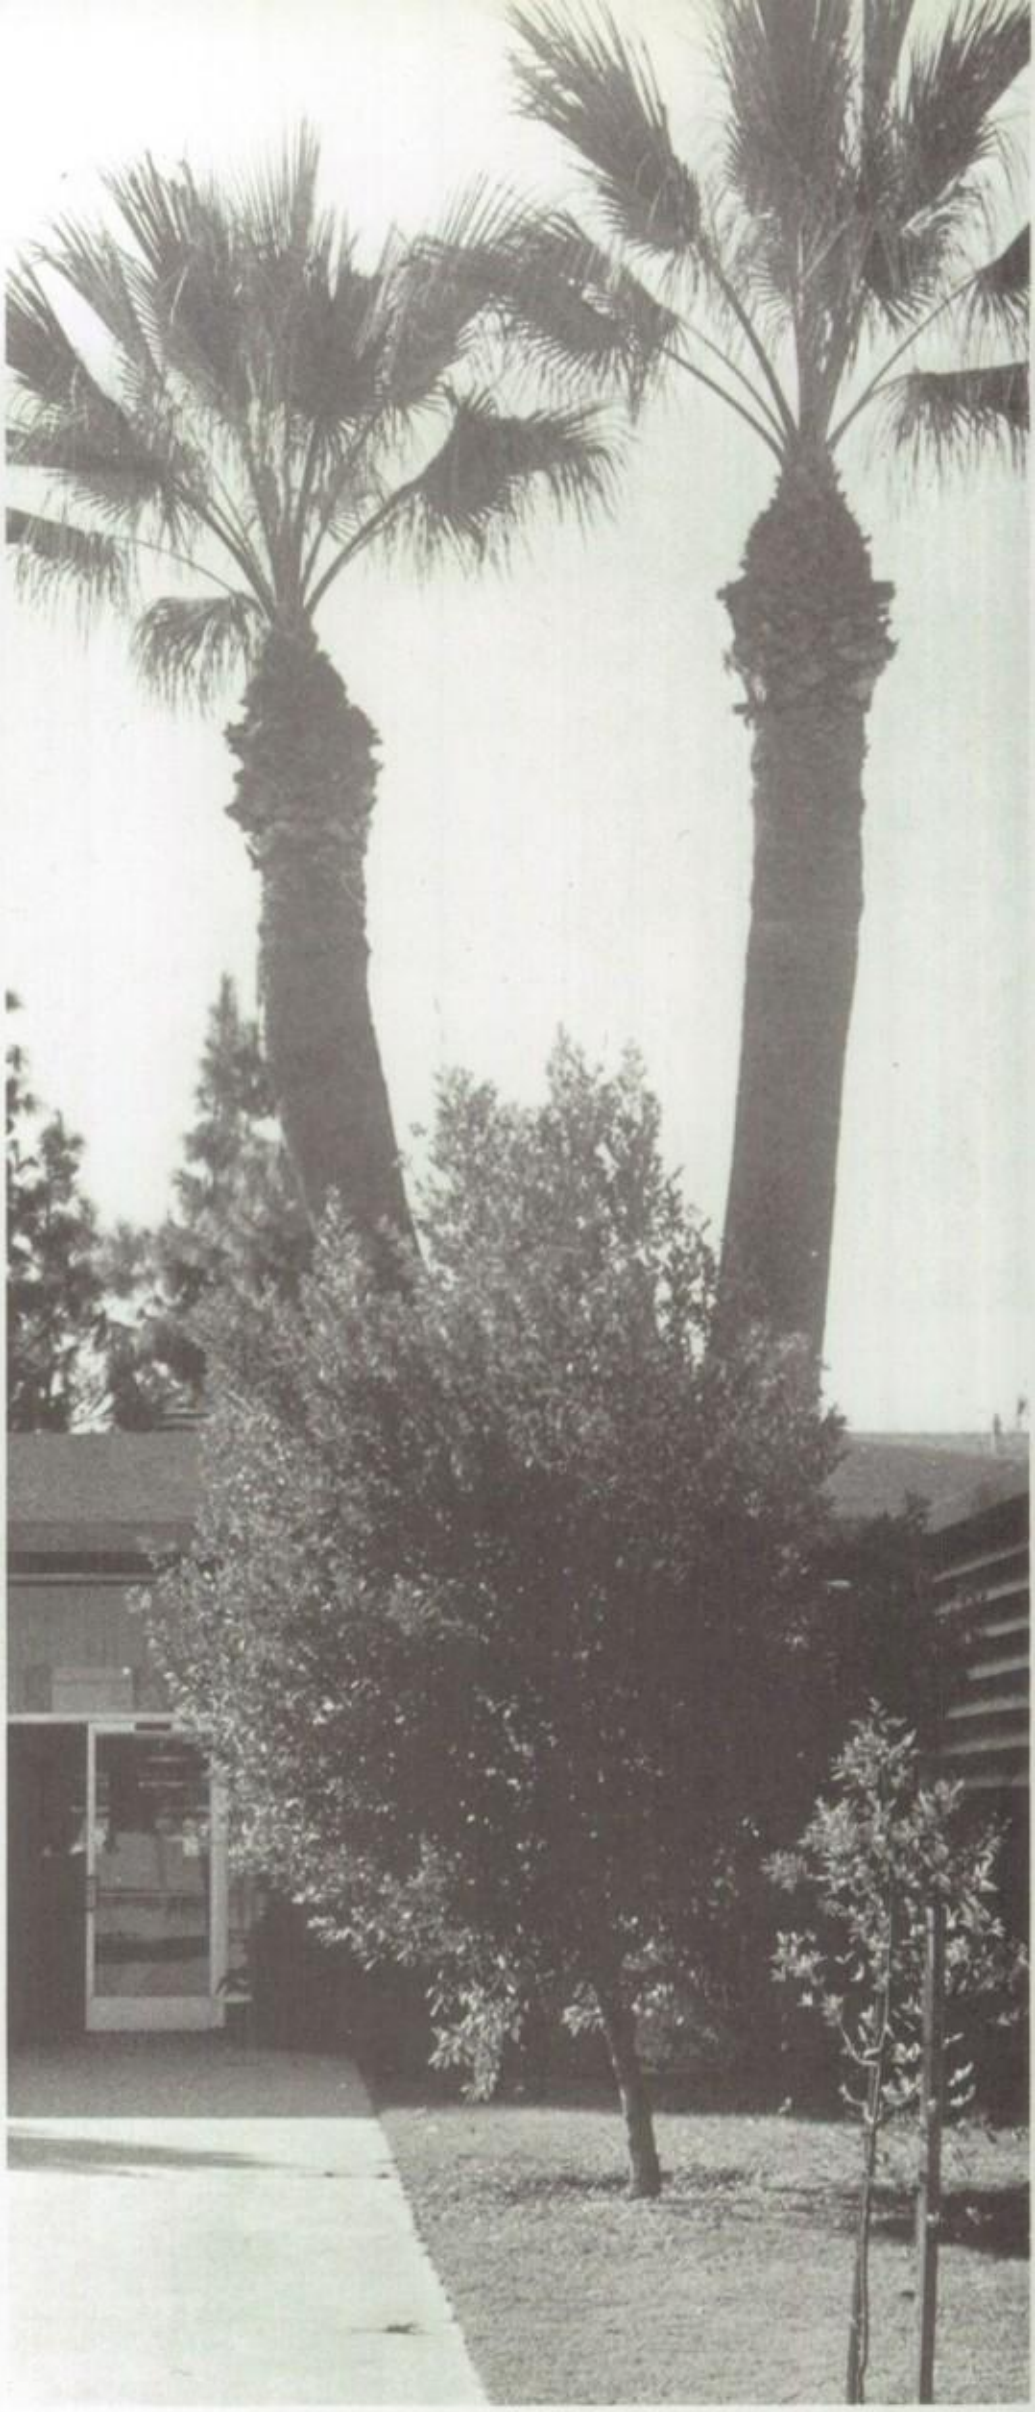
An important part of academic environment was the guid-ing faculty who encouraged students to become involved in community and extra-curricular school activities. Dedi-cation was apparent as the faculty helped students in their classes, with lifelong learning. Cooperating and partici-pating in activities brought students and faculty together.





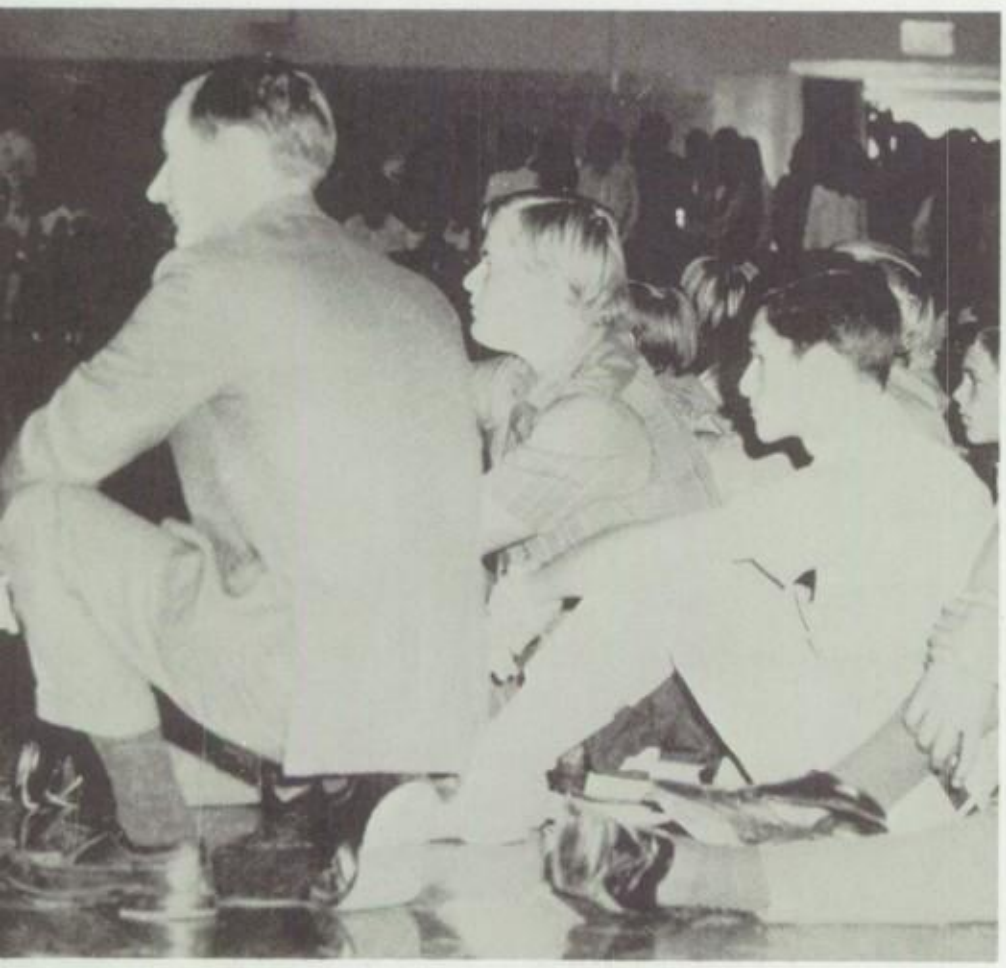
Principal James L. Brickley

"Pacific High School started the 1969-1970 school year more or less on the six yard line. With 2400 S.B.H.S. students and a staff of 90 teachers occupying our facilities in the morning, the Pirates were forced to spend the first four weeks of school on a shortened afternoon session. It could have been a disastrous and tragic situation, but as it actually turned out, it was a great experience. The student body must be commended for the heavy part they played in making that type of program work. It was that spirit of cooperation and going the extra mile that set the tone for the entire school year. This graduating class has risen to meet the challenge of adversity and at the same time maintained its quality. These are the ingredients of a successful life. I say thanks to the graduating class for being with us and for making Pacific a better school."

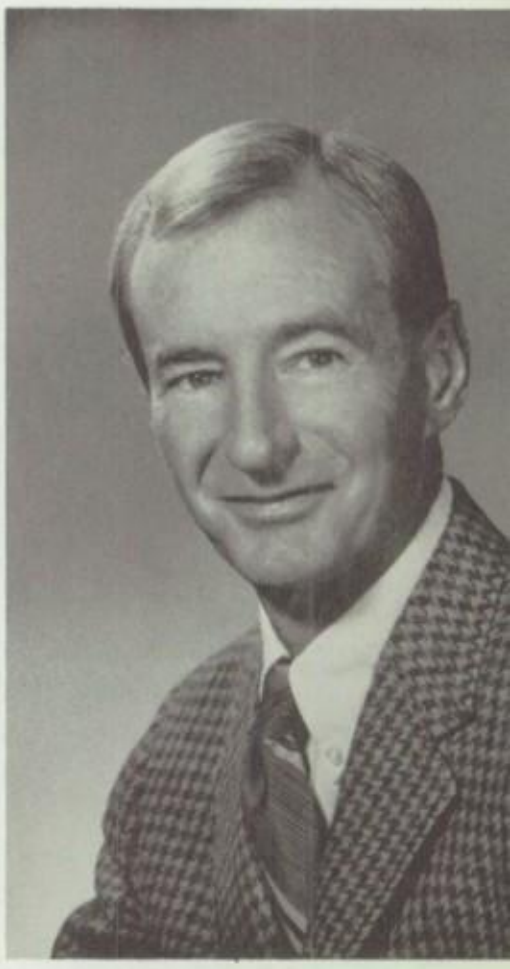


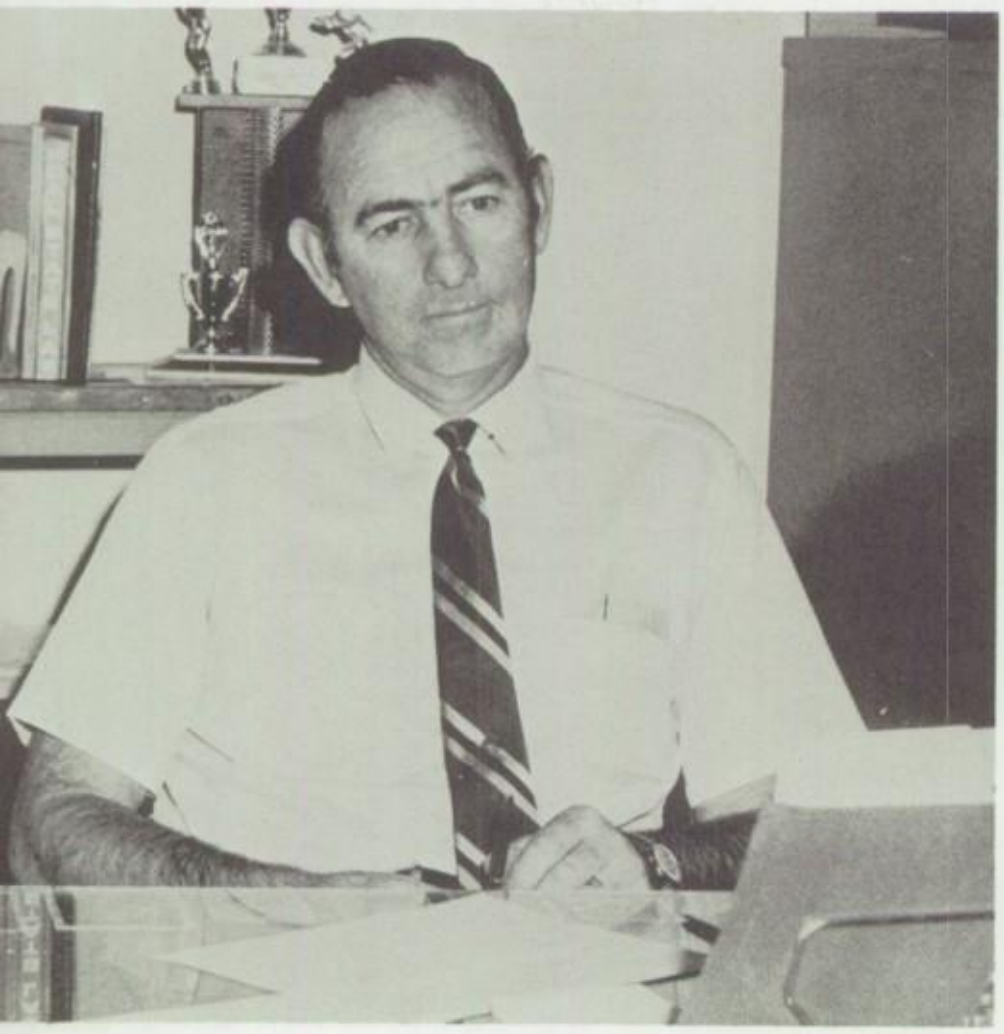
ADMINISTRATION

Vice-Principal Jack Fitzgerald



Realizing that Pacific High was the best school in the area, Mr. Jack Fitzgerald returned from San Bernardino High School after a year and a half as Vice-Principal, to be Pacific's Administrative Vice-Principal. He was a Special Education teacher at Pacific from 1963 to 1967. As Director of Student Activities during the year, he was in charge of promotional activities, assemblies, rallies, and Student Council. Some of his main duties were supervising the teachers, managing the special education affairs, and handling the financial aspects of all student activities. Mr. Fitzgerald obtained his Bachelor of Arts degree at Drake University and his Master of Arts degree at the University of Redlands. He has a major in History and a minor in communications. Some of his outside interests include gardening and traveling. He has shown a very deep interest in the youth of today, and his interest was proven by his performance and devotion to the students of Pacific High.





Transferring from San Gorgonio High School, where he was Athletic director and coach, Mr. Richard Marsh became one of Pacific's two Vice-Principals. Some of his concerns included campus security, clubs on campus, instructional material and bus transportation. Student parking, the admission and expulsion of students and identification cards were also his duties. During double and regular sessions, Mr. Marsh, along with Mr. Fitzgerald, kept the campus running smoothly. He was born and raised in Madison, Wis. Mr. Marsh received his Bachelor and Master of Arts degrees from the University of Wisconsin. He has a major in Physical Education and a minor in Social Studies. He has been teaching at various senior high schools since his arrival in Southern California in 1953. During the winter seasons, working with the National Ski Patrol took up many of his out-of-school hours. His other great interest is in sports. When asked how he felt about working at Pacific, Mr. Marsh replied, "I am happy to be at a school that is First Class."

FACULTY

Faculty Advisory Committee

Congregating with other committee members, chairman Mr. Narramore led the Faculty Advisory Committee in the group's second year of existence. As stated in their constitution, the purpose of the advisory committee is to improve the climate of education at Pacific High School by acting as liason between the faculty and the administration. They also suggested policies on procedures which would improve conditions and morale for faculty, students, and administration. The committee as a whole has been invested with the authority to speak for the Pacific High School Faculty. The members of this group were elected by departments for one year terms. Each of the following departments have one representative: Agriculture, Vocational and Industrial Arts, Business Education, English, Foreign Language, Math-Science, Physical Education, Social Studies, Special Services (inclusive), and Counselors. Many relevant issues to teaching profession were passed by the group.

Working cooperatively on "Project Togetherness", twenty to twenty-five students donated time, energy, paint, books, small furnishings, and an abundance of pride to create Mr. Foster's new office. This room was originally the student store, but due to the lack of profit, the store was closed down and was vacant for quite a while. A place for many students to gather in a relaxing atmosphere to discuss their ideas, grades, and problems was greatly needed. In these surroundings, Mr. Foster did his best to produce a clear and sensible solution. He found the former student store to be an excellent place to meet effectively with students. If desired, students could just come in to sit around and glance at some of the many donated books in the growing library. The important feature of the room was that here, students could walk in the door, leaving his prejudices outside. Although the office was complete, additions and suggestions were welcomed by all throughout the year. Hopefully, in the future there will be the addition of carpets and drapes.

FACULTY DIRECTORY

American Federation of Teachers is a national union of college, secondary, and elementary classroom teachers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Several teachers at Pacific were active members of the A.F.T.'s Local 832. One of the main purposes of this organization was to maintain the present system of public schools. The A.F.T.'s governing body is its annual convention. Delegates to this assembly were elected by local union members. Most of the teachers shown have been past presidents of the local chapter. The motto of American Federation of Teachers was "Democracy in Education . . . Education for Democracy." It tries to raise the standard of the teaching profession by securing best conditions essential to fine service.

Advancing the interest of the teaching profession and promoting city, state, and national improvements for public education was one of the duties of the San Bernardino Teachers Association. The California Teachers Association and the National Education Association sponsors the local branch—S.B.T.A. Both the AFT and the S.B.T.A. have lobbysts in Sacramento to pass special bills. Recommending methods by which teachers may improve international and interracial understanding in their classes, and making studies and promoting policies for Association sponsorship to increase intergroup understanding and within our society, particularly as they were fostered through public education, occupied much of San Bernardino Teachers Association Representatives time.

Circulating C.T.A. literature was the main duty of the S.B.T.A. representative. This year's liaisons were Mr. Bone, Mrs. Frank, and Mr. Nedved. Mrs. De Leva and Mr. Ketcham not shown.

Upper right: Pontificating at the punch bowl, impending president of Pedagogues of Pacific, Miss McCoy did the honors at the Christmas Tea, held in a festive and brightly decorated library.

Left: Filled with the spirit of the season, teachers gathered in the library for the Christmas Tea — compliments of Mr. Jones. Some of Pacific's past acquaintances returned for a short visit.

Left: After school was out on the Friday before the winter vacation, the faculty moved into the Banquet Room of the Mediterranean Restaurant for their traditional Christmas celebration.

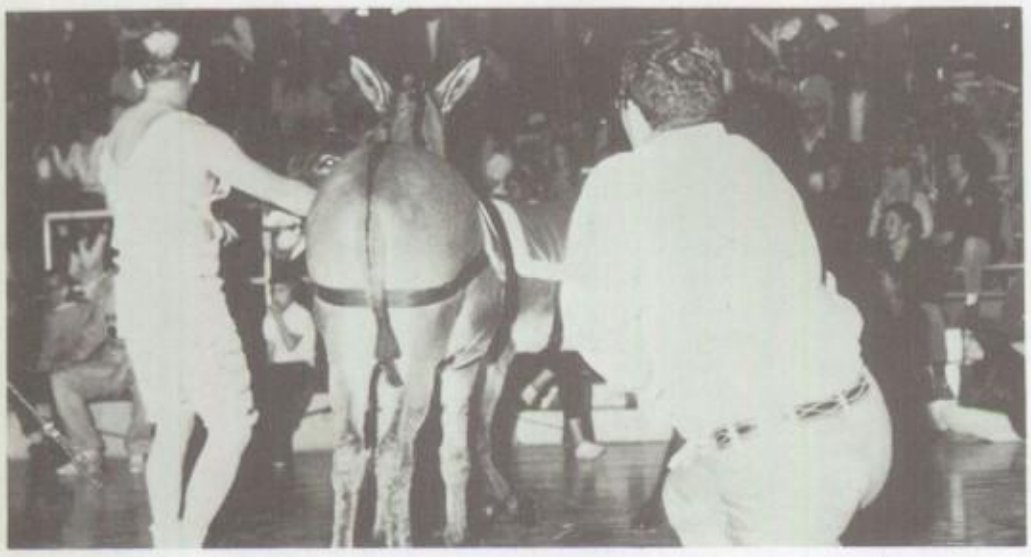
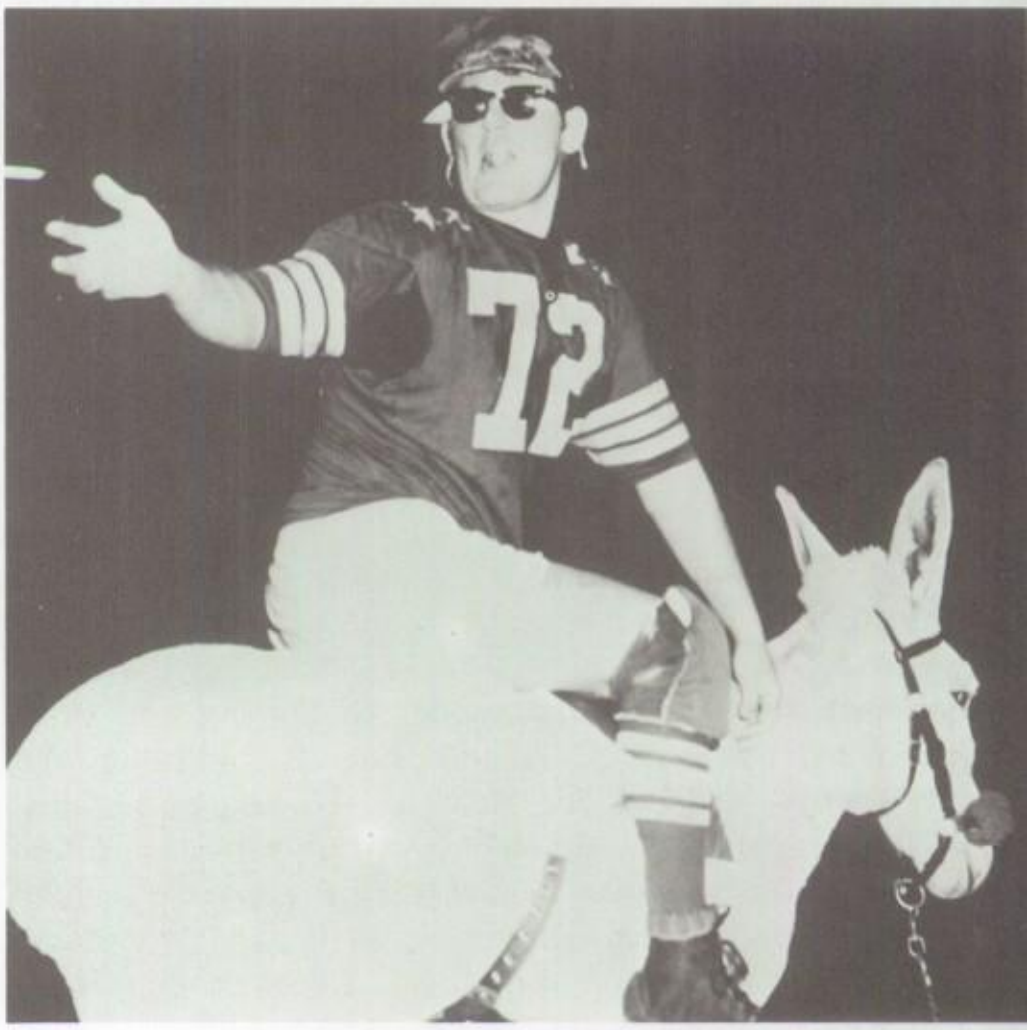
Fighting Faculty Fails Again

Top: Screening the opposition, Hotter'n Hale assisted for Pitty Pat Petterson's Basket. Upper Right: King Kong muscled in a lay-up. Right: Tiny Tony Finazzo lended a helping hand to teammates: Below: Leaping Leo leapt to aid of Bonny Ronny.

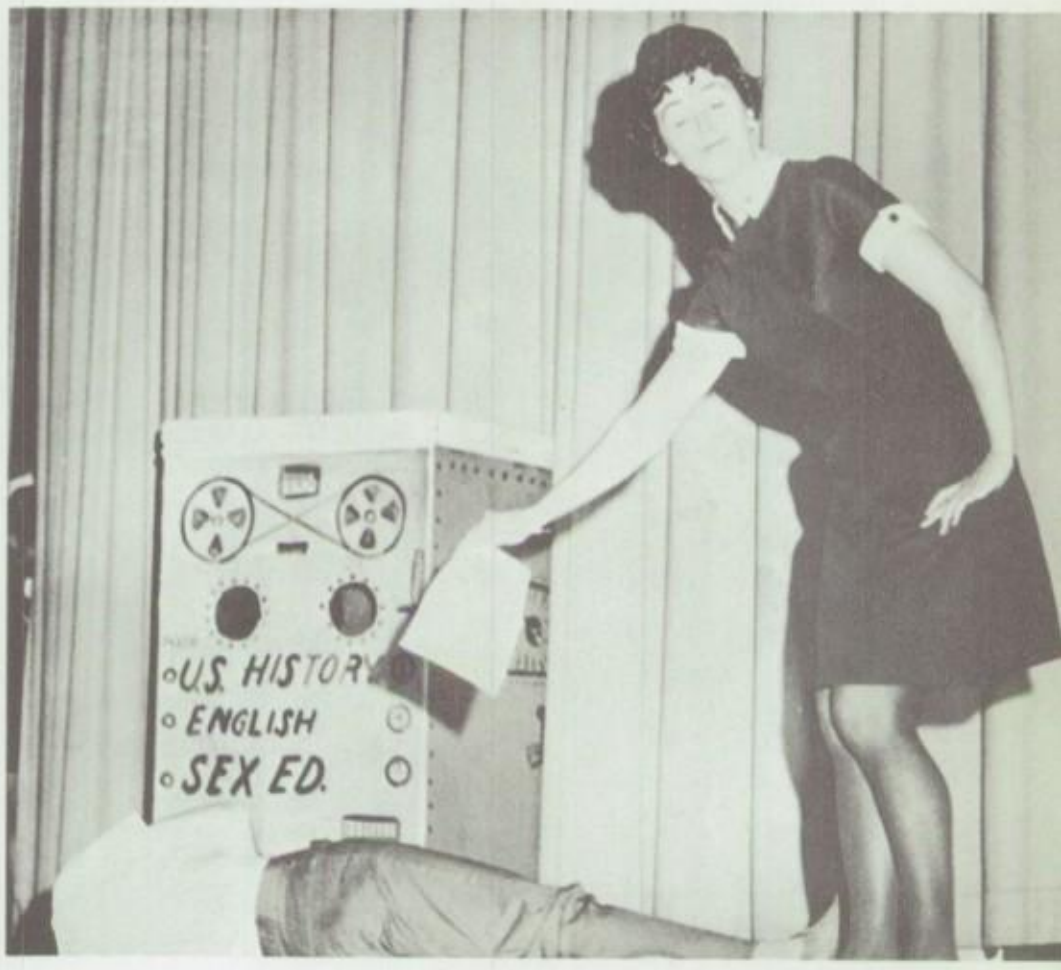
Displaying fantastic agility, the teachers put up a great struggle against the students. Despite their zealous effort, the faculty lost by four points — the final score was 22-26. Next year teachers will try a little harder.





DONKEY BASKETBALL

"My Neighbor Is Strange . . .?"



Gurgling in pleasure and frothing in joy, Pacific's faculty fearlessly forgot all vestige of vain dignity and, releasing inner anxieties and tensions, "hung loose" (to use the vernacular). Frolicking foolishness for the fun and edification of the P.T.A. and student body—the antics of the faculty proved that you can teach an old dog new tricks. What possesses such solemn, upstanding and dignified members of the teaching community and prompts them to participation in a preposterous pastime? Of course, it's that eternal and most endearing human quality: Ham!

FACULTY POTPOURRI

"The Yellow Rose Of Texas"

Any club that would improve its relations with the faculty knows that the way to the heart of an educator is through his digestive tract. Nutritional necessities superbly satisfied, surreptitious Sobobans sweetened steadfast slave-drivers at the Faculty Feed. Dining at the Mediterranean, as was the custom, there was merriment for the teachers as well as their corsage decked hostesses. "The Yellow Rose of Texas" was the theme this year, subtle and suitable since the infamous Tiny Tex was among the guests. In fellowship, feasting, and fun the Feed was a success.

Above: Honoring a special teacher for the evening, Mr. Taylor was presented a cowboy hat.

Bottom: Patti Stewart with several Soboban alumni, Jennifer Parke, and Diane Whittaker were all part of the entertainment.

FACULTY FEED

Teaching Included More Than Instructing

Left: Representing residents of the second ward, Mr. Wheeler took the responsibility as Councilman of that ward. During his term of office, there were two other teachers on City Council.

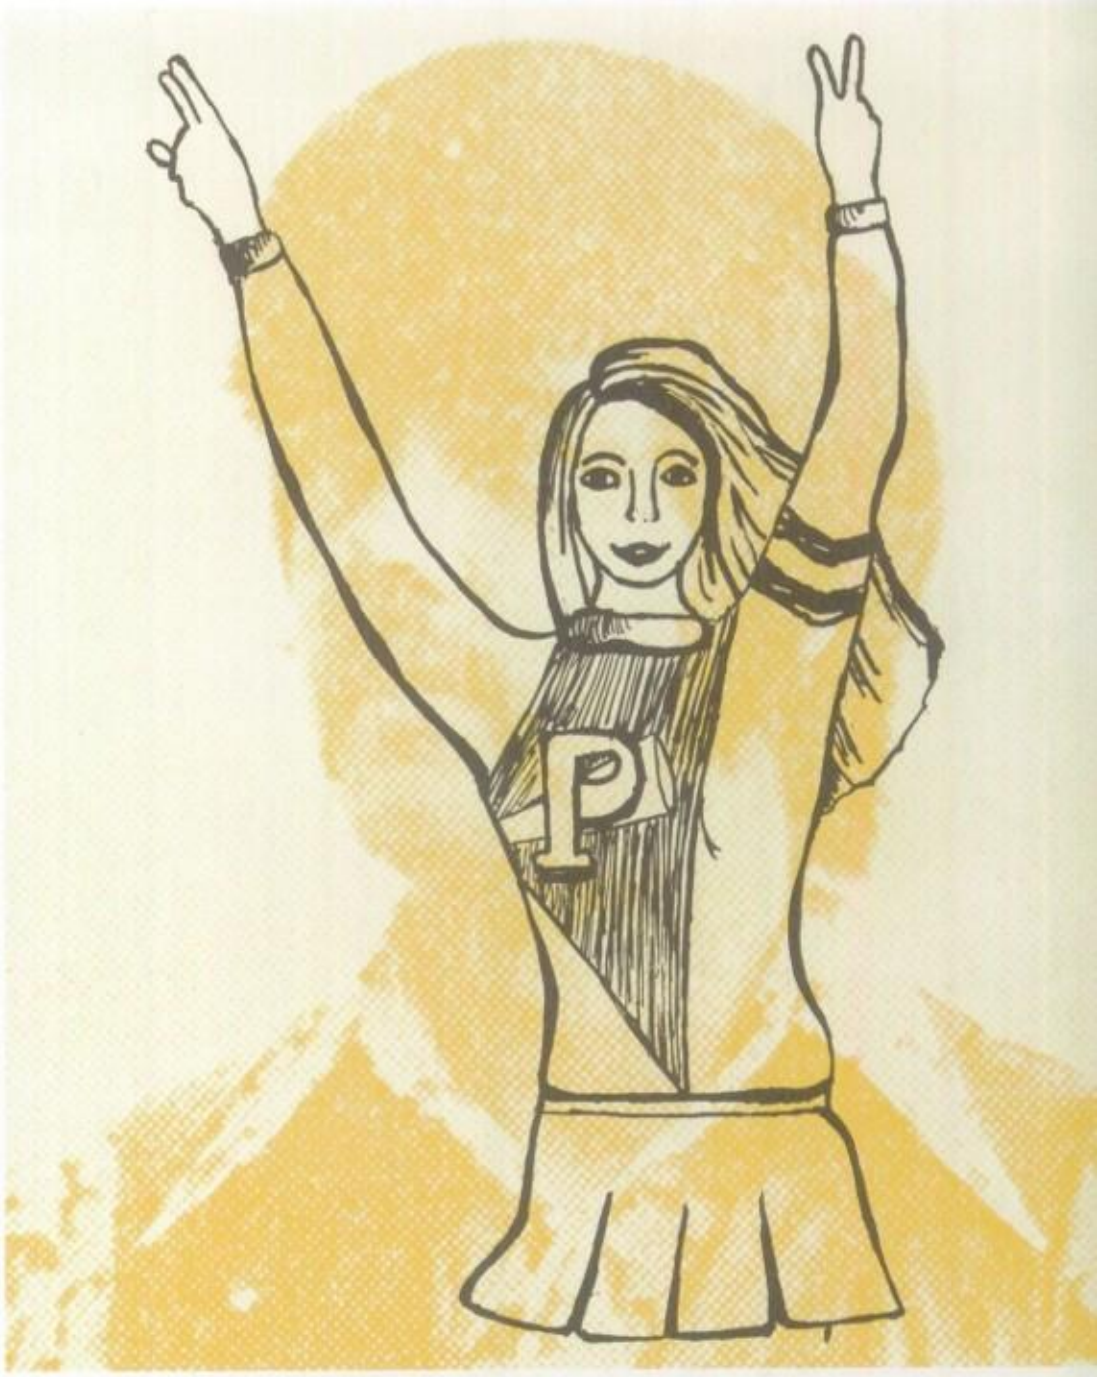
Right: In the recall election of February 10, in which the rezoning of a residential neighborhood was in question, the people of the seventh ward voted Mr. Lackner as City Councilman.

Lower Left: Felicitating seniors for accomplishments in the educational area, Miss Hempstead, Mrs. Jeffords, Mr. King, and Mr. Ketchum gave encouragement to Jeff Shane and Cyndie Bauman.

Below: Bidding temporary farewell to Pacific, Mrs. Lewis left in February to tour various colleges around the United States. She was granted a sabbatical leave by the Board of Education.

EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

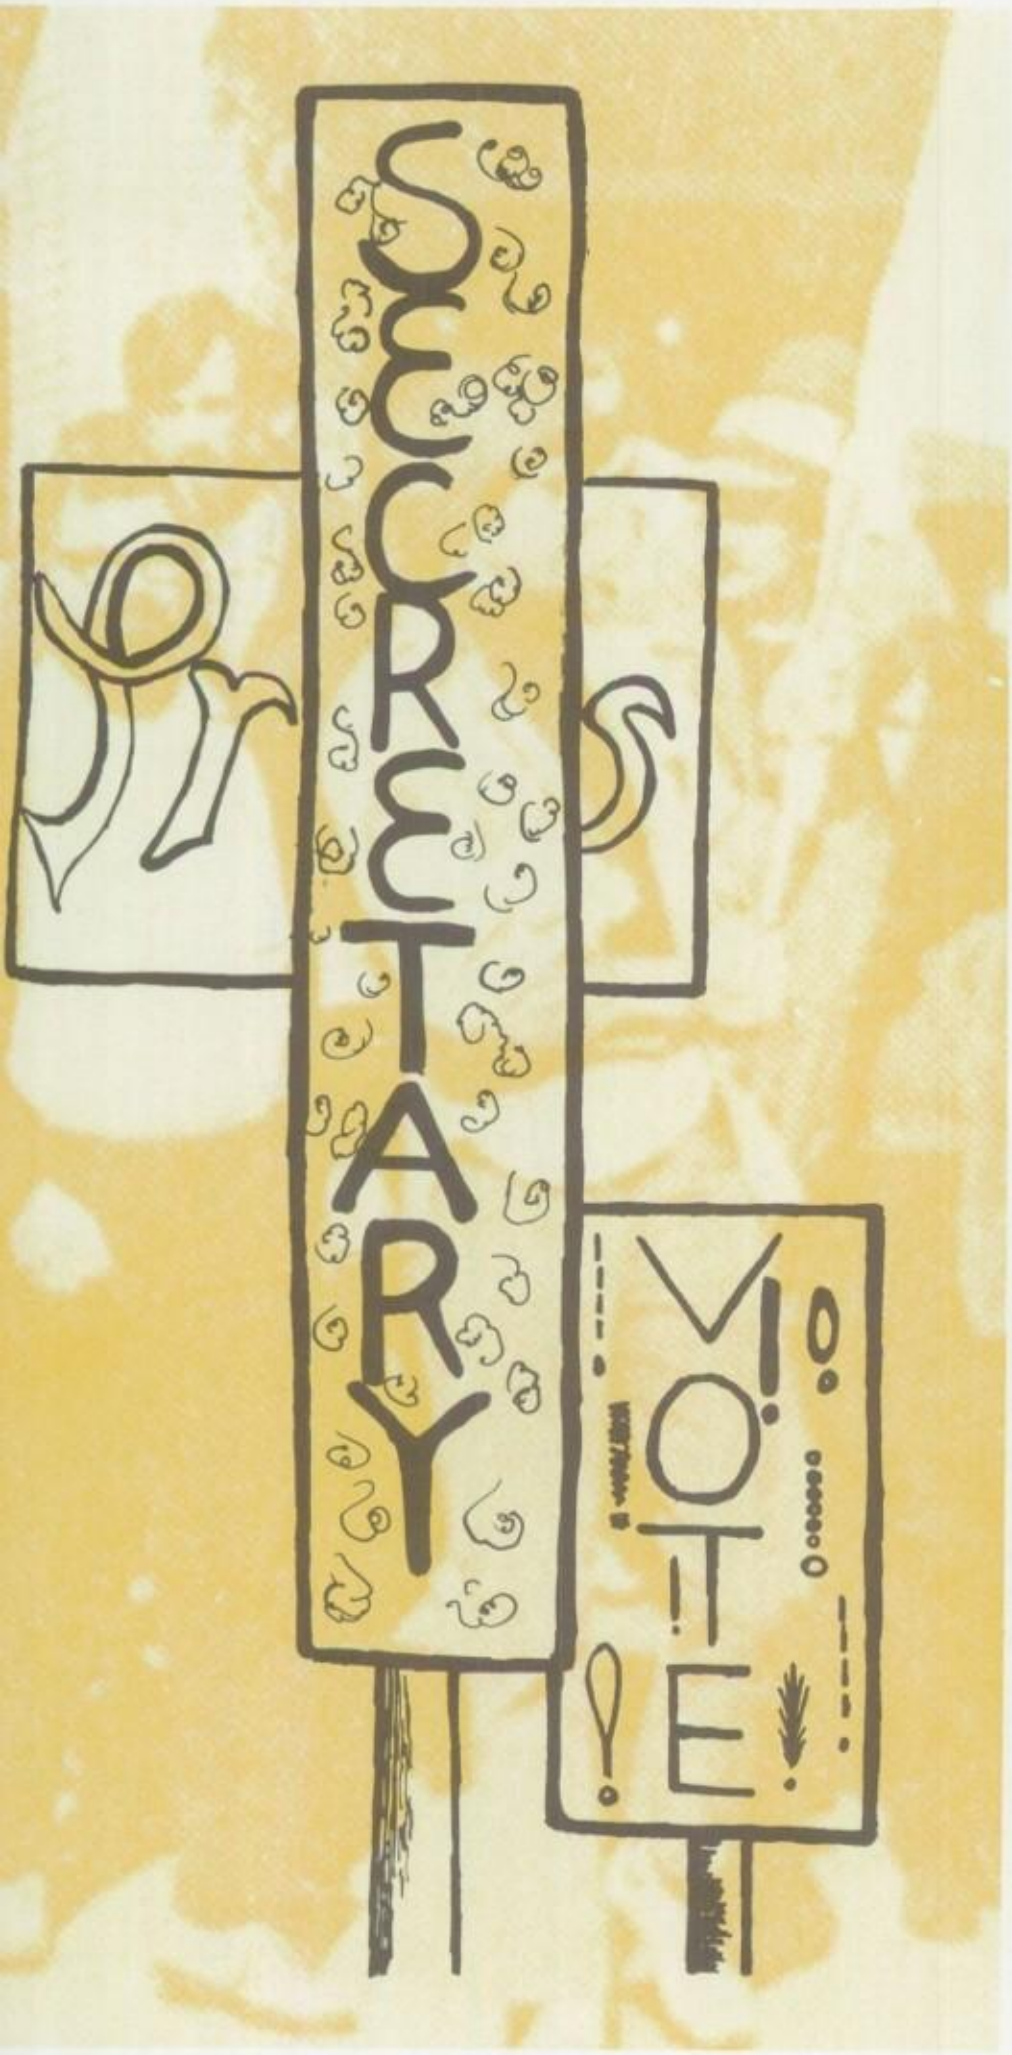
Marion Mapes, Editor

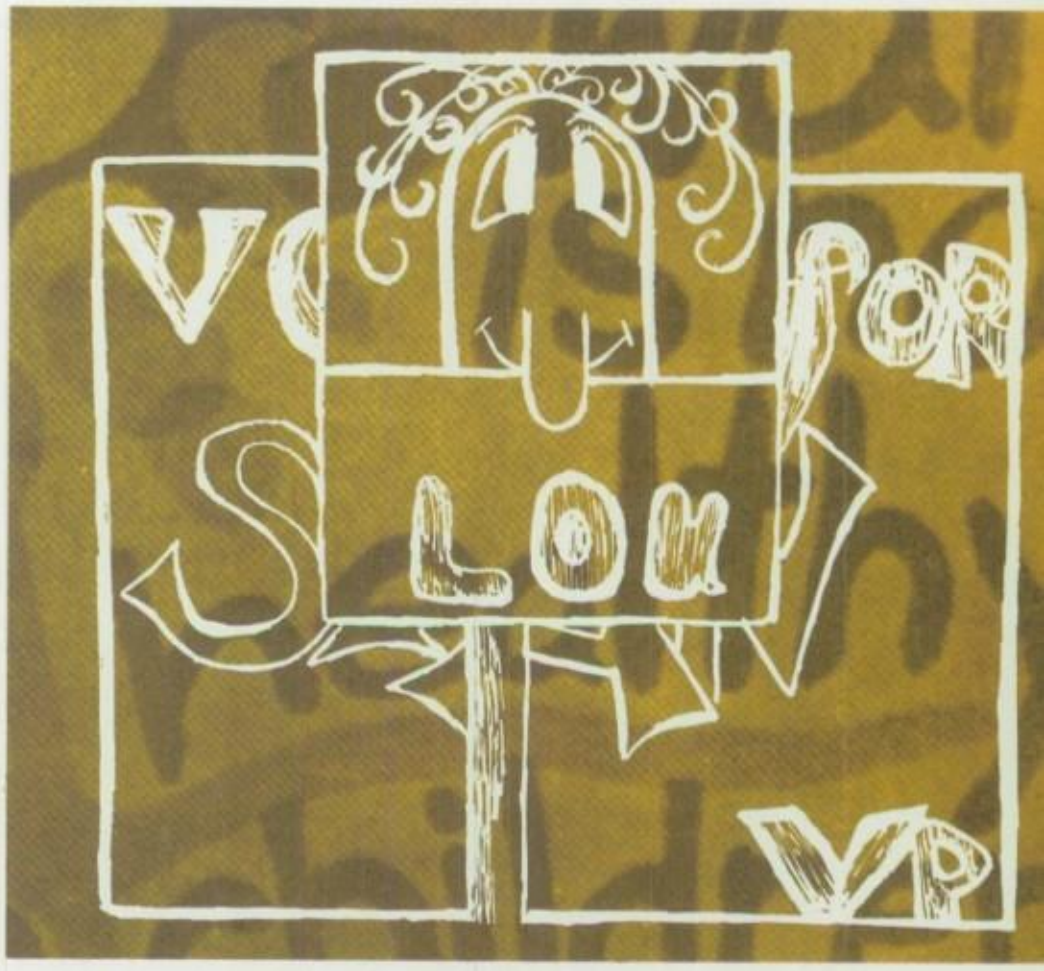


Many Pacific High School students participated in the various activities that were held during the year. To keep up school spirit there were rallies, basketball and football homecomings. For entertainment and enlightenment there were assemblies, movies, and quad car shows. These activities were one of many reasons for the peaceful environment we enjoyed.

ACTIVITIES

ARTIST, CHRIS DEL ROSS





Overcome with emotion, Alecia Minick was comforted by her escort Mike Ponce when she learned that she was to be Homecoming Queen. Alecia was crowned by former queen Becky Wagoner and given a bouquet.

Alecia Reigned As Queen

xciting activities throughout the entire day led up to a uspenseful evening which included the game against isenhower and Queen Alecia's coronation. The evening efore many had worked long into the night on club floats hich had to be at school for the 2:30 p.m. judging. There as also an Alumni Tea in the afternoon. The evening's stivities began at 6:00 with a car caravan and parade to e Orange Show Stadium. During halftime the queen and er court were crowned. After the game many attended e "California 200" dance, held at the Uptown Y.M.C.A. omecoming night proved to be thrilling for one and all.

ASSEMBLIES

Entertainment For Mutual Enjoyment

Lower Left: Beginning several of our assemblies was mathematics teacher Walter Smilac leading the national anthem.

Left Center: Modeling many outfits that could be purchased at the Harris Co., were Jenny Swank and Lori Labensart.

Left: Professional night-club entertainer Eddie Cash delighted both assemblies with a history of music trends and notables.

Upper Right: Well known traveler and lecturer John Goddard visited Pacific High School this year to relate to students his various adventures in the region of Africa known as Kenya. Along with his slides he presented an exceptional narrative throughout the informative assemblies.

Far Upper Right: Folk singers Keith and Rusty McNeil and their son David entertained student audiences with many songs and several African tribal rhythms beated on drums they had acquired from the continent. They distributed different types of percussion instruments to students for audience participation in a segment of their presentation.

Catching enthusiasm was sparked by the 1969-70 varsity cheerleaders throughout the year. Head Patti Roberts led with an attitude of unity and pride. The abundance of school spirit and overwhelming attendance at football and basketball pep rallies and games was proof of the girl's ability to lead. They not only led the cheers at games and rallies but also enthusiastically supported the school in all its activities throughout the year.

Although only minor, the fire damage done to F-7 early one Sunday morning was enough to move Miss Broadhurst and her English classes to the Student Council Room. Leaving behind a charred signature, fire also hit the faculty workroom when several teachers were present, due to a fault in the heating system. As fate would have it, the fires in no way interfered with the daily routine of Pacific High.

Marching in time to the beat of the drums, Pacific High School's Drill Team participated in many varied activities throughout the past year. During the football season they performed at halftime along with Pacific's Marching Band and the Flags and Pom Pons. The Drill Team had a new look this year with new uniforms that consisted of short purple wool jumper with a dropped waist and a pleated skirt. A white blouse with full sleeves and a large collar was worn under the jumper. The Drill Team also had a new advisor this year. Miss Mary Glenn took over this position. Not only did the Drill Team perform at football halftime but they also marched in many parades throughout the year such as the Christmas Parade on Highland Avenue. They also performed routines during basketball halftimes.

DRILL TEAM

VARSITY FLAGS

Vivacious varsity flag twirlers added enthusiasm and color to many activities with their bright uniforms, flags and sparkling smiles. This year their uniforms consisted of a purple velveteen skirt and vest and white satin blouse. Their bicolored purple and white flags were divided diagonally for a fresh and novel effect. Under the guidance of head flag Barbara Hunter, the flags performed expertly.

THE FENCE

This Was Security?

Foreboding and awesome, Pacific High School's fence was not a welcome sight when students and faculty returned last fall. The new adornment cost the San Bernardino Unified School District approximately ten thousand dollars of the taxpayers' money. The prevention of vandalism was its goal.

(Far left upper) The first signs of construction, bricks and mortar, caused a measure of excitement on campus. (Far left lower) As construction progressed apprehension increased among students and faculty. (Far right) At times even the faculty was locked in. Mr. Bob Fuller, one of the security officers new to Pacific this year, also checked their passes as they entered and left some days. (Lower) Too often students felt caged in because of the many locked gates around the campus. This gate, located at the main entrance to the school, was locked most of the time during the day. (Above) The fence, which seemed to be everywhere, often confused students as to whether they were being fenced in or others were being fenced out. Pacific students often found themselves on opposite sides of the fence.

Executing countless difficult movements, the Varsity Pom Pons accented cheers while they performed. The Poms also created their own routines to go with popular musical tunes, and participated in competition. Their white wool uniforms had a dropped waist and short pleated skirt. The large pointed collar, waist, and three gold buttons down the front were accented with purple velvet ribbon.

Sue Garret Becci Ringstad Linda Stanton - Head Lyn Bromberg Heidi Spelman

Bee leadership led by Linda Stanton, head cheerleader, Dede Brock, head pom pon, and Karen Rainey, head flag, had a busy schedule. Although some of the groups did not enter any competition this year, cheering at both Bee and Junior Varsity sports events kept them more than occupied. They were very active during basketball season when they were required to cheer at approximately six games a week. Bees also substitute for Varsity leaders at special events such as football and basketball homecoming when the Varsity was participating in other events.

Left: Displaying the spirit and enthusiasm of a winning school, Pacific students all turned out for rallies in support of their team. Effigies were a common sight to see dangling from the roof of the gym prior to games.

Above: Students settled down to lunch after matching their wits with the uncooperative vending machines. Below: Socializing was one of the most popular activities carried out in the quad, no matter what the time of day.

THE QUAD

Christmas On Campus

Expressing Christmas spirit in many ways, Pacific High students were enlightened by the many window displays and bulletin boards shown throughout campus. Unique Santas made by Mr. Nielsen's art students and a beautifully decorated tree topped with a creative Santa by Janice Lilienthal, decked the library with Christmas cheer. The musical assembly by Mr. Harbaugh's orchestra and Mr. Will's vocal ensemble, girls chorus, and choir filled the air with holiday spirit. Vocal students spread cheer by caroling through the corridors during periods.

DECK THE HALLS

Inspiration, Innovation, And Involvement

Concern for education was the keynote of a productive and busy year for Pacific High's Parent-Teacher Association. Involved in many areas of scholastic endeavor, besides providing several interesting programs, the P.T.A. held board meetings to co-ordinate its activities. Mrs. Krause, P.T.A. president, and members of the board interviewed various seniors for the scholarship they sponsored.

Students Enjoyed Freedom In Dress

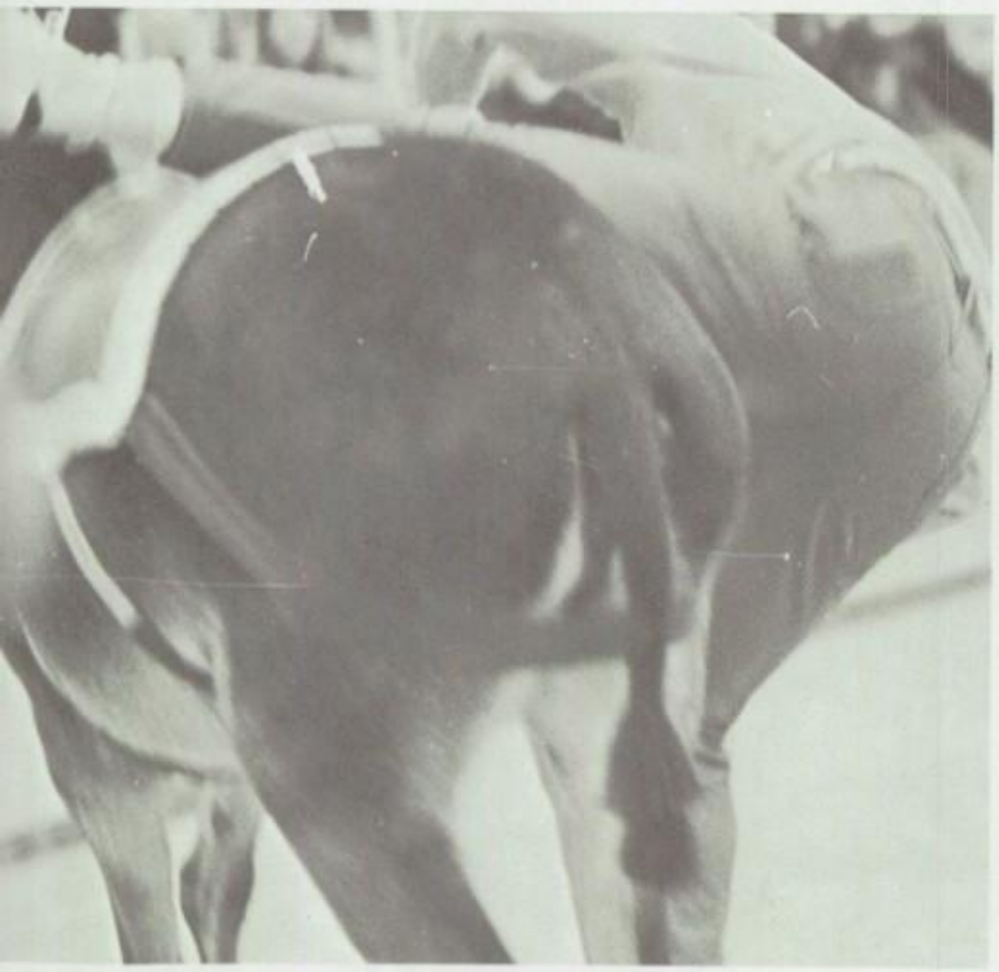
Above: Some girls took advantage of the freedom of dress to the fullest. Below: Many girls wore both shorts and slacks to school. Boys dressed in varied ways.

Right: Above - Mauri Heller and Alan Sacks were two typically dressed Pacific High School students of 1970. Below - These were the two students voted the best dressed senior boy and girl at Pacific High in 1960.

Changing times were reflected in the dress of many Pacific High School students this year. The district abolished the dress code almost entirely, leaving only a few basic stipulations. Shorts and slacks were allowed for girls and boys could have moustaches, sideburns and longer hair.

NO DRESS CODE

Students Showed Supremacy



Proving again that students are number one, the team representing the younger generation of Pacific High went on to a glorious victory in the 1970 Donkey Basketball Game. The teachers were enthusiastic in their attempts to tip the score in their favor, but their efforts were futile. Supported by ecstatic cheers from the student fans and muffled sobs from teachers, the victors rode off into the sunset taking with them their shining trophy. The students won 26 to 22. Harvey Guzik reigned over the halftime activities as 1970 Donkey Basketball Homecoming Queen.

DONKEY BASKETBALL

Music And Precision

Unexcelled precision distinguished Pacific High School's Marching Band as they skillfully combined popular musical numbers with striking visual images. Practices were often long and tedious, but the resulting performances were of a high caliber. The band's music and formations were the main attraction of halftime activities at football games. The Marching Band's range of talent was also displayed at the numerous parades in which they participated during the year. The band was conducted by Director Harry Harbaugh, who, along with Head Drum Major Sue Fullerton and Junior Drum Major Lew Schwenk, devoted many hours to keeping band members in shape.

PACIFIC'S MARCHING BAND

Wrestling Sweetheart

During halftime of the wrestling meet against Fontana, the name of this year's Wrestling Sweetheart was announced to the anxiously awaiting crowd. The candidates this year were nominated by members of the wrestling team, who voted to select their 1970 queen. Excitement mounted as the names of the runners-up were read off. Crowning this year's winner was 1969's Sweetheart, Chris Santellano. Taking Chris' place, lovely Barbara Cardoza reigned over halftime activities with her court. With such encouraging support, it's no wonder that the spirit was so outstanding.

Left: Pacific High's 1970 Wrestling Sweetheart was junior Barbara Cardoza. Below: Backed with enthusiastic support, the court tensely watched the deciding match against the Steelers.

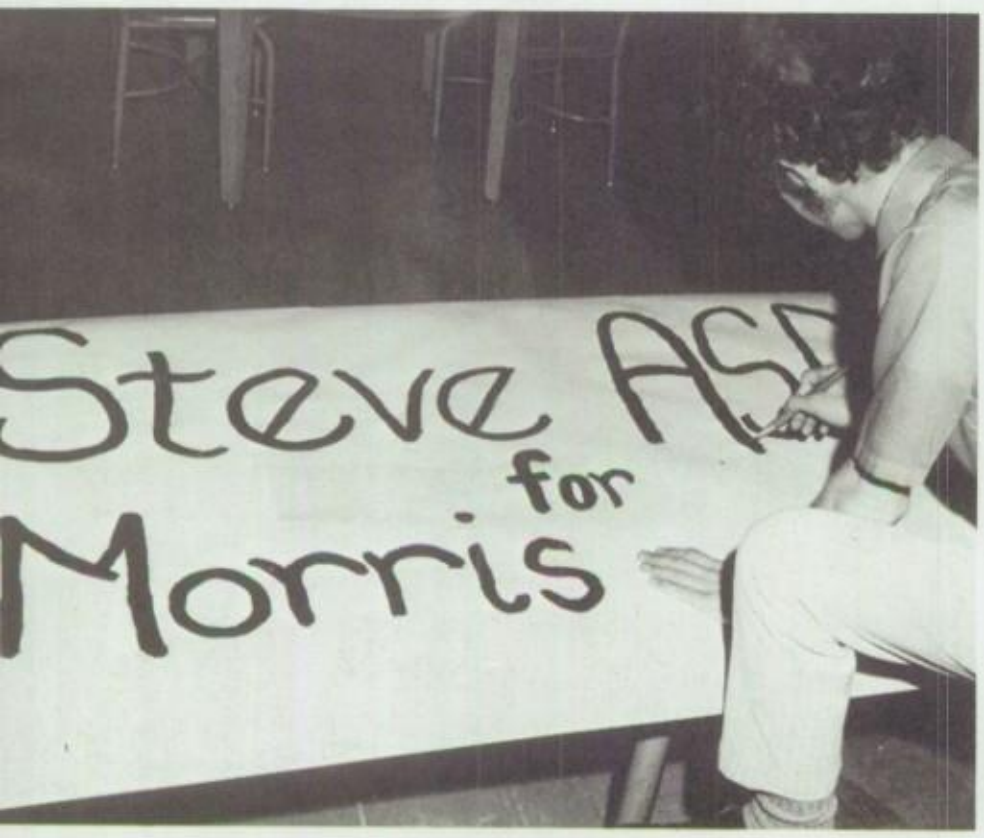
HOMECOMING

A. S. B. Elections

cking up petitions was the first step on the road to a dent body office. Elections are held each spring after e Prom to select the student council for the next year.



Rocking out to the psychedelic sounds of different bands, students enjoyed the various dances throughout the year, usually held in the gym or the cafeteria.

DANCES

ORANGE SHOW

Caramel Apples, Cotton Candy, Clowns . . .

Giggling with delight at the antics of Bozo, students clamored to get into the Orange Show. Full of popcorn and cotton candy, and laden with stuffed toys and dolls, all enjoyed the excitement.

Scintillating Sounds Surrounded The Audience

Enthralling the audience with music and dance, the Young Americans brought culture and entertainment to our school. It was a great privilege to have such an internationally known group performing in our auditorium. Senior Richard Garcia was selected as a member of this group of students chosen from all over the U.S.A. to perform.

THE YOUNG AMERICANS

A Time For Having Fun

Students found many ways to occupy their free time during vacations. Toilet-papering was one of the all time favorites but the clean-up was not quite as fun. Skiing was very popular whether there was school or not. Mrs. Wiles spent much of the school year preparing for a tour of Europe during summer with a group of Pacific High students.

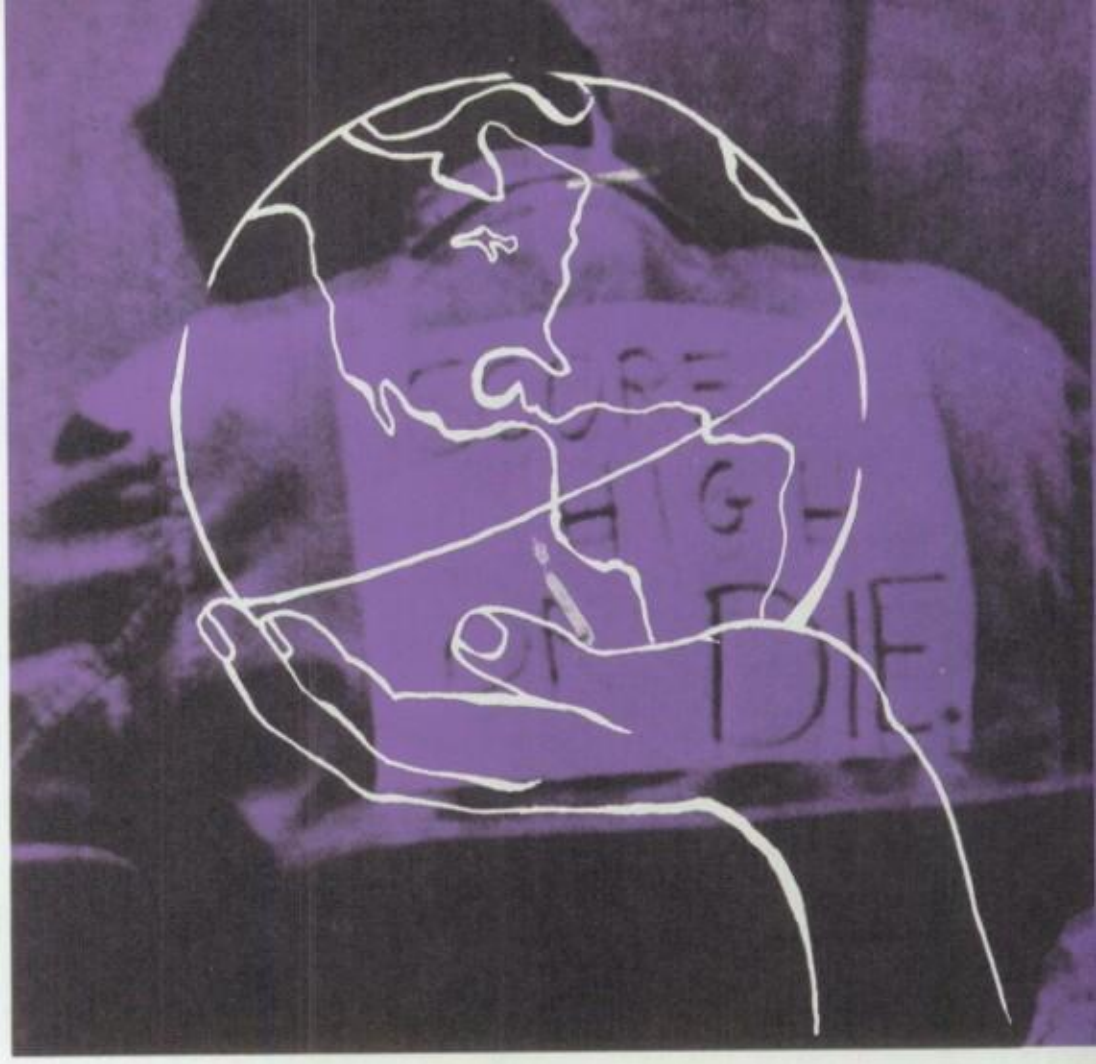
SENIORS



Our tomorrows will be determined by the leadership of today's seniors. College and university or vocational goals were foremost in the minds of seniors for most of the year. The existence and anticipation of scholarships, college entrance examinations, and new opportunities made seniors completely aware of the future. They faced challenges and made decisions based on the knowledge gained in their high school years. With the cooperation of teachers and counselors, seniors were ready to serve others for the future.

Above Left: Reviewing her knowledge of current events, Vicki Rudh walked reluctantly to the library, not knowing what awaited her. Above Right: Nervously biting her fingernails, Vicki showed the apprehension that plagued most seniors during regularly scheduled fake scholarship interviews. Below: Leaving the Freedom Shrine Room, Vicki exhibited the relief apparent in all seniors who had completed their interviews.

SENIOR WEEK

Pacific High we love so well,

With pride and joy our praises swell.

Faith, devotion all to thee

Our Alma Mater ever be.

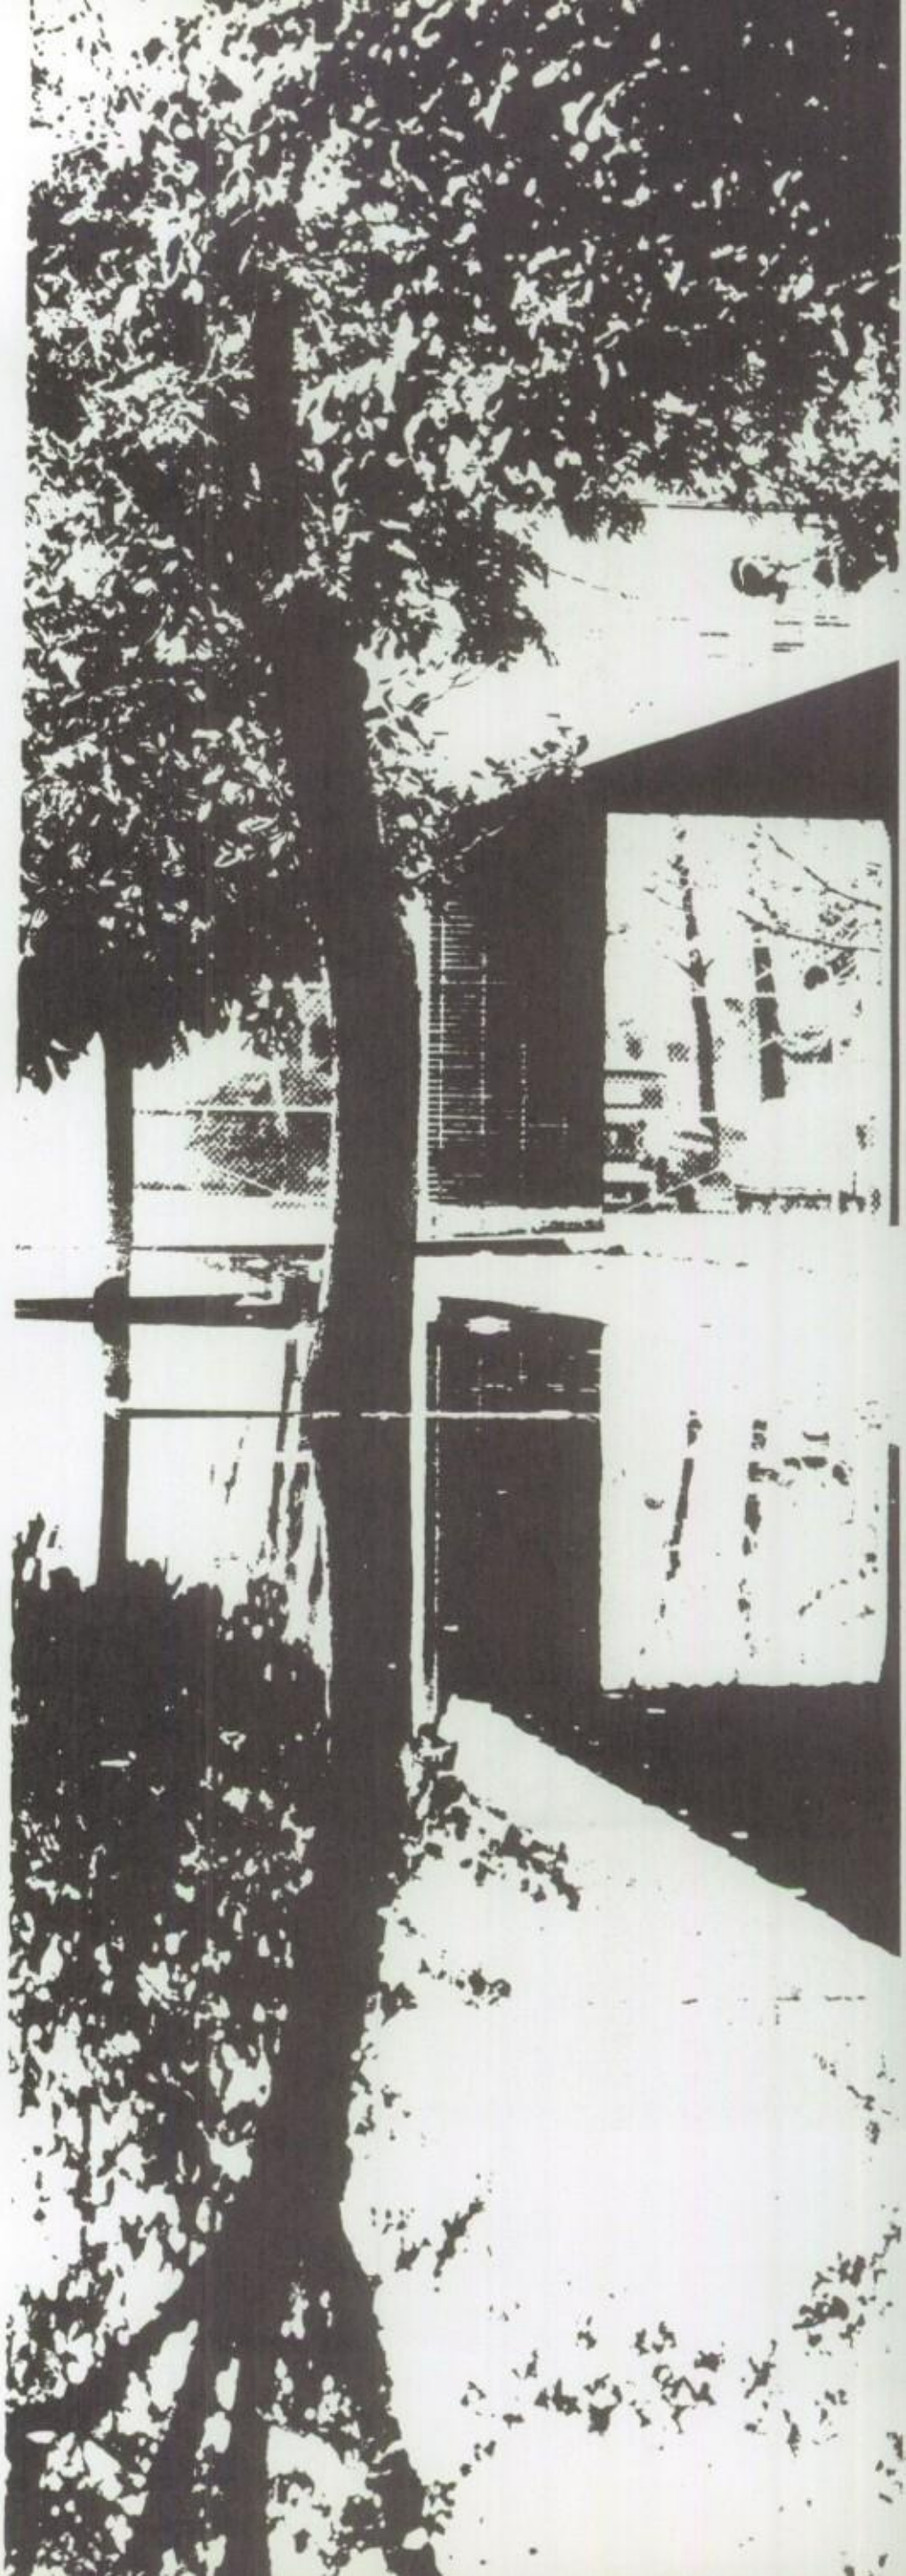
For thy learning rich and pure

For all thy training strong and sure

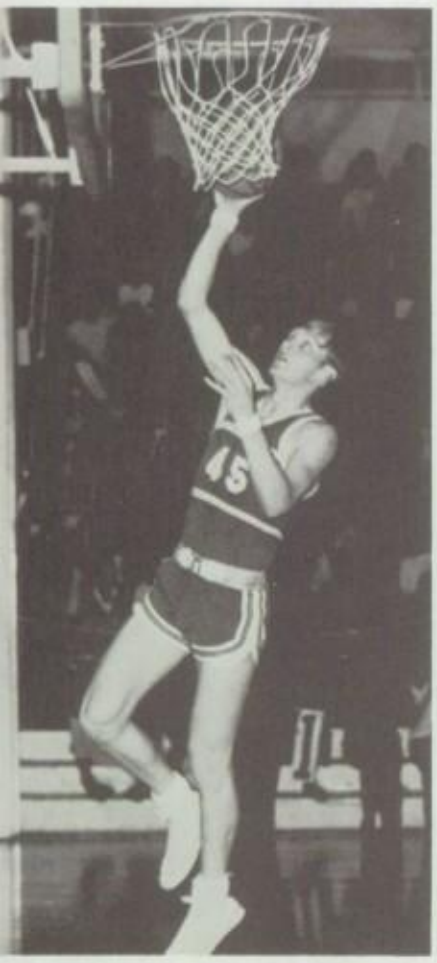
We will pledge our loyalty;

Pacific High, all hail to thee!

ALMA MATER



Active Seniors Actively Acted In Action Packed Activities



During the past three years, the Class of '70 was involved in various school activities. Scholastic achievements were sought through honor associations, and involvement in the community was stressed through service clubs. Participation in sports strengthened male ego, and female vanity was bolstered through qualification for leadership.

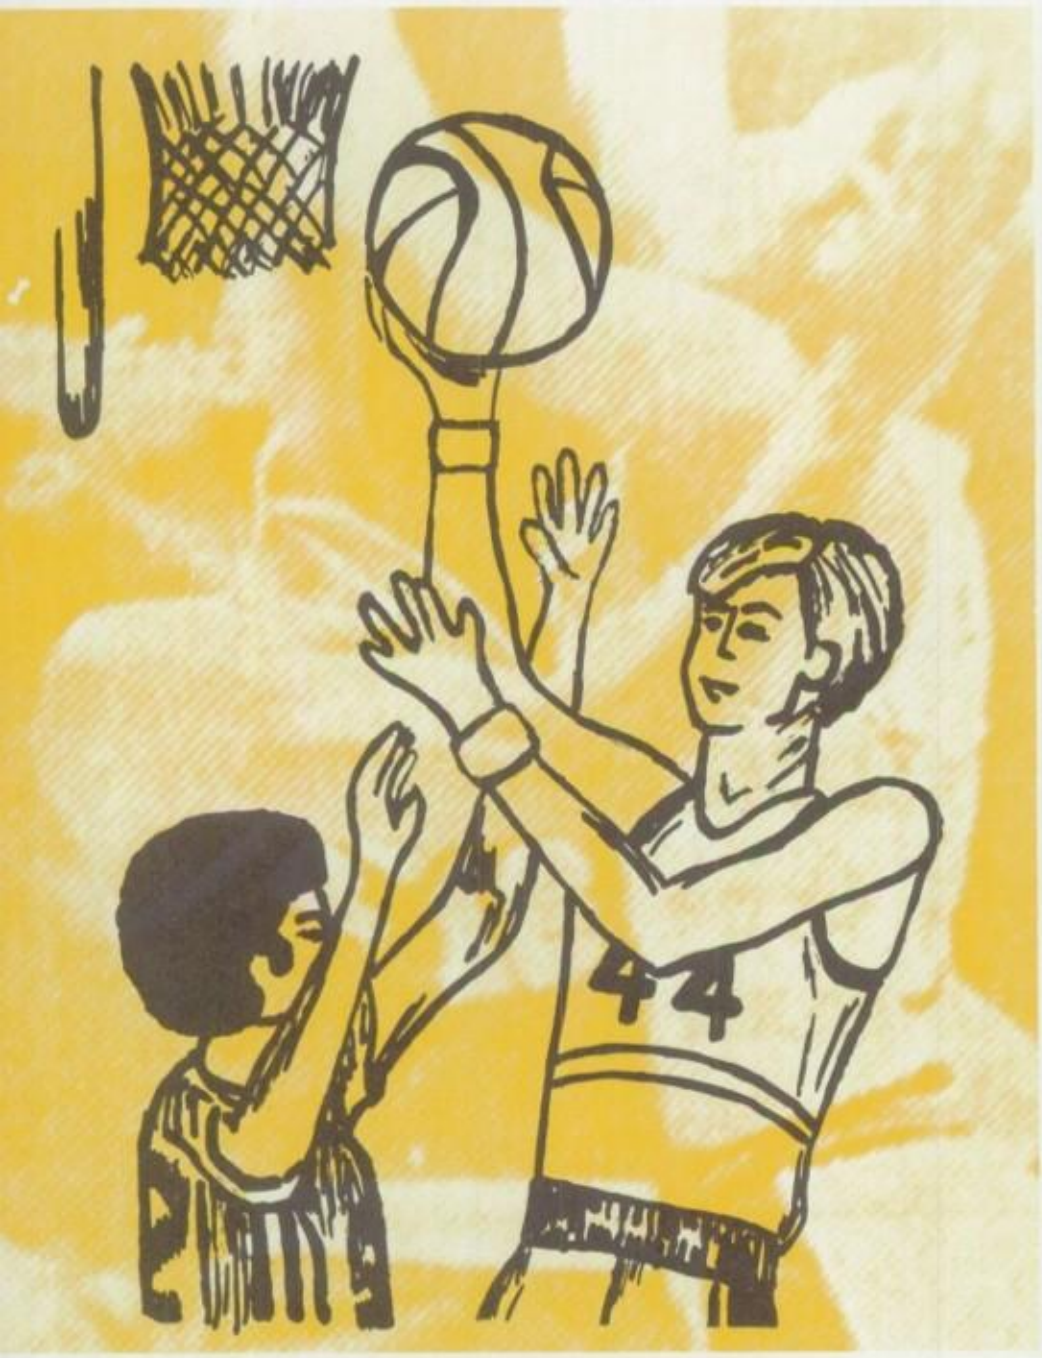
Chris Nielsen, Editor



ne competitive spirit of the 1969-1970 school year directed ome purpose into the teams in individual sports. Pacific's erennial strength in all sports was exemplified through the operative efforts of each participant. A fine example of is unique spirit and confidence could be seen in members any athletic organization at Pacific during the past year.

SPORTS

p row from left to right are: ead coach Don Niemeyer, Mike atlock, Jim Jordan, Richard rrell, Kevin Graf, Mike Turley, m Cauley, Darrell Imoe, Ross rgman, Paul Whiteside, Earl Marshall, and assistant coach Dan King. Center row L to R: David Acosta, Jesse Meranda, Charles Brunk, Jay Stoffel, Bill Poggi, Rick Heil, Rich McGowan, Steve Wilkes, Bill Schobert, Norm Shaddox, Gary Wooten, and Mike Carey. Bottom row L to R: Assistant coach Tony Finazzo, Ken Bailey, Jerry Ellis, Allan Barber, Ron Porterfield, Allan Shepard, David Wheat, Jeff Visbal, Larry Egan, Dennis Acosta, and assistant coach Chuck Petterson. The coaches made practice as hard as possible to get a good team. All team members had to work hard to stay with the team.

Beginning the season with a win in the pre-season opener against traditional rival Muir, the Bucs looked good until the next game with Servite, where they were upset. Then in the season opener against Redlands they suffered another defeat. The season then looked bad but it continued to get worse with the Pirates being defeated by San Gorgonio. In their next game the Bucs were determined not to lose another and pulled off a win over Chaffey. From then on things turned for the better with a win over SBHS and a tie with, the then league leaders, Ramona. Fontana handed the Pirates another defeat in a close battle. Pulling up and out of the cellar with their pounding of San Bernardino High, Pacific's varsity moved to fifth place in league standings. Behind this record were head coach Niemeyer and assistant coaches King, Petterson and Finazzo.

Above: Facing the stands for the Alma Mater, the Varsity football team looked glum after a 0 to 0 tie with Eisenhower at our homecoming. Left: Ken Bailey enjoys a cool drink after defeating Chaffey. It was a double celebration as it was also his birthday. Right: Sitting on the bench, Gary Wooten waited with anticipation for the coach to send him into the battle. Far left: Talking to some of the Ramona players about the highlights of the big game was Rick Heil.

Practice Started Early And Ended Late

Left: Smashing through the blaster during spring practice was Mike Matlock. Spring Practice was the beginning of conditioning for this year's season. Top: Coach Niemeyer used the chalkboard to explain offensive plays.

Starting with practice in the spring of last year the Varsity football team readied themselves for the 1969 season. Coaches Niemeyer and King worked with the backfield while lines were helped by coaches Pettersen and Finazzo

VARSITY FOOTBALL PRACTICE

Muir 24 Pacific 32

Bucs upset the Mustangs for the first time in seven years. Tom Cauley made two TD's, with Ken Bailey, Don Gradle and Bill Pogi scoring one each. Mike Matlock, tackle, and Kevin Graf, flanker, were named as players of the week.

	MUIR	PAC.
First downs	5	11
Rushing yardage	50	200
Passing yardage	269	88
Passes	16-7-1	7-4-0
Fumbles lost	4	4

Above: Tom Cauley fought his way through the tough Muir defense to make his second touchdown of game. Below: Bill Poggi fell for extra yardage on one of his runs, this time for 10 yards.

Servite 27 Pacific 0

Tough Buc defense failed to contain the Friars attack in the second pre-season game. In first half Steve Wilkes, Rick Heil and Richard McGowan held the Friars to one TD. Second half Servite's pass attack broke game open.

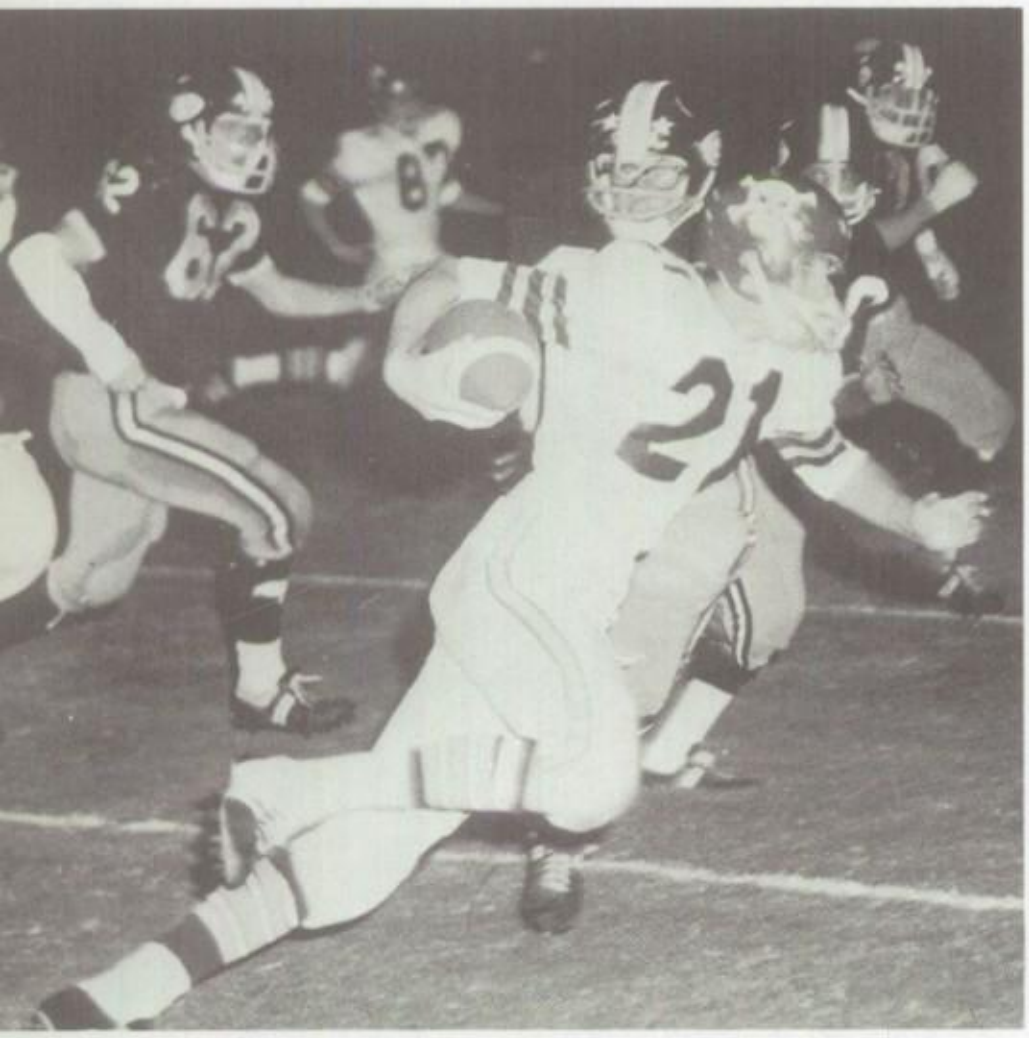
	SERVITE	PAC.
First downs	9	2
Rushing yardage	147	53
Passing yardage	87	0
Passes	9-6-0	14-0-3
Fumbles lost	1	1
Yards penalized	105	40

PRE-SEASON FOOTBALL

Redlands 20 Pacific 14

Left: Charging around right end Ken Bailey picked up needed yardage for the Pirates. Bailey had one of his best nights against Redlands, even though the Bucs lost. He completed 8 out of 15 passes for a total of 136 yards. Bailey not only passed well but ran a total of 29 yards in 6 carries. Right: Bill Schobert made a good reception and then hung on to the ball when he was tackled. Kevin Graf made a fine 36 yard reception but was later injured and he did not return to the game. Blil Poggi ran with his usual style for 112 yards in 18 packs. On one play he went 70 yards only to drop the ball on the seven. Pacific recovered it and later scored, when Ken Bailey passed to end, Norm Shaddox.

	REDLANDS	PAC.
First downs	16	11
Rushing yardage	188	157
Passing yardage	68	136
Passes	9-4-0	15-8-2
Fumbles lost	2	0
Yards penalized	80	75



Left: Pirate flanker, Kevin Graf, took the ball on a reverse and swept around the right end for a first down. Kevin Graf later received a 48 yard aerial from Ken Bailey for the Bucs first TD of the night. Following Graf's example, Bill Poggi ran 65 yds. for a touchdown the next time the Pirates got the ball. Right: Ball under his arm, Norm Shaddox turned down the field as a San Gorgonio defender moved in for a tackle. Other Pacific ends were Ron Porterfield, who caught a 25 yd. pass for a TD, Mike Carey, whose clutch passes helped Pacific out of trouble, and Bill Schobert, who always got in the clear. Tom Cauley combined with Bill Poggi to head the running attack wih Cauley scoring on an 8 yard dash. Poggi scored one TD and amassed 122 yards in 10 carries, a 12 yard average.

	SGHS	PAC.
First downs	14	13
Rushing yardage	299	202
Passing yardage	24	124
Passes	6-2-0	11-5-1
Fumbles lost	0	2
Yards penalized	80	75

SGHS 35 Pacific 28

Chaffey 12 Pacific 14

Left: Straight-arming and then side-stepping a would-be tackler, Tom Cauley sprinted around right end for a substantial gain. Bill Poggi combined with Cauley to gain almost two hundred yards. Both Cauley and Poggi scored a touchdown apiece. Cauley scored on a three yard dash while Poggi scored when he recovered a Bailey fumble inside the Chaffey goal line. Right: Pushing his way around a blocker, Rich McGowan moved in to catch the scrambling Tiger quarterback for a loss behind the line. Holding the Tiger running attack to only 100 yards for the night, the Pirate rush defense was superior. The Buc pass defense allowed the Chaffey receivers only eight completions out of twenty-one pass attempts.

	CHAFFEY	PAC.
First downs	11	10
Rushing yardage	120	195
Passing yardage	167	34
Passes	21-8-0	9-4-1
Fumbles lost	2	1
Yards penalized	20	5

Left: Talking on the phone to the press box about defensive patterns, Rick Heil got advice from coach Petterson and coach Finazzo about how to stop a Ram drive. Such advice proved helpful as the Pirate defense held the Ramona team to less than 100 yards on the ground and allowed only 5 completions out of 14 attempted passes for only 130 yards in the air. Right: Setting up to throw a block, Darrel Imoe showed the quickness and power he developed through hours of practice. Far right: Attempting to break a tackle, Don Gradle displayed his ability to cut quickly. Gradle was not a regular running back. He was mainly used as punt return man and as two point conversion running back. At the Ramona game Gradle ran over one conversion and almost made it on a second attempt.

	RAMONA	PAC.
First downs	9	16
Rushing yardage	98	196
Passing yardage	130	110
Passes	14-5-0	6-4-1
Fumbles lost	2	2
Yards penalized	40	45

	FONTANA	PAC.
First downs	8	15
Rushing yardage	293	91
Passing yardage	96	145
Passes	6-2-0	24-10-1
Fumbles lost	1	1
Yards penalized	55	20

Top: Putting the clamps on a Steeler running back and bringing him to violent stop was big Eral Marshall. Lower: Looking to see if he tripped up the running back was Mike Carey. Carey played both defense and offense.

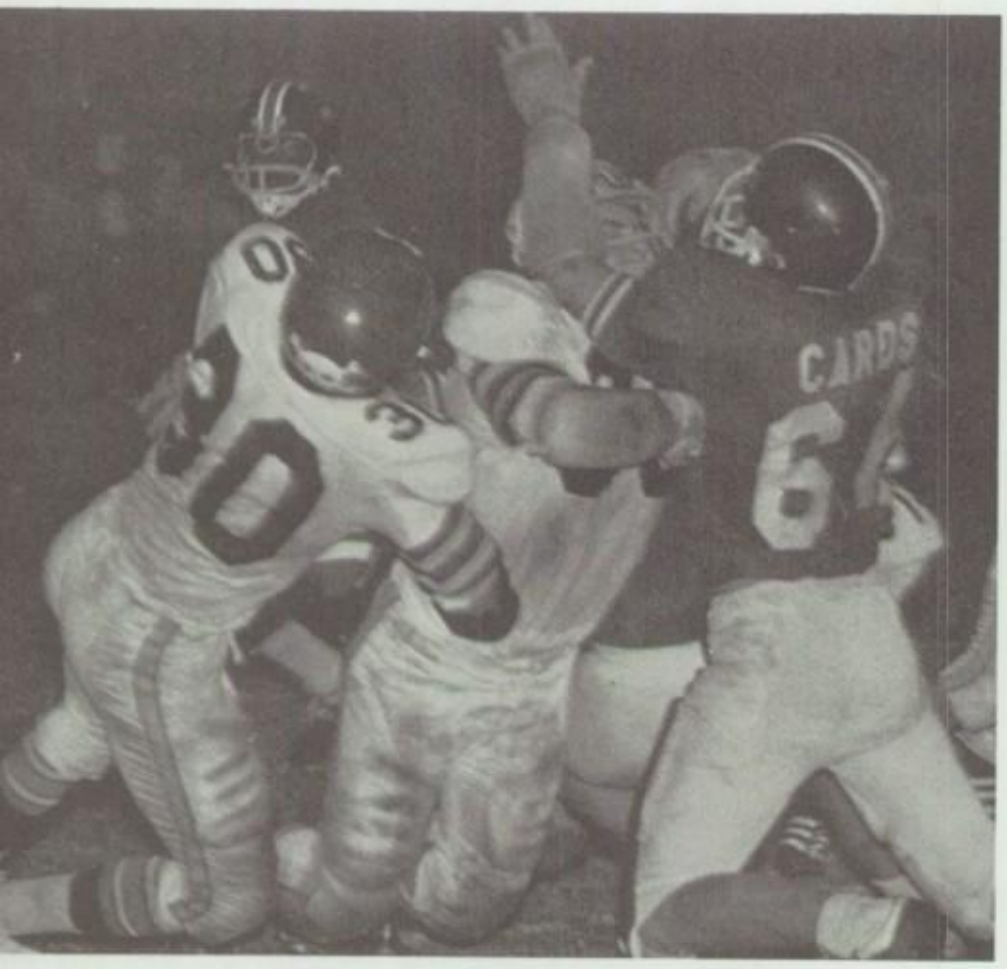
Eisenhower 0 Pacific 0

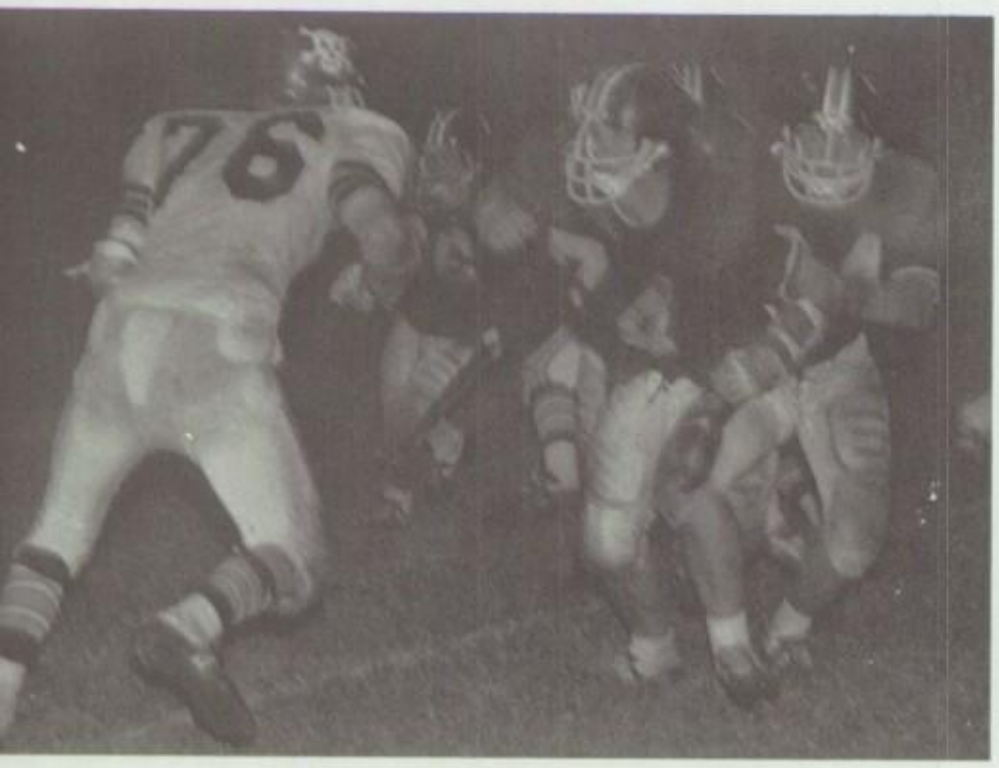
	EISENHOWER	PAC.
First downs	10	11
Rushing yardage	98	99
Passing yardage	26	32
Passes	11-3-1	16-3-2
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	40	0

Top: Holding on to an Eagle end while waiting for help from Rich McGowan was Bill Poggi. Poggi found out that playing defensive back required both speed and strength. Lower: Leading the way around end was Steve Wilkes.

PIRATES END SEASON STRONG

SBHS 0 Pacific 20





op: Sliding off a blocker into ay-dirt for touchdown was Buc, om Cauley. Cauley scored all of acific touchdowns against San ernardino. Above: Holding off a ost of Cardinal tacklers, Mike atlock was tough on offense.

SAN BERNARDINO		PAC.
First downs	9	10
Rushing yardage	98	203

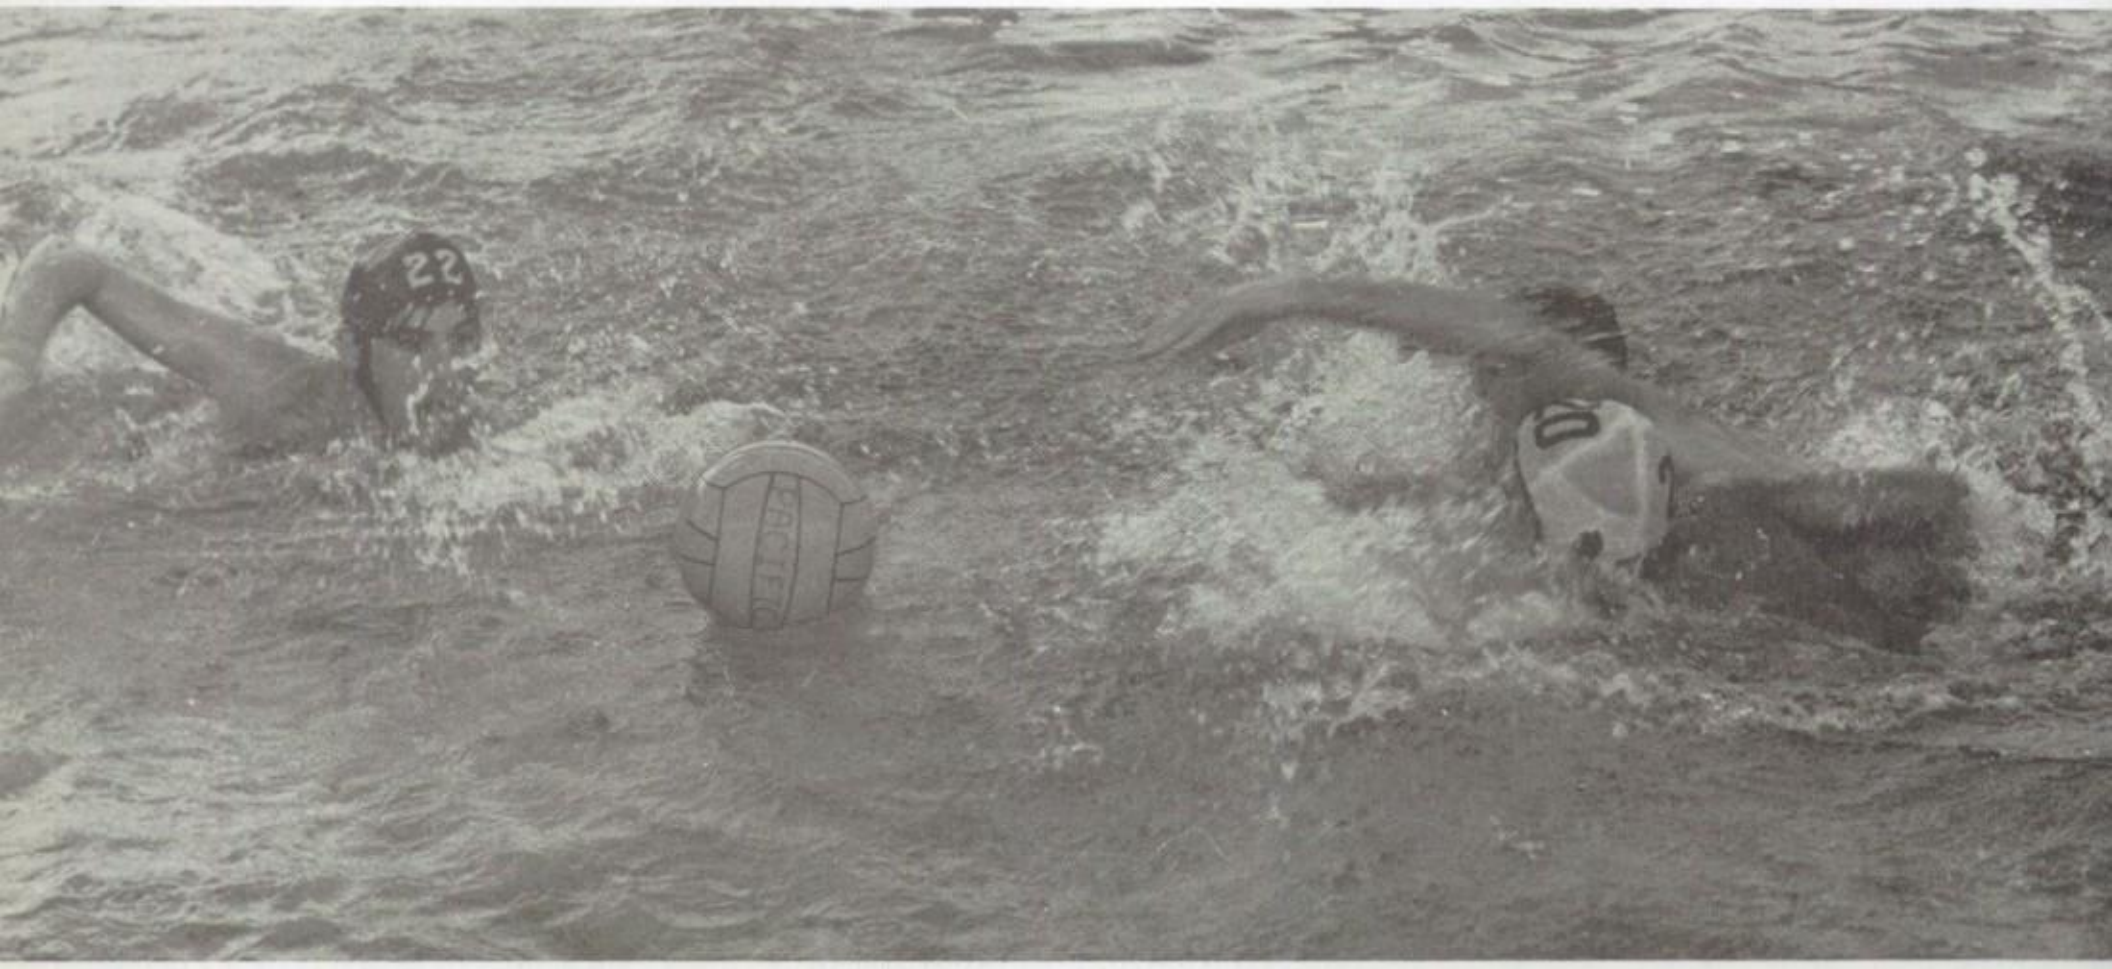
Right: Stopping a hard shot at the corner, Peter Harmon, the number one goalie for Pacific, was a strong point in the team. The most difficult position to play, goalie requires strength, quickness, and dauntless courage. Pacific High's two other goalies were Mark Gordon, who was usually more valuable as a player in the field, and Barry Kayrell, the Bee goalie and an all around player. It was a very unrewarding job, since it offered no chance to score and goalies were scolded for missing shots.

erving as a springboard to swimming, Pacific High's first ear in water polo was beneficial, if not very successful. imilar to both basketball and field hockey played in a ool, water polo is becoming a popular sport, particularly n Southern California. It requires six field players who ave speed, endurance, and skill with the ball, and a goal eeper with a sharp eye. While other teams polished fine oints of the game, Pacific, because it was their first ear, devoted several valuable weeks to learning the rules nd the basic skills which are needed to handle the ball.

WATER POLO

A Recent Addition To Fall Sports



Above: In a rare situation the Pacific goalie, Barry Kayrell, leaves the goal to retrieve a loose ball. Because it often provided an easy point, goalies seldom venture more than a yard out. At the same time an unknown Pirate and a Moreno Valley opponent fight for good position.

Left: During a two minute break between the first two quarters of the Bee game against Moreno Valley, Coach Kocher makes plans to keep any errors which might have appeared in the first period from being repeated in the remainder of the game. Pictured in water are John Wood and Gary Powers, both of whom played for the Varsity team.

Right: Guard John Pytlak, in blue, reaches to get his hand on a long shot by the opposition. It was the job of the guards to stop scoring by the other team, and to get the ball down to our forwards for a shot. In the man-on-man situation it can be very difficult to stop a skilled shot.

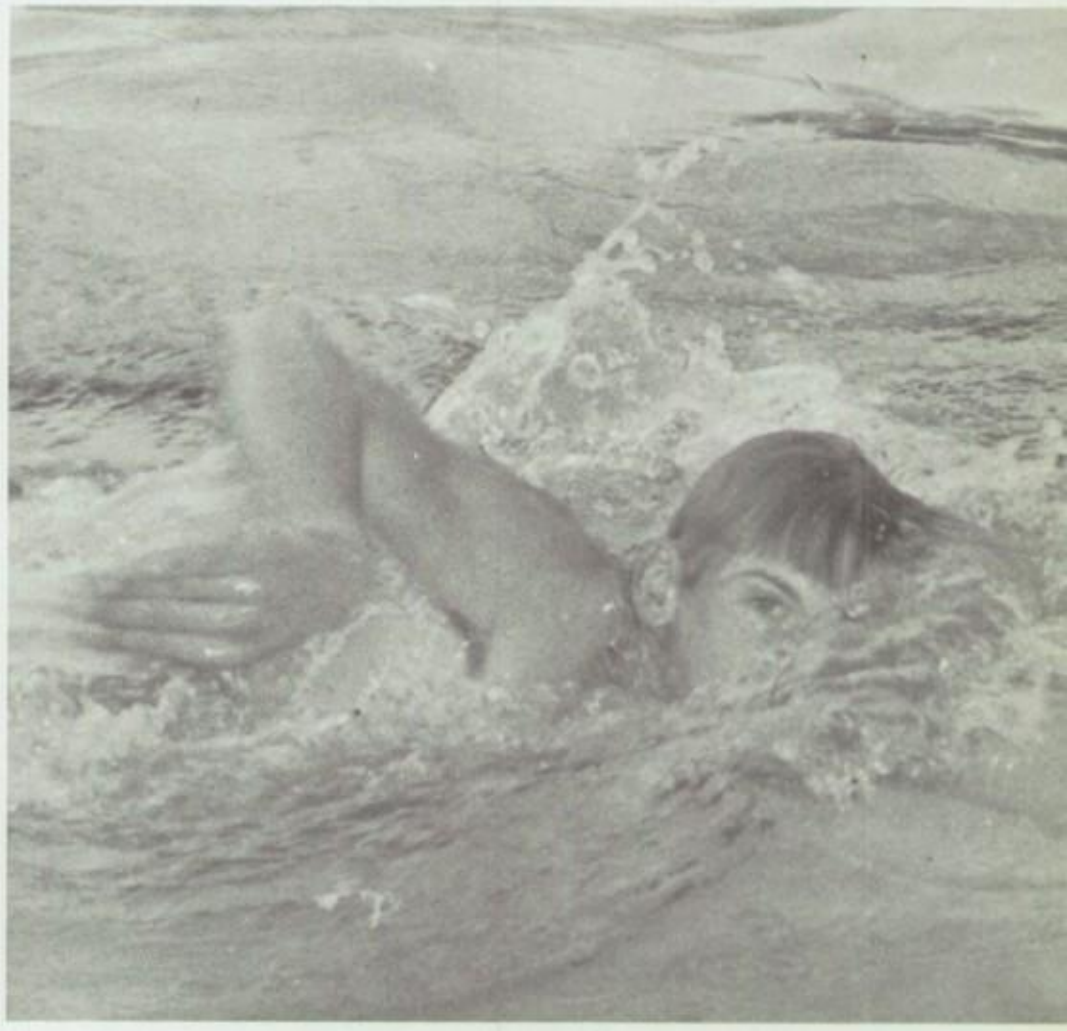
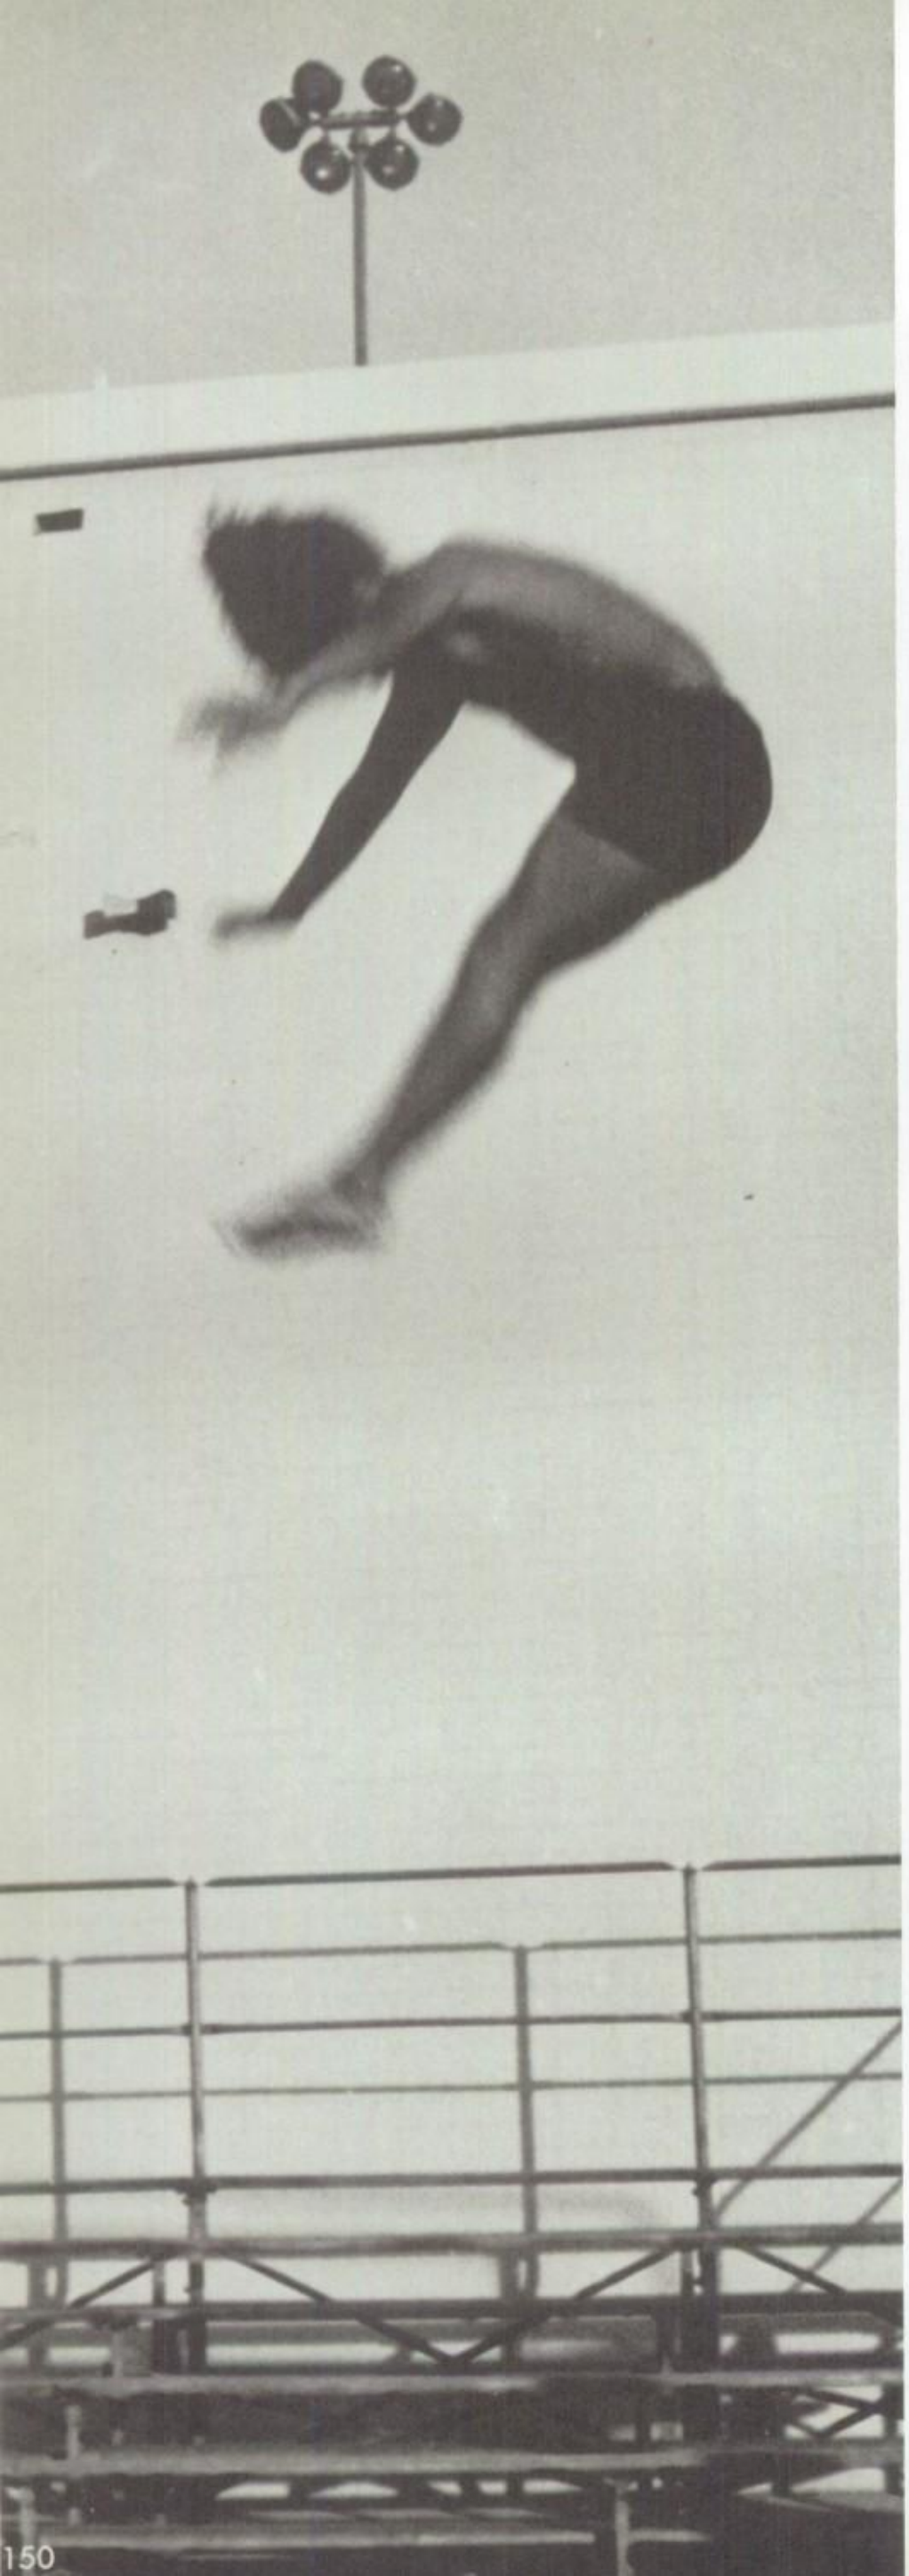
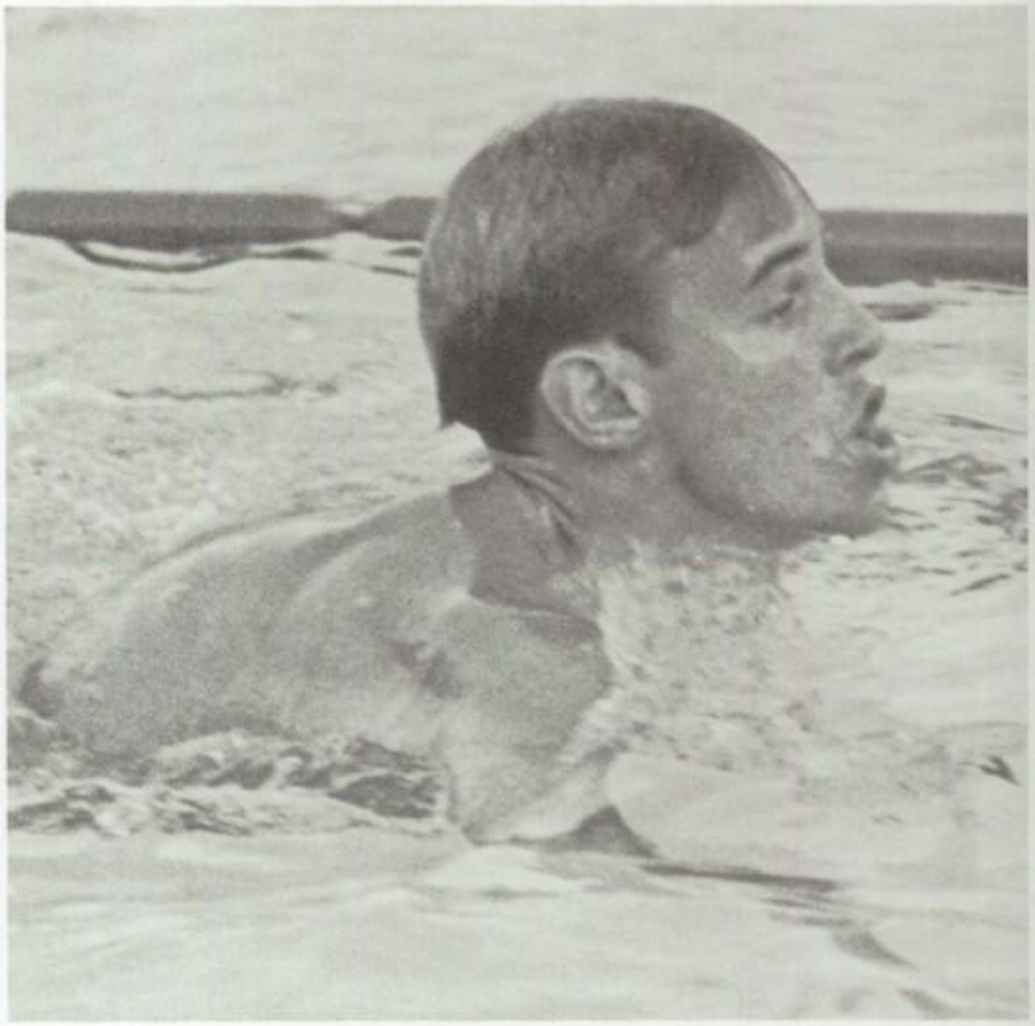
plashing through their tough CBL schedule, the Varsity wimming team turned in one of the best records in years. nder the guidance of head coach Jim Kocher and assistnt coach Dennis Williams, the team placed many swimers in the finals of the CBL meet. Those who made it to he finals were top Varsity freestyler Robert Callaway, arsity flyer Peter Nielsen, Varsity backstroker Christian ielsen, and top distance swimmers Bill Fox and David ending. Staying in top shape was a job which required any hours of practice for the swimmers and long hours f coaching by the two coaches. When the end of the seaon came in March both the coaches and swimmers were roud of themselves and their outstanding league record.



SWIMMING





Perfect Practice Made Perfect

Opposite page left: Plunging from the three meter board into twelve feet of water was David Oquendo, top Pirate diver. Oquendo teamed up with two other Sophomores, Bob Hilton and Tom Powell, to give Pacific one of its finest diving teams. All three not only dove but swam and placed well in the freestyle events of Cee and Bee teams.

Left: Taking advantage of the diving break, which occurred between the individual medley and the butterfly events, members of the swimming team filled the bleachers to relax and observe the Varsity diving competition.

Right: Timers Sue Eckhart, Sue Sharpe, Marian Mapes, Sharon Kaufman, and Sally Luly are pictured as they recorded the times for the Varsity two hundred yard individual medley event. Serving a valuable function, the work of these girls was greatly appreciated by all the team members.

Far left: Chris Nielsen displayed the breaststroke form that helped him come from behind in the Varsity two hundred yard individual medley. This event ranks as one of the most difficult in the meet with the participants swimming two lengths of each of the four strokes, butterfly, backstroke, and ending with freestyle.

Left: Coiled for a fast start are Pacific swimmers Larry Stalberg and Bob Callaway. They are shown at the start of the Varsity fifty yard freestyle in the meet aganst Norco High. Callaway got off to a perfect start and won this event. Later he also won the one hundred yard freestyle.

Right: Lunging back hard off the block was top Soph swimmer Bill Fox. Fox showed good form as he surged off the mark for a fast start in the hundred yard back. Not one of his favorite strokes, Fox made the best of it and turned in first place against a tough San Gorgonio High team.

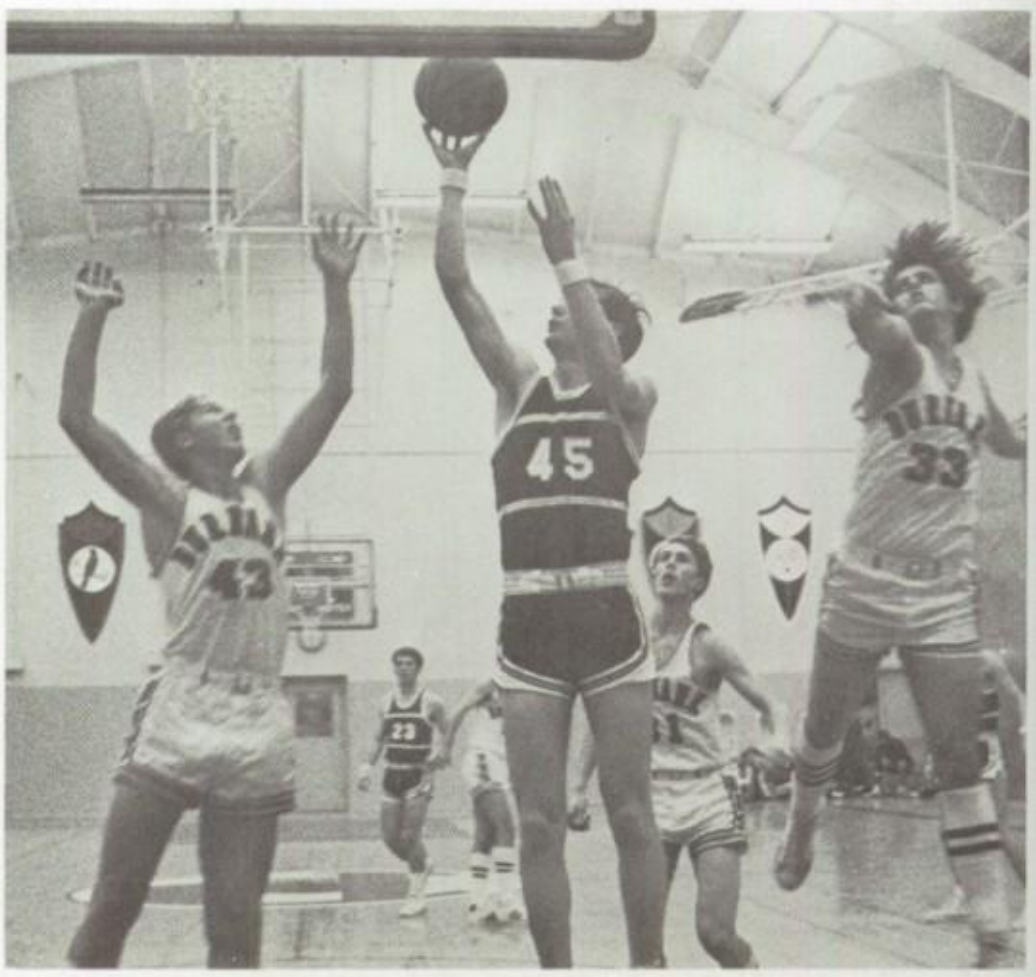
Pirates Bagged Ramona And Kiwanis Crowns



Defeating Ramona High, the Bucs captured the championship of the Ramona Invitational Tournament. Although they were sagging behind at the half, the Pirate squad came alive and defeated the Rams, 63-54. Scott Kay led the team to the title and was also named most valuable player, as he out-scored all other players in the tournament. Accompanying Kay on the all-tourney team was outstanding guard Randy Rodden. Other standouts were Larry Lockridge and Calvin Hobbs.

Pacific captured the twelfth annual San Bernardino Kiwanis Basketball Tournament title by defeating the Lions of El Monte in the championship game by the margin of 59-51. Kay scored 26 to give him a four game total of 119 points and the award for the most valuable player. While Kay was making baskets, Soph Earl Hogue was bagging rebounds. Hogue received the rebounding title with 80 in the four games.

TOURNAMENTS

Bucs Got Off To A Fast Start

Swinging through the 1970 golf season, the Pacific golf team proved to be one of the leagues toughest teams. Coach Dan Young led his team to many league victories by his constant stressing of the basic elements of the game. Even the new members of the team put in many hours of practice and showed promise for next year.

SOPHOMORE SPORTS

Showing the enthusiasm typical of the Junior Class, these girls soon discovered that individual effort was a necessary factor in producing a winning team. Sports in which these Juniors actively participated included volleyball, speed-a-way, basketball, and modern dance. Spring sports were field hockey, softball, and golf. Despite the competition displayed in the game, the players involved showed there is always a time for sportsmanship.

Basketball, Speed-A-Way, Volleyball

Above: Displaying their skills, these Juniors demonstrated their athletic abilities in an aggressive game of speed-a-way. This was one of the many enjoyable games played on the girls' athletic field.

Below: Included in their sports, volleyball was another energetic activity in which these Juniors took part. These girls rallied the ball in an effort to always improve their volleyball game.

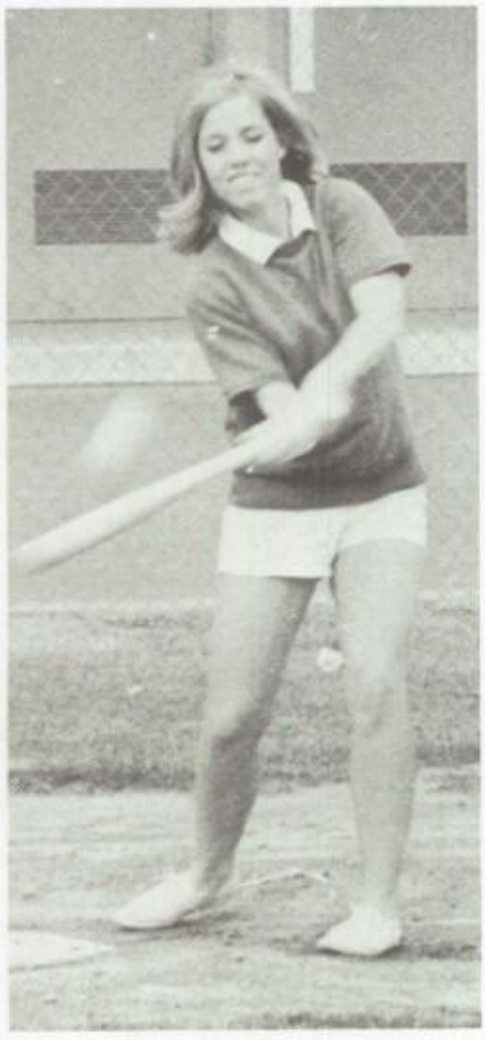
JUNIOR SPORTS

Softball, Archery

Ending their culmination of twelve years of physical education, Senior girls began the year with archery. This sport tended to emphasize individuality and to make the girls strive for the personal challenge. During the last week of shooting, the girls competed among themselves in the Pirate Round Tournament. The high point scorer for the year was Kathy Raleigh with a total 218 points. She received a trophy at the awards assembly. Tennis, softball, body conditioning, and badminton were also sports included on the schedule of the busy Seniors this year.

Lower left: Team efforts were a necessity for a successful game. Sharon Kaufman, Martha Pelkey, and Lisa Stanton worked constantly to improve their skills and softball abilities. Class unity was sparked by joint efforts.

Lower right: Utilizing her muscle coordination, Martha Pelkey showed her resourcefulness to the rest of her team, when she belted the ball for a home-run.



Right: Instructing Lisa Stanton in the proper position for sharpshooting, Mrs. Wiles was very helpful in her Senior classes. Archery was one of the girls favorite sports in which to take an active part. Each girl made an extra effort to improve her skills and aim for the Pirate Round Tournament. The girls shot from a distance of 20 to 30 yards aiming at a target or bullseye nine and a half inches in diameter.

Badminton, Tennis, Field Hockey

Supporting the athletic department, the Girls Athletic Association was constantly playing against schools in the area. Competitive sports were sponsored after school for those girls with more interest than others, who wished to participate. Members learned good sportsmanship and the reason for proper physical education. Among the various sports they took part in were tennis, basketball, volleyball, softball, and field hockey. The Girls Athletic Association also had assorted extracurricular activities such as horseback riding on different nights after school.

Top left: Displaying their abilities in badminton, G.A.A. members Debbie Bollinger and Patti Ross spent the period in an exhilarating game. Bottom left: Physical education tests were a state requirement for all students of Pacific High School, both boys and girls. These active members of the Girls Athletic Association participated in the sit-ups section of the tests. Other contests of strength and skill were the 600 yard walk-run, the 50 yard dash, the softball throw, pushups, and the standing broad jump. Below: Running the hill was an activity that proved to be very tiring for most members of the Girls Athletic Association. Although many members complained, they found it was worthwhile when physical educational tests appeared each semester because they were able to score in a higher percentile.

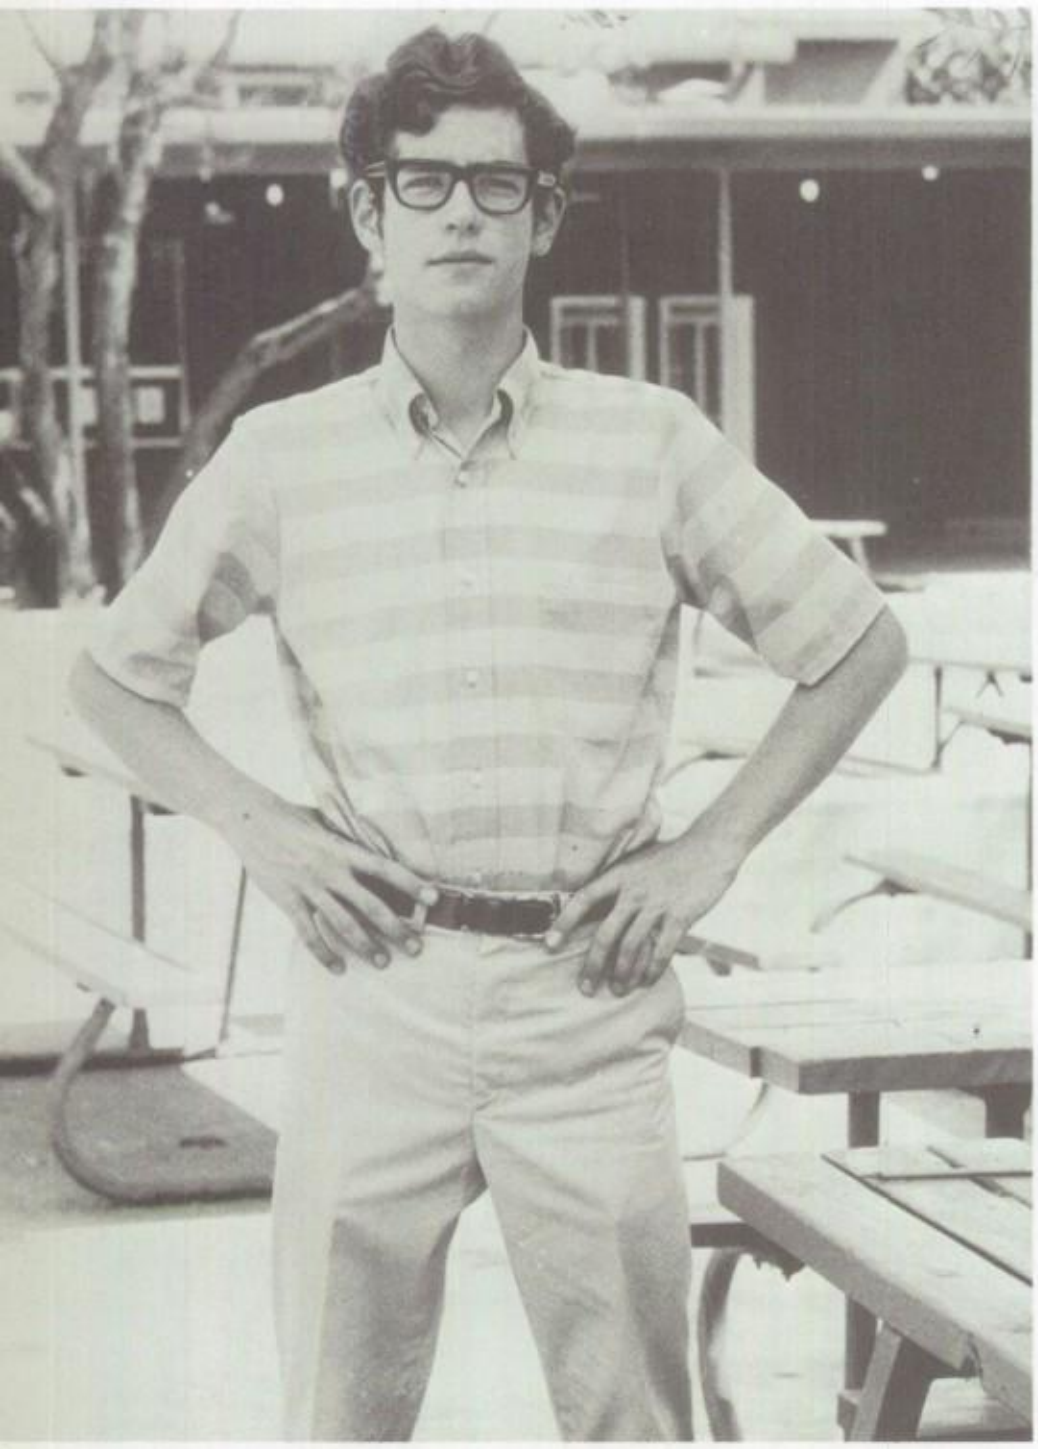
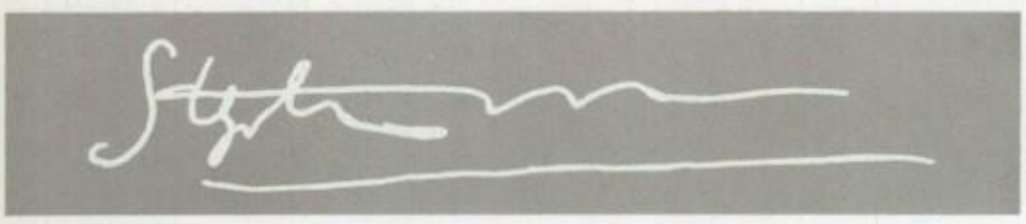
JANICE LILIENTHAL, ARTIST

Carrying on the traditions of Pacific High were the Junior Class. The Junior Class Officers led in many fund-raising events which brought in money for various activities. The Junior-Senior Prom proved to be the highlight of the year. Many of the Junior girls found it to be one of the more memorable events in their high school life. The class officers organized many opportunities for the Junior Class to become unified by working together on money-making projects for the Prom. The Class of '71 saluted their prosperous year to go on to seniorhood and opportunities.

Officers And Sponsors Worked Together To Attain Their Goals



"Admirably meeting the challenge of creating order out of chaos was the class of '71. Led by the seven officers, Juniors pooled their talents and ambitions and set them to the task of raising money and spending it. In this way the Prom, always a formidable project, came to pass. But more important by far, than such an ephemeral thing as the Prom, were the concerns of humanity which the class generously espoused with its hard-earned money. To accomplish these things with the many dedicated individuals who were outstanding in their class was for me an unforgettable and an immensely rewarding experience."



Thinking up new ways to earn money for the Prom was the most important job of the Junior class officers. The officers for last year were from top to bottom: Harvey Hoffman, Treasurer; Debbi Bollinger, Representative; Debbi McCaw, Secretary; Michell Davies, Representative; John Wood, Vice-President; Bruce Goldstein, Representative; and Steve Morris, President of the Junior Class.

Juniors Strove Through Education

he class of '71 found that there were many new and op-ortune experiences for them this year. There was free-om to choose English classes that they were interested . This also meant that the students had to devote more ne to learning their lessons. U.S. History was divided to two sections. One semester Juniors took U.S. History, e other semester they had the chance to pick a differ-t type of history. Some of the courses offered were Latin nerican History, California History, and Economics.

paring to do an Art Nouveau nal, Janice Lilienthal and ry Ramsey worked on a er. Decorating the Mission was very challenging, but Prom Committee members overcame the problems with originality and imagination. Posters and lamps with a stained-glass effect provided the setting for a romantic evening. Couples looked back with fond memories.

owing the standing tradition of putting on the prom in spring, the Prom Committee members accepted the ponsibility with enthusiasm. They started in the begin- g of the year with many fund raising projects, including washes, bake sales, selling class pins, and assemb- key chains for Santa Fe Federal. Lamps and posters stained glass effects created a romantic evening.

Right: Enjoying the beautiful scenery at Mission Inn, Becci and Rick relaxed for a while. Tux courtesy of Jim Hancock's.

Deciding to hold the Prom at the Mission Inn was a new innovation, but it also posed various problems for the Juniors. The Spanish foundation went perfectly with the Art Nouveau style, but the co-ordinating of the two had to be carefully planned. This past year's Prom was quite tastefully done and turned out very graceful and elegant.

Junior Princess

Presenting the 1970 basketball homecoming court was Jeff Shane. It took hours of planning and preparation to bring about the eventful night. Students packed the gym to witness the basketball game against Eisenhower High School, and the half-time coronation. This game was significant for the battle for the C.B.L. title and the California Interscholastic Federation rating. It was a very tense basketball game, but the Pirates succumbed to the sharp shooting of the Eagles. Choosing the Junior Princess was one important occurrenoe during the past school year. Right: Tina Preciado and her escort, George Negette, were seen watching the homecoming game with hopes of victory, which vanished, because we lost the game.

The Age of Aquarius was the theme for the 1970 bas ketball homecoming. During the halftime ceremonie Tina Preciado, an Aires, accepted the honor of bein Junior Princess. Other candidates for the title wer Scorpio, Lyn Bromberg; Debi Johnson, a Gemini; an Becci Ringstad, also a Gemini. Students on campuses throughout the country tried to im prove their academic environment. The curriculum underwen changes to make courses more relevant to the problems con cerning our country. Many Pacific students took part in scho lastic activities, learning together about the Arts, Sciences and Languages, while also learning to be better individuals

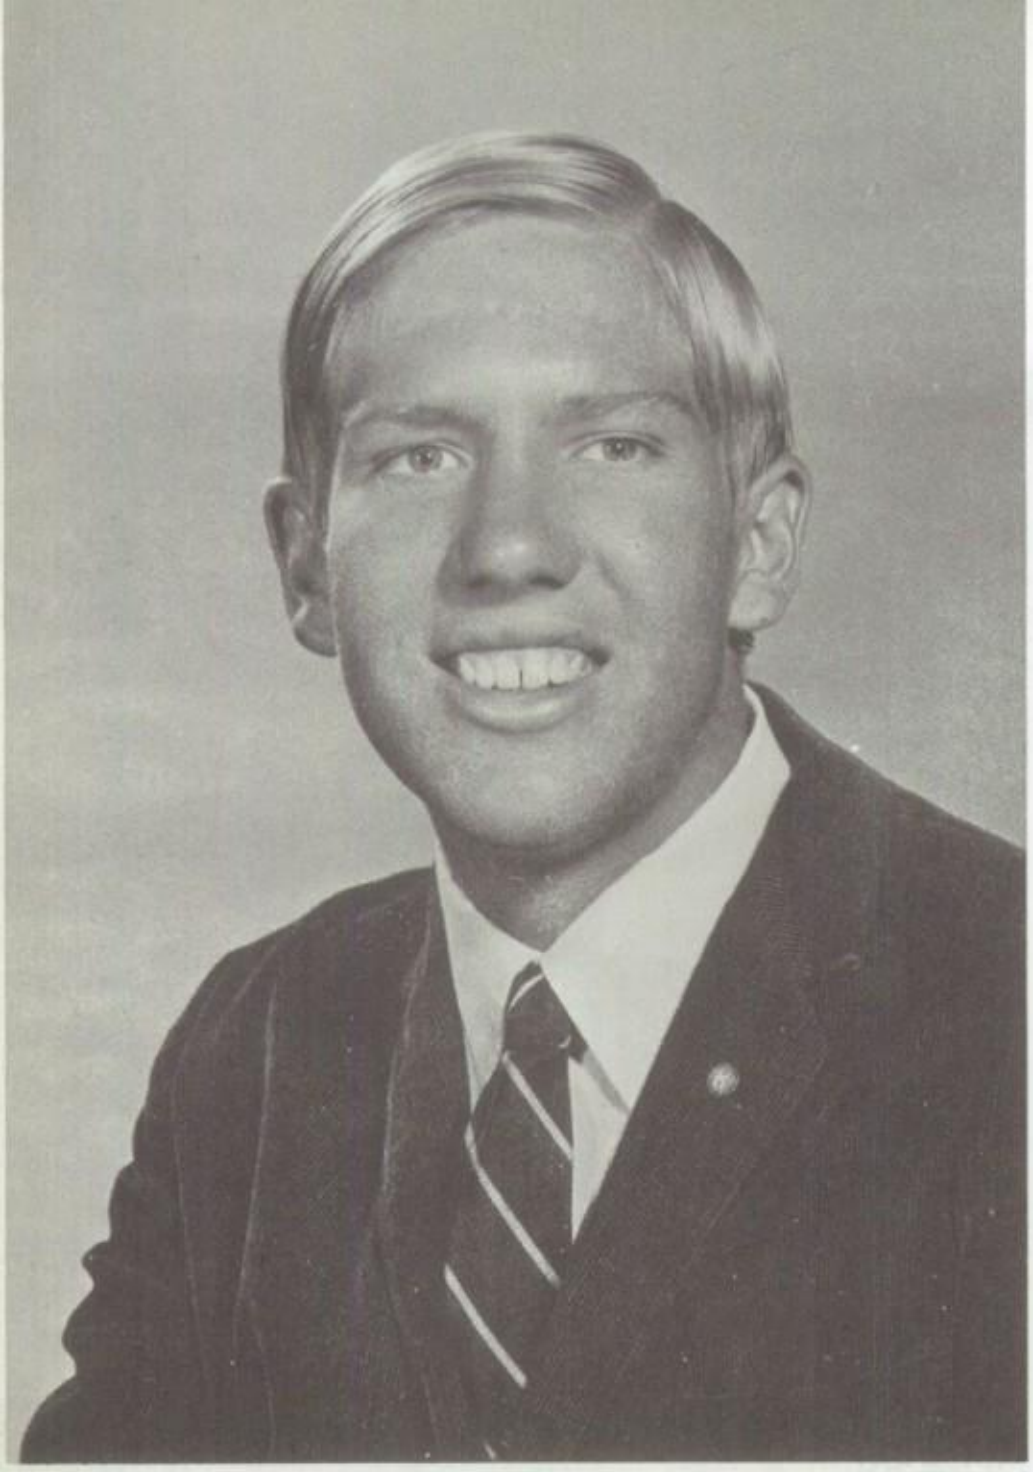
ACADEMICS



Representing Pacific High this year as Student Body President has been an enjoyable and fruitful experience. We, as students, have made many lasting friendships and I believe we will accomplish much in all our future endeavors.

Production of the annual required much time and patience from the editors and staff. The theme of "A Time For Peace", used throughout the annual, stresses the awareness of contemporary problems of youth of today. Since deadlines had to be met often, it was imperative that the students learned to work together. After the deadlines, everyone enjoyed the leisurely pace again. At the end of the year, the editors and staff members rejoiced at their finished product: the 1970 Pacificana.

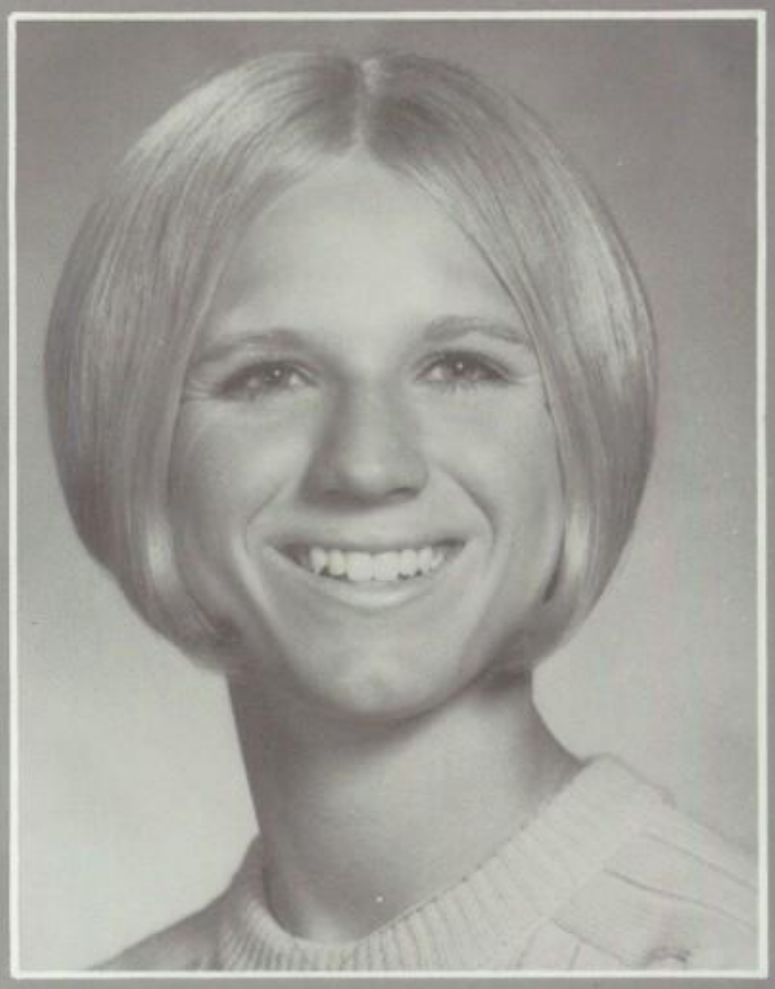
Becky, the only valedictorian of her class, was active in many facets of school life. Besides being a section editor of the annual, she was a member of the choir and a participant in clubs such as the "Z" Club.

Excelling in the field of math, Becky was efficient in completing the assigned homework.

VALEDICTORIAN

Vicki Rudh



Retaining a GPA of 3.98, Vicki earned the honor of being a salutatorian. Her activities included being a prom chairman and the vice-president of "Z" Club. She also attended classes at Cal State as a Senior.

Consisting of financial aid for college tuition, California State Scholarships were awarded to students scoring high on SAT tests. Only other requirement was the proof of financial need. The scholarships were renewable for four years and they helped students to get an education.

Displaying the friendship of our neighbors in South America, Alfredo Alvarez spent a year among students at Pacific. This experience was not only beneficial to him but it also gave students a chance to learn to live in peace with people of other nations.

Below: Alfredo found himself busy working on various art projects. Art was one of his major interests at Pacific. He is shown here creating some reindeer for a holiday display.

PERU

Else Hafvenstein

Representing the Youth for Understanding program, Else Hafvenstein was accepted by the students in all areas of student life.

Below: Else and A.S.B. president Jim Byer went over some current work. Else was a very active member of Student Council. She also participated in clubs such as the Sobobans.

Lower right: Learning from one another was an essential part of the meetings at the hotel. Circular discussion was one way in which to lessen tensions and bring about honest talks.

Attempting to improve the racial tolerance between the students, Pacific participated in the Human Relations Program. This program consisted of a series of conferences between students of all backgrounds. Held at the Arrowhead Springs Hotel, these meetings allowed everyone to speak freely and express opinions on the viewpoints of others. Representatives from the various sessions were sent to meetings with members of the Board of Education, local business leaders, and other adults of importance. Funds necessary for the continuation and expansion of the program were raised at various local events.

Enlightenment Through Books

his year Mr. Jones, the head librarian, offered Pacific's tudents a home away from home. It seemed that many eople came in not only to be relieved of teachers and sts but they also used the facilities to relax in the cool, r-conditioned atmosphere. Students studying for as- gnments and finals found the library to be quiet, serene, nd very helpful to them. Quite often Mr. Jones would lay thought-provoking music. This enabled students to e in the same environment as was found in their homes.

House of Representatives actively participated this year in improving the conditions at Pacific High. They voiced many opinions on the fence, cafeteria food, and noon activities. There were answers to their inquiries and some action was taken. Being a member of the House of Representatives helped prepare students to be active citizens.

Presiding over the meetings of the House was Larry Stahlberg.

Representatives from each history class observed and participated in the House of Representatives. They brought varied opinions and suggestions of their classmates to the meetings.

Speakers were worthy contributions to the academic life at Pacific High. Far left: One very interesting speaker talked on the subject of probability and the effect it has on our lives.

Left: Interesting and informative biographies of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were given at two forums for the Junior and Senior history classes.

Right: Forum passes were a common sight this year. Allowing the students to get into forums, these passes were sought after by all interested students.

PACIFIC P.F. FORUM

Forums this year at Pacific were a great asset to the st dents. Consisting of smaller groups whose field of stu pertained to the informative discussions, students had t opportunity to ask pertinent questions at the end of le tures. Programs for music students were also presente Giving students a choice, the Social Studies Department offered semester courses on such subjects as World History, American History, Comparative Economics, Problems of Democracy, and History of Minorities. Classes in these areas gave students a wide range of academic possibilities while giving them insight into fields which appealed to individual interests. Under the new system, seniors were required to take one semester of Problems, then could take a semester of an elective. Juniors could take American History or Minorities, while sophomores took World History.

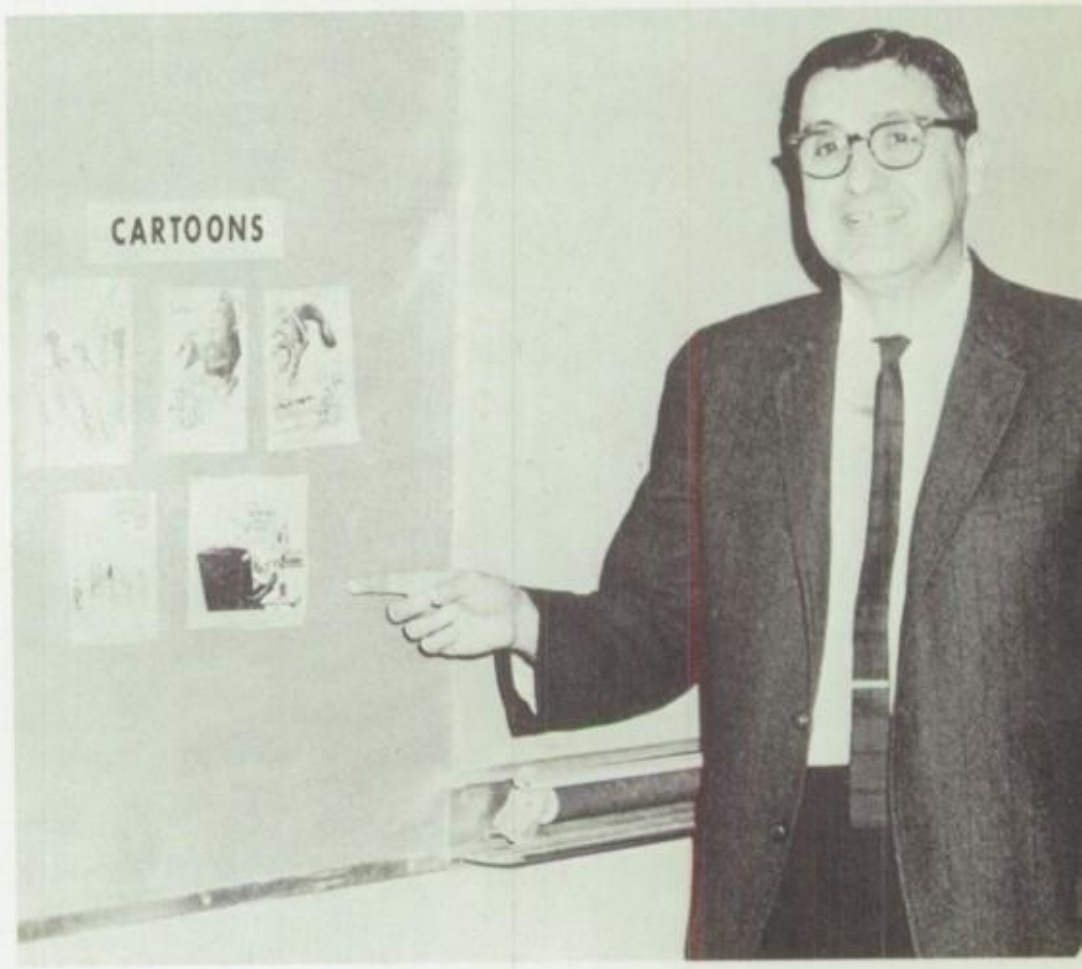
Below: Discussing with his class the different backgrounds of minorities, Mr. Edinburgh related humorous stories that had racial themes. His course was popular with students of all backgrounds.

Right: Discovering some interesting facts about her home state was a challenge to one of the students of Mr. Martinez's California History class. The class was very diverse and stimulating.

The New System Brought Long-Needed Changes



ove right: Discussing current airs was an important segment Mr. Martinez's Problems class-. He used news clippings to gment his talks. Behind the wheel was a favorite section of the course.

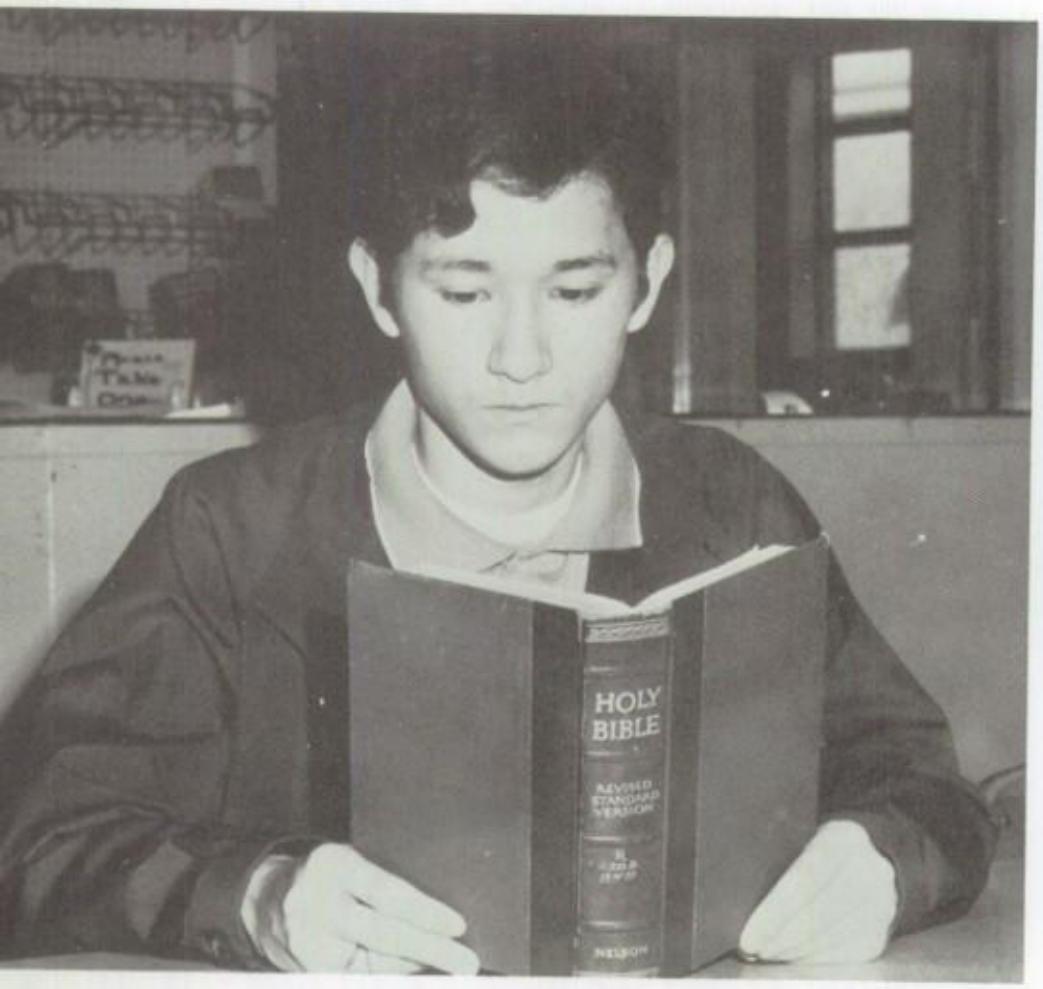
Intelligence Emanated In Illustrious English



Pacific High School decided to try a new English system this past year. It was based on the quarter system, with a choice of different classes each quarter. These classes ranged from Mark Twain to Mythology, and gave every student a choice of the classes he wanted to take. The only disadvantage, however, was the grading system. At the end of the semester the two grades were averaged together. In some cases this caused a problem, but did not stop students from benefiting from the program.

Left: Reading the book of Genesis, Eric Pugh discovered that his Bible Literature class was one of the more interesting English electives. Below: Contemporary Humanities, a very popular course, allowed students to express their feelings about the world in collages and projects.

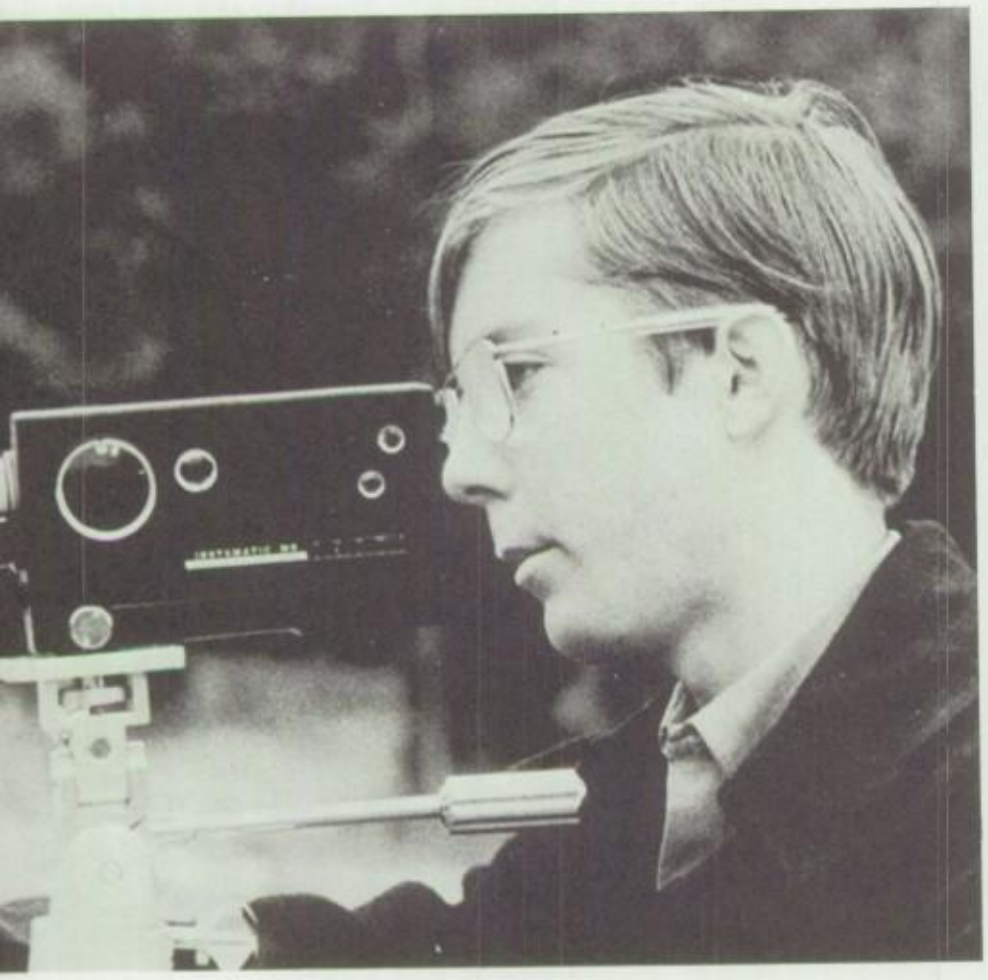
Pacific Originals



Using the theme "Sun and Shadow," the Pacific Originals staff concentrated on producing an anthology of quality. Over 500 entries were submitted but only the most creative were published. The project was under the supervision of Georgia Stathis with a staff of about twenty students. A tea was held to honor students whose work was accepted and an award was given for each class.

Above: Under the direction of editor Susie Paxton the members of the Originals staff worked daily to pick the articles for the book.

Below: Participating in the Pacific Originals project, science-fiction writer Ray Bradbury assisted the staff in handing out the awards.

Expression was encouraged for students in the art department. Some courses offered were Color and Design, Crafts and Ceramics. Examples of students' work could be found in art rooms and art shows throughout the city.

Invested with the largest budget of any department at Pacific, the Applied Arts Department enriched the educational environment of our school by providing both creative and practical training for a great number of students. Mr. Les Nielsen, art instructor and annual advisor, was chairman of the department, which included three basic fields of interest. Over 1,000 students enrolled.

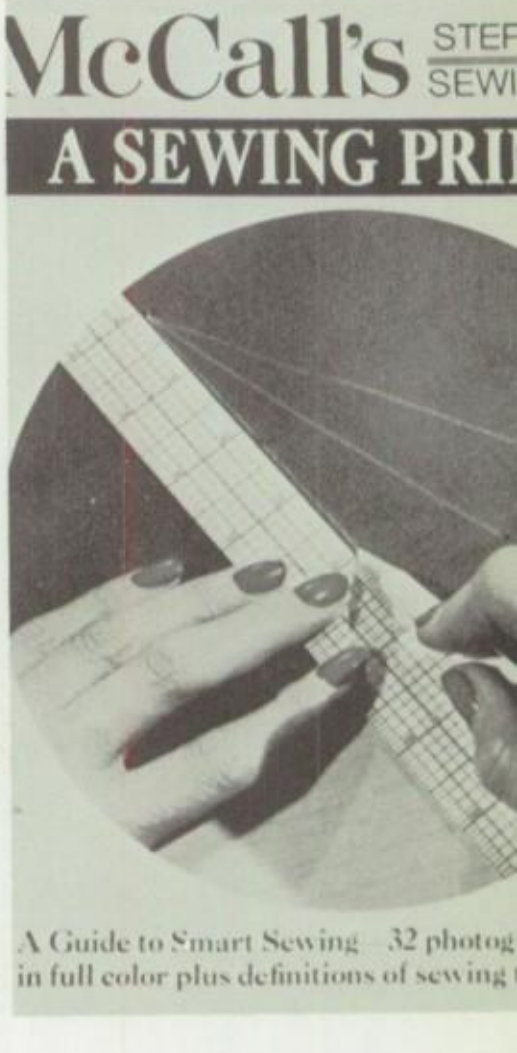
Below: Tim Rauk, an able photographer, watched the latent image of a picture develop. He was one of many students who found an outlet for his creative talents in photographic art.

Homemaking

Preparing for the future, the homemaking department stressed creativity in all aspects of home life. Practicing their culinary arts, they prepared delicious foods. Students also learned sewing techniques and child care.

Above: Checking her baked goods, Bernie Hall discovered that all was fine inside the oven. Proper use of the kitchen equipment was an important aspect of learning in homemaking courses.

Below center: Sprinkling brown sugar on decorative dish, made of peach halves and marshmallows, Marilyn Jordon found she had a talent for cooking. Below right: Students learned to sew.



"Deadwood Dick"

Starting the year off right, Mr. Miller's Play Production class presented the hilarious play "Deadwood Dick." This dashing romantic western included all the parts essential to a successful adventure. Utilizing the themes of good guy vs. bad guy, girl meets boy, kidnapping and violence, the students presented two hours of sheer enjoyment. The experience gained from this show was useful to those wanting to learn self-expression.

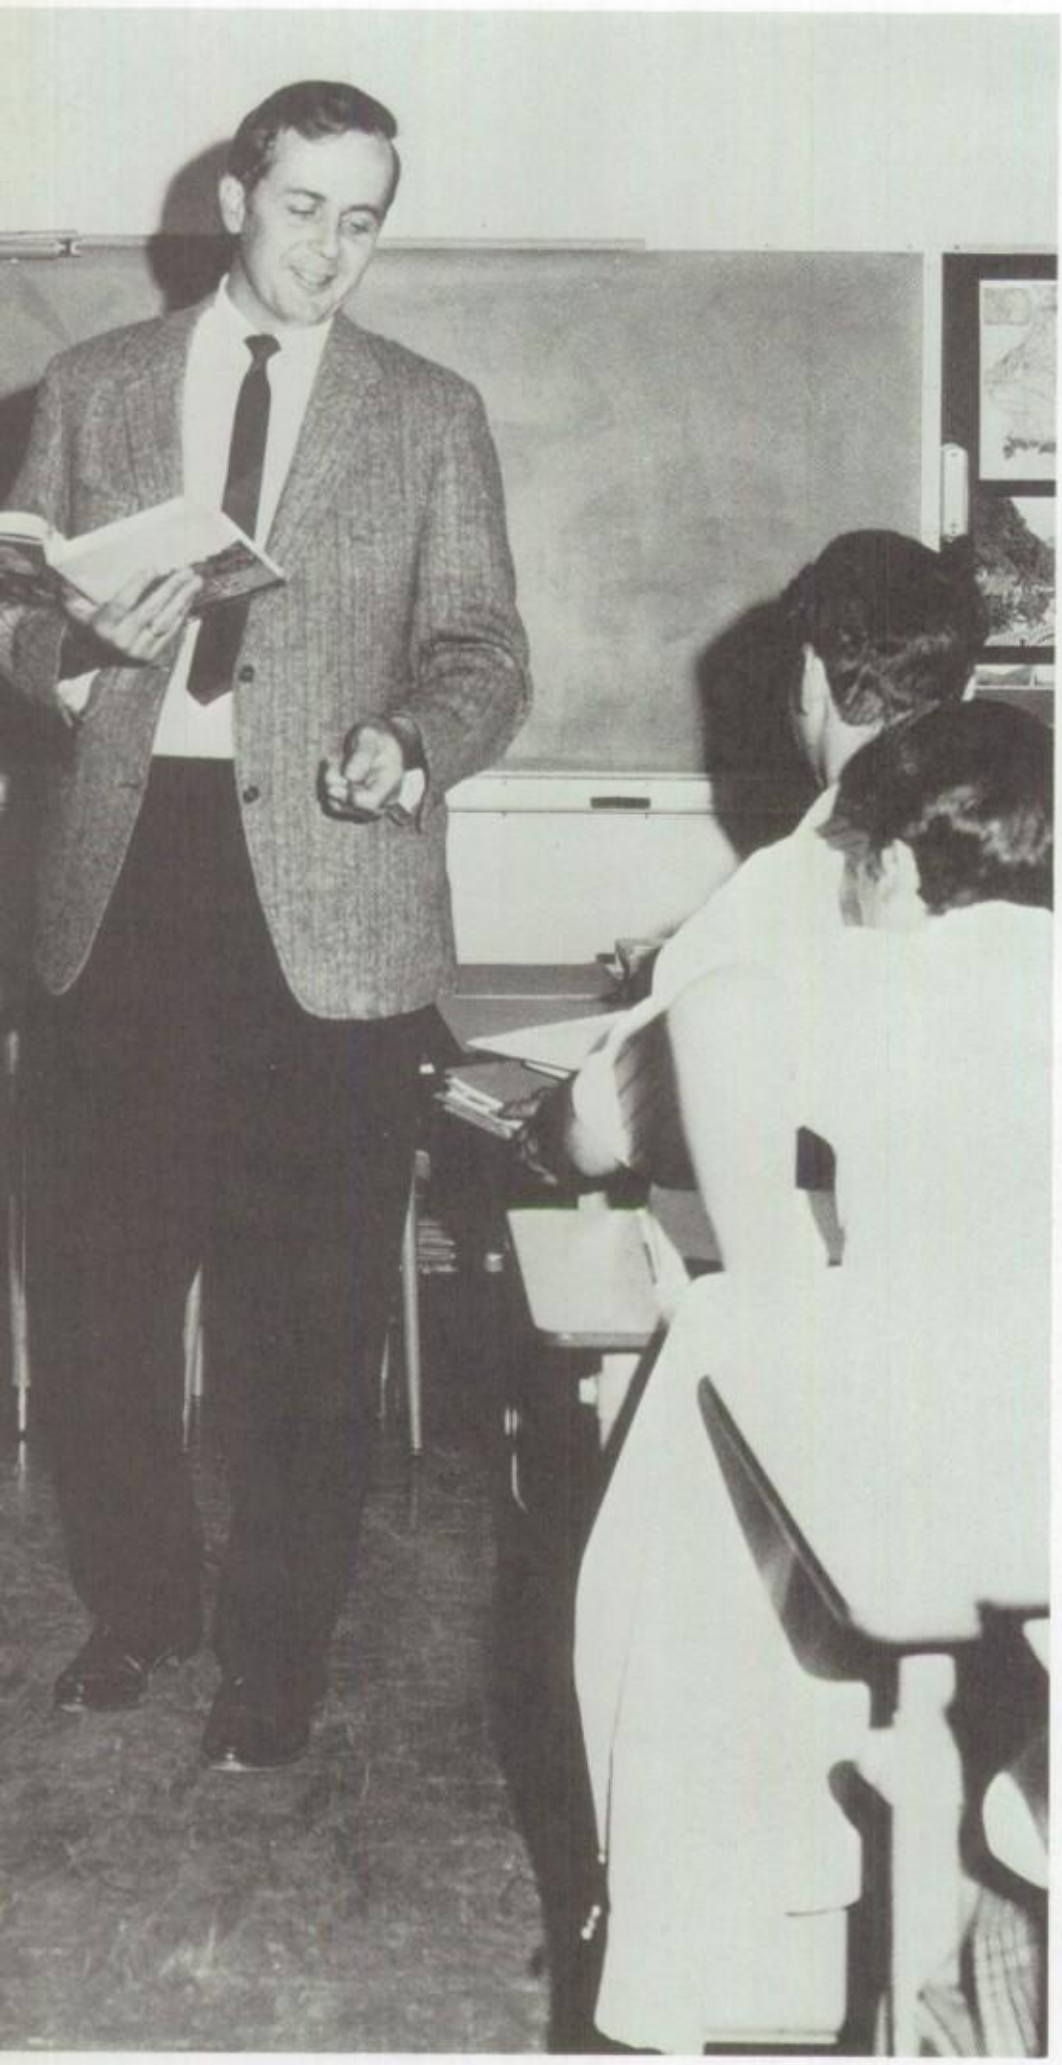
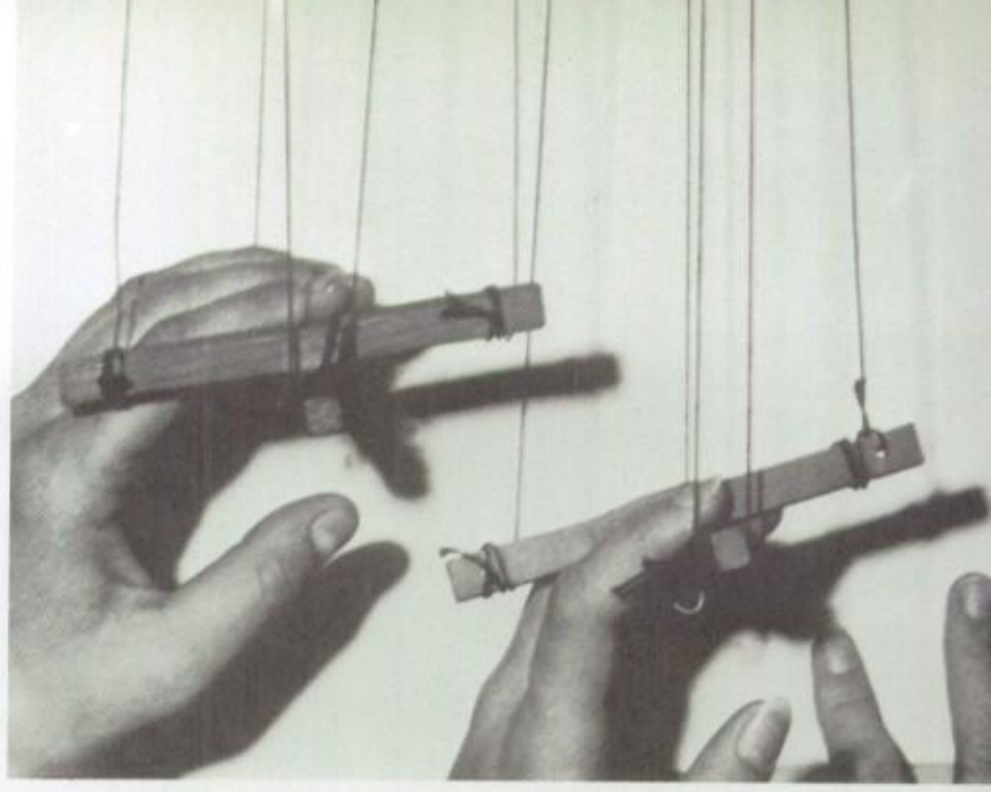
Above: Working behind the scenes, Harris Meyers controlled the lights and curtains, giving the plays dramatic effects. Right: Early before the play, the actors were found helping each other with their make-up, costumes, or studying lines.

Behind the curtains the scene was busy. People were in the midst of a seemingly endless confusion. Lost costumes were being looked for, some lines were forgotten, and props were being misplaced. The director and stage hands worried about the curtain rising on time but everything was brought under control. The final applause was reward enough for the actors.

DRAMA





Becoming increasingly involved in the many aspects of other languages was the goal of French, German, Spanish and Latin students. Besides learning another language, students were exposed to other people's way of life. This experience in communication was an excellent basic study for those students who planned on college.

Opposite page: Reading a German lesson to his class, Mr. Havemann demonstrated correct pronunciation. Stories, oral discussions, and questions were the main ways in which students learned how to speak and understand another language. Advanced German classes also studied books about Germany.

Right: Using the headphone gear in the Spanish Lab was beneficial to Daniel Cardenas. This device enabled students to hear recorded lessons and repeat the foreign phrases. One advantage of this was that the teacher was able to cut into each student's speaker and give individual help.

Below: Seminar discussions in the advanced Latin class were one way in which students furthered their knowledge. Not only did students learn to communicate in another language, they discovered that the Latin words could be very helpful in their better understanding of English.

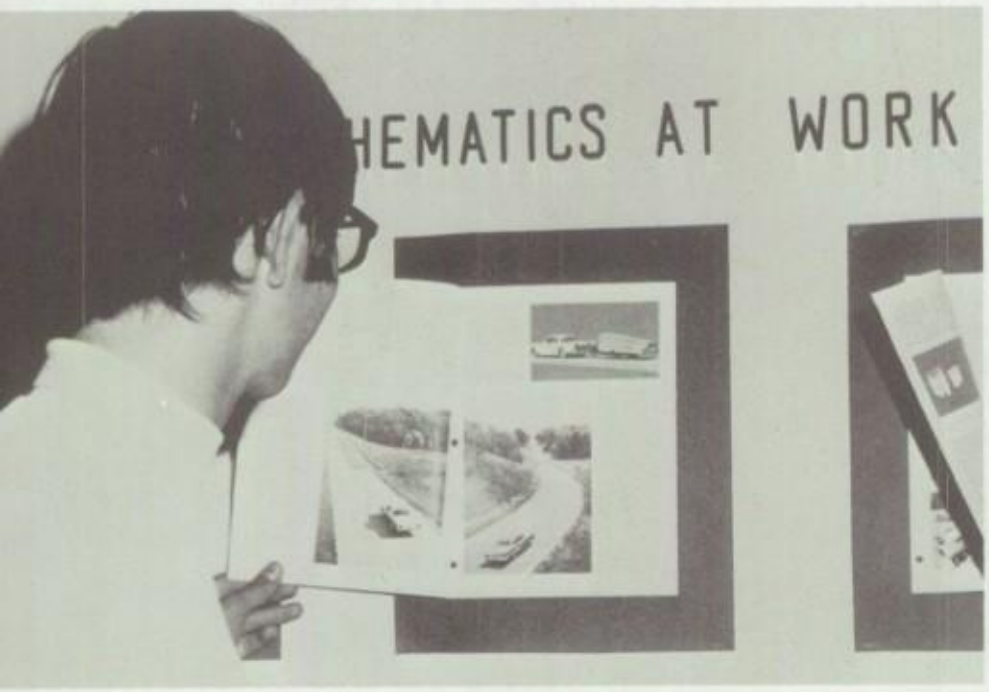
Precise Logic And Calculations

With the increasing emphasis placed on technology, more and more students became involved in the Math and Science programs. Realizing the importance of these subjects in future occupations, interested students strove to comprehend the ideas that were given to them by their instructors. Constant study of details was necessary.

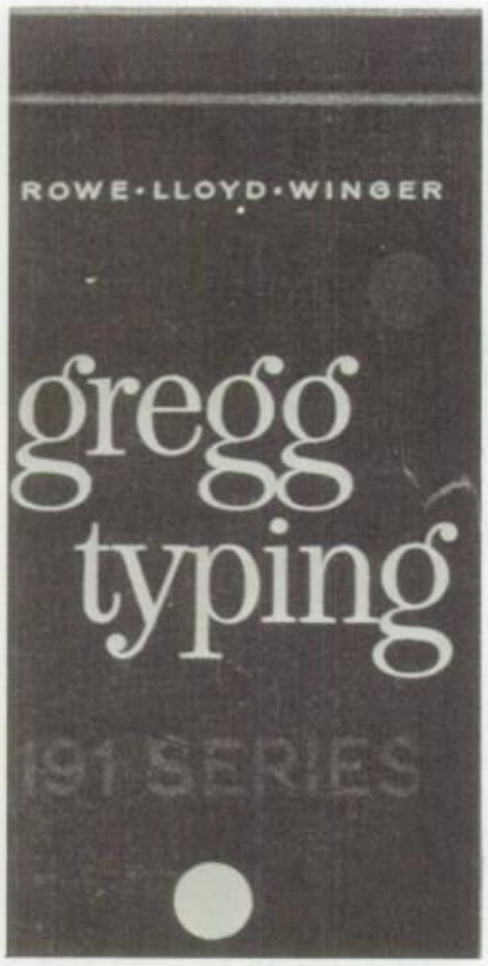
elow: Walter Boltz, an A.F.S. udent, found that he had time study a mathematical article om one of the numerous bulle- boards which were provided teachers. These boards often d useful and helpful informa- n. At the same time they suc- eded in brightening up rooms.

Right: Mrs. Bader tried to give assistance to her students whenever it was possible. Approach to teaching proved to be very effective because they were able to get help in the areas that they needed. Another benefit was that the teachers were able to get to know members of the classroom.



MATH

Machines, Skills, Accuracy and Accomplishments



Business students found that practice was necessary in developing their skills. This process was time consuming but the results were worth striving for. Along with typing and shorthand classes there were opportunities for office practice within the school from attendance office and counselors.

Far right: Collecting the class roll books was one of the chores that was undertaken by the girls who worked in the attendance office. Lower left: Debi Bollinger spent part of her spare time helping Mr. Lackner, a counselor, with the tasks that he did not have time to do. Below: Learning to take dictation was not as easy a job as some students expected. Until they became used to taking shorthand, some of the girls felt that it was similar to writing in another language.

Right: Students such as Linda Chavez discovered that changing the ribbon of a typewriter was a necessary skill to learn. Center right: Contemplating her current assignment, a girl took a rest from the tedious pace that had to be maintained in an office situation. Far right: Jimmy Coronado was only one of many boys taking a typing class as an elective. Boys could use the skills they learned for typing up their assignments and also they could use their typing for future jobs.

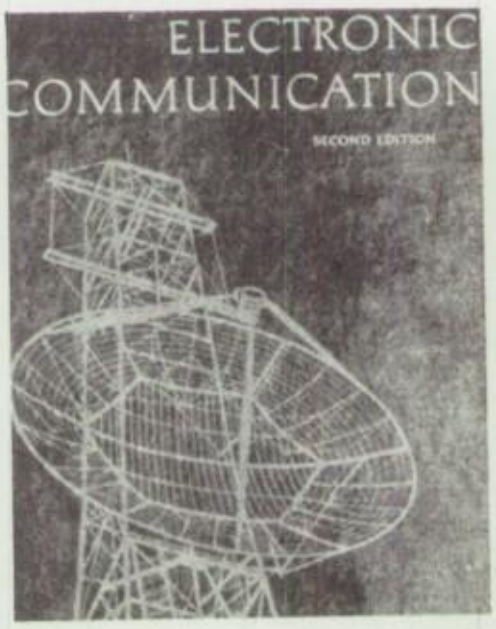
Despite the discontinuance of Welding Shop because of a lack of funds, Pacific High's Industrial Arts Program was a contributing factor to many of the year's functions. Besides providing students with useful trade skills in eight different fields, including seven selected Agricultural, two Cabinet Shop, two Sheet Metal, three Auto Shop, two Electronics, two Drafting, and two Print Shop classes, the vocational program aided in several activities.



Provided with useful training, the students of woodshop worked diligently on various projects throughout the year. The course offered instruction in areas from the basic construction of simple items to the more complex skills needed by advanced students. Right: Senior Gary Wootten made use of the band saw to cut out a very unusual project, a handcuff.

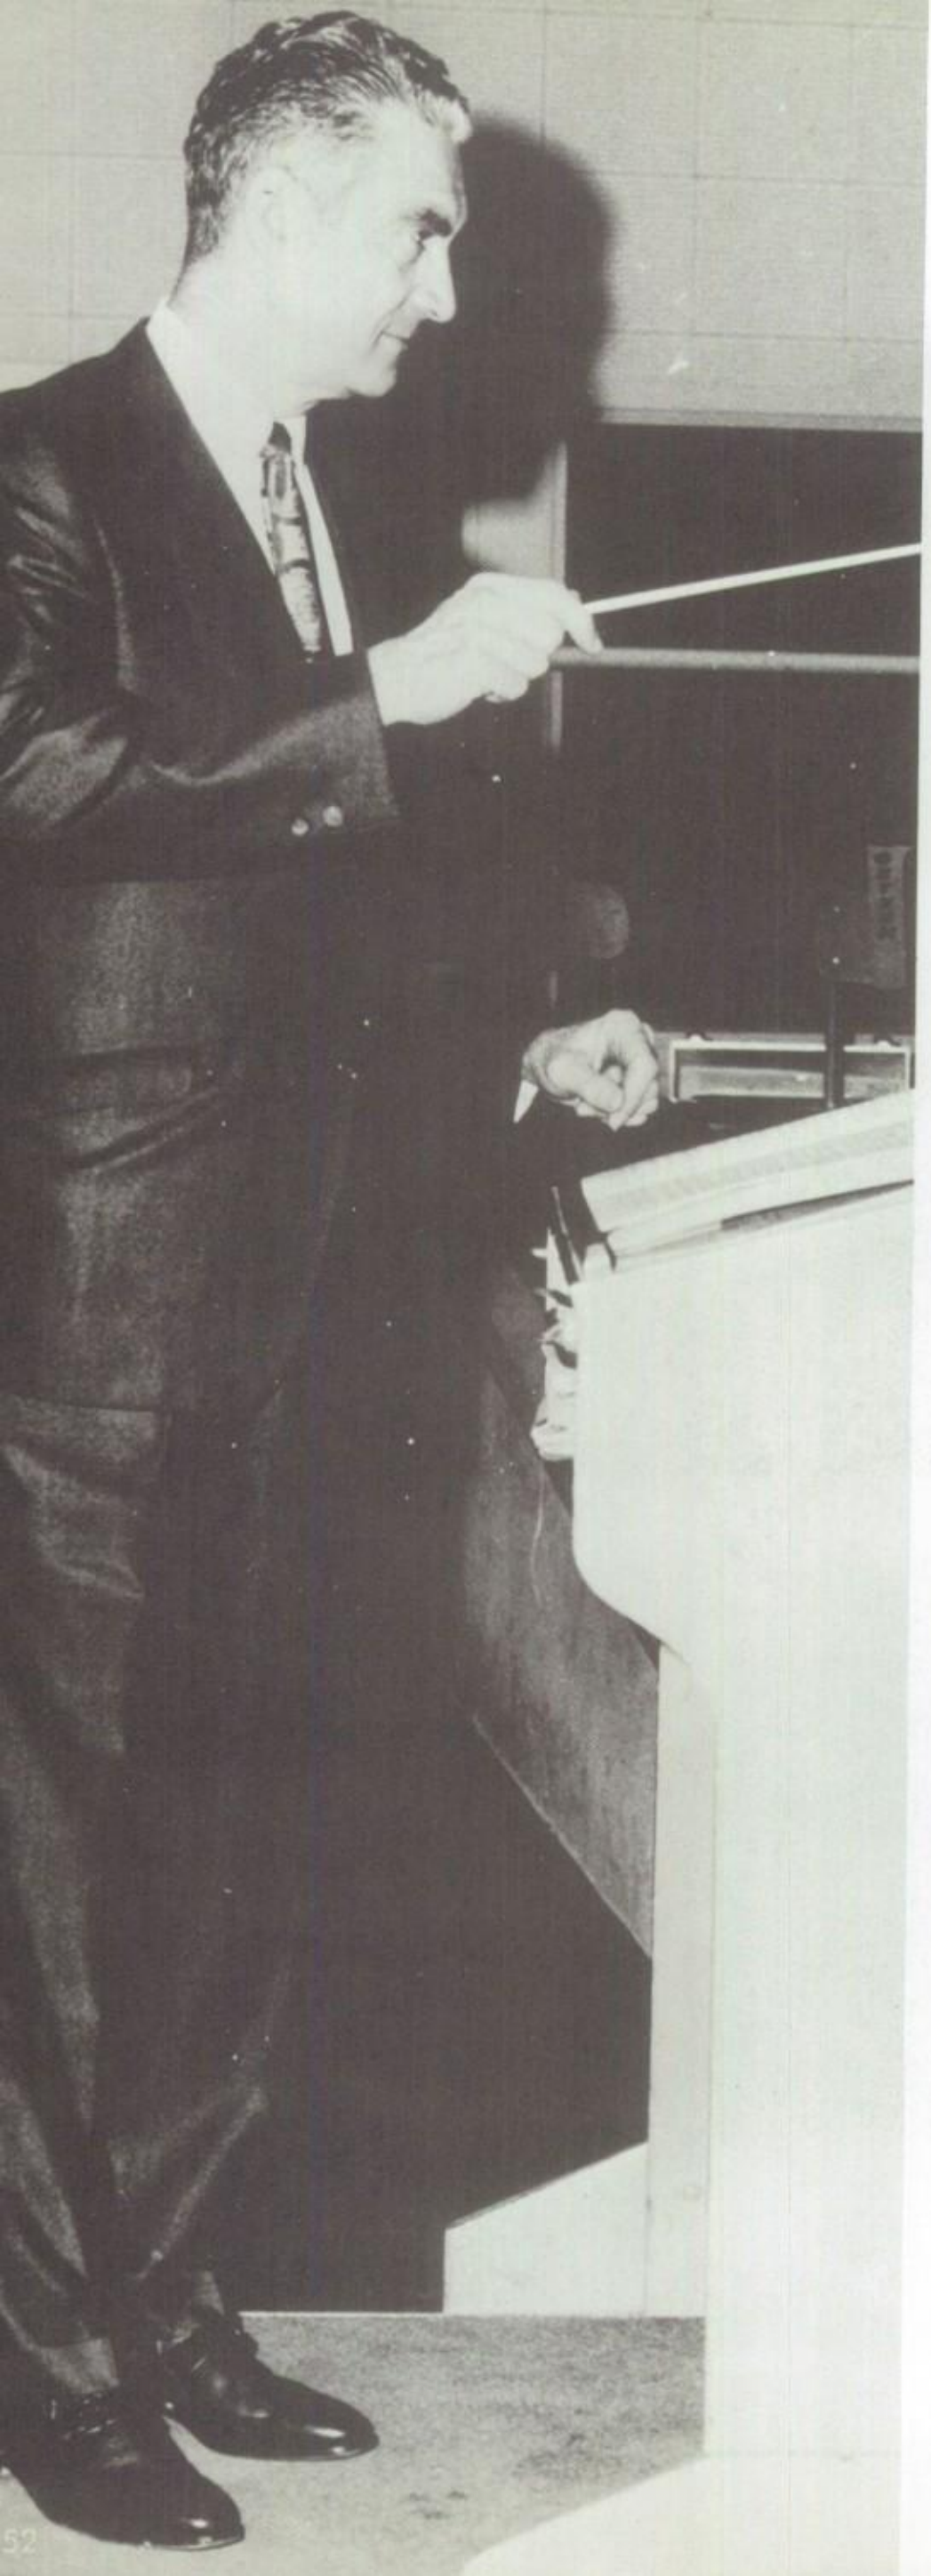
Bringing to the school many pleasurable memories of choral music was a function of the Pacific High vocal groups. Under the capable direction of Mr. John Will, these groups performed throughout the year. The smallest of the groups was the Vocal Ensemble. Members of this group were personally selected to be representatives of the music department. They culminated their year by presentation of an original musical comedy. Other groups were the Choir and the Girls' Chorus. Their main performances were in the Christmas Program, during awards assemblies and festivals. The Choir also took part in a city-wide Mass Choir Concert.



Combining musical abilities and interests, the Pacific High instrumental department offered students opportunity to advance their talent in music. Classes available were Orchestra, Stage Band, Marching Band, and Wind Ensemble. The District Music Festival, held at Pacific in March, involved the Band and Orchestra, and brought honors to both groups. Some talented instrumental music students from Pacific were honored by being chosen to participate in state or national groups.

Adding to the versatile student body at Pacific High this past year, the Class of '72 took advantage of the many edu cational opportunities afforded them. They were active in athletics and clubs, and joined the upperclassmen by achieving high grades and being able to join NHS and CSF
Pacific High welcomed an outstanding group to its campus

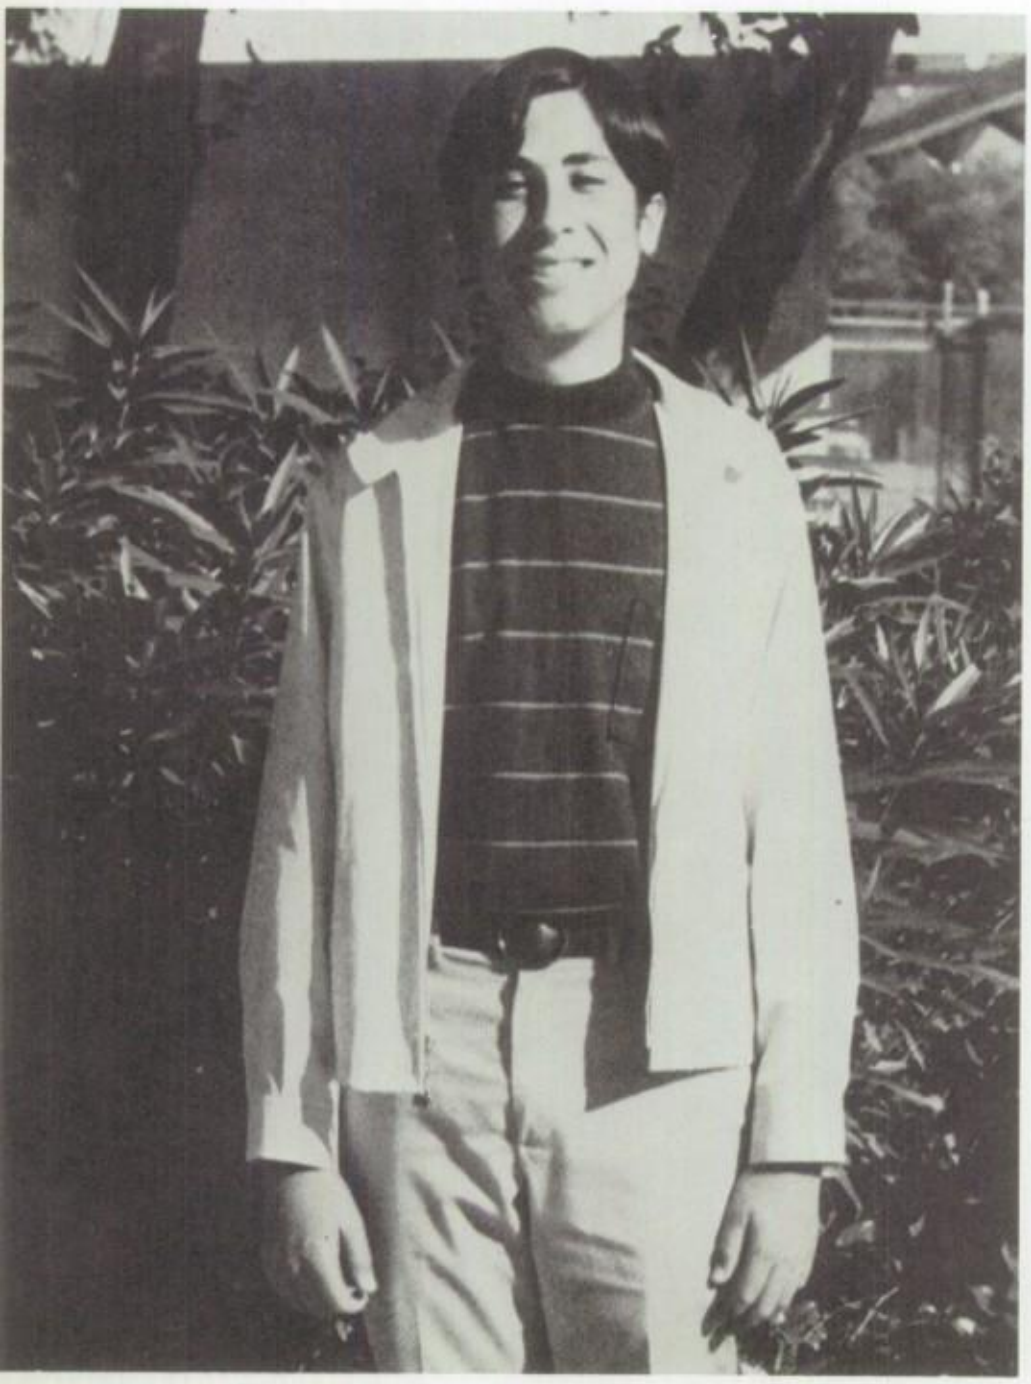
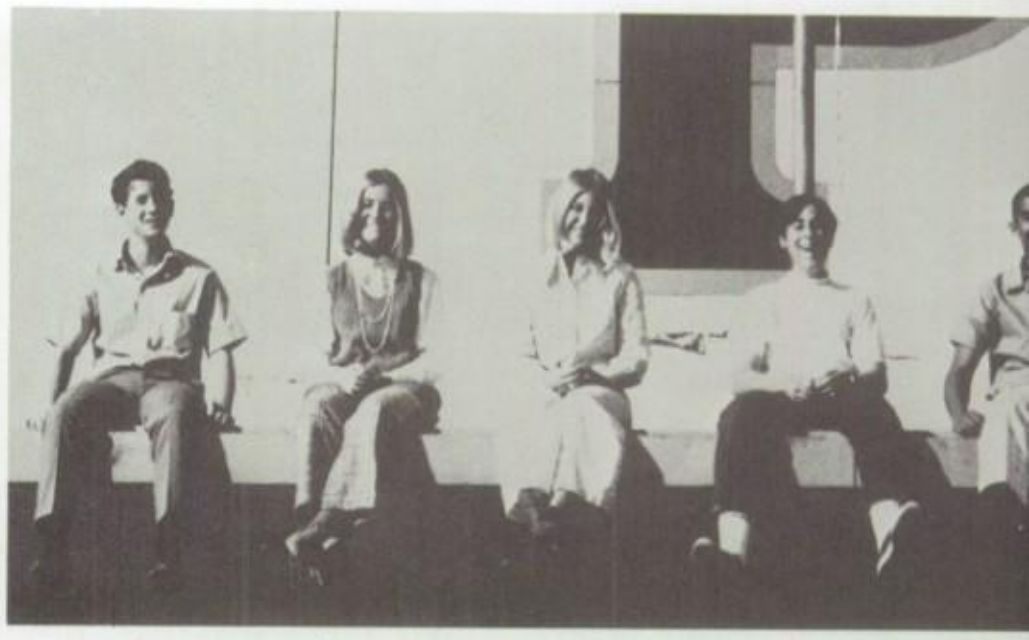
Joel Kaufman—President



As sophomore class president, I attempted to guide my class throughout the year. The class of '72 showed its willingness to work and its famous Pacific spirit often in 1969.

Joel Kaufman



Uniting in a common effort, the Sophomore Class organized their talents and raised money for the 1971 Junior-Senior Prom. Led by the seven officers, and aided by the sponsors (above), they undertook the responsibility with enthusiasm and were quite successful in their money-making projects. Car washes proved to be most profitable.

Assisting the sophomore class in their various projects was Mr. Herren. Working as one of the class sponsors, he donated valuable time and much needed advice. Mr. Herren was one of two sponsors, the other of whom was Miss Cereceres. These two members proved very helpful.

Interviewing Andrea Gross was Hi-Tide sophomore Terri Gonzolas. Among many other helpful sophomores she aided the editors and assistant-editors in their various and sometimes difficult tasks. Hi-Tide and Annual provided valuable experience for sophomores, juniors and seniors.

During their first year at Pacific High, sophomores discovered many ingenious ways of earning money for the Junior-Senior Prom. The most common and prosperous way of fund-raising was washing cars. Quite often sophomores could be seen sanitizing automobiles on a sunny afternoon. Another was bake sales. Sophomores captured customers at local shopping centers. Sophomores had a few other projects that were planned and discussed at meetings held in the evening here at school. With the aid of their sponsors, they learned responsibility and enjoyed the experience of working together. Not only the officers were active, but all of the sophomores.

Sophomores Worked To Gather News

Right: Several sophomores on Hi-Tide Staff were involved in planning future editions. They learned to work together and compare ideas for producing the best possible paper. Using journalistic methods, they improved their writing with each issue. Below: Sophomores on the Annual Staff cooperated with the editors while trying to meet deadlines. Since there were specific rules as to layouts, copy, and general organization of the annual, mistakes had to be corrected often. Sophomores who were involved in producing the 1970 annual, learned techniques which would benefit them as editors of future editions.

Trying out for Leadership was extremely popular among sophomore girls. The girls devoted many hours of practice after school and at home. The best and talented girls were selected to continue their devoted efforts. These girls became a part of the Leadership gym class. They continued their efforts throughout the semester. As the end of the school year grew nearer, hopes reached their peak. A few fortunate sophomore girls were chosen to rouse Pacific High spirit as cheerleaders, poms and flags.

Pictured below are Paula Pruitt, Lynn McPike, Dennis Crowell and Debbie Rosa. These sophomores and many others bade farewell to their first year at Pacific High. All our sophomores anxiously awaited the coming of their junior year while looking back over the events of their first year here. All sophomores are aware that the happiness and pride in Pacific High School is something not to be forgotten in the near future, but to be remembered always.

portunities for working together for a common purpose re provided by the many clubs and organizations found Pacific. The basis for productive achievements was oven to be a united effort. Some groups were devoted tirely to helping others, giving service to the community
d the school. Students also held social, educational, d recreational functions and participated in student dy activities. Patient attempts by concerned individuals sulted in greater understanding among all people.

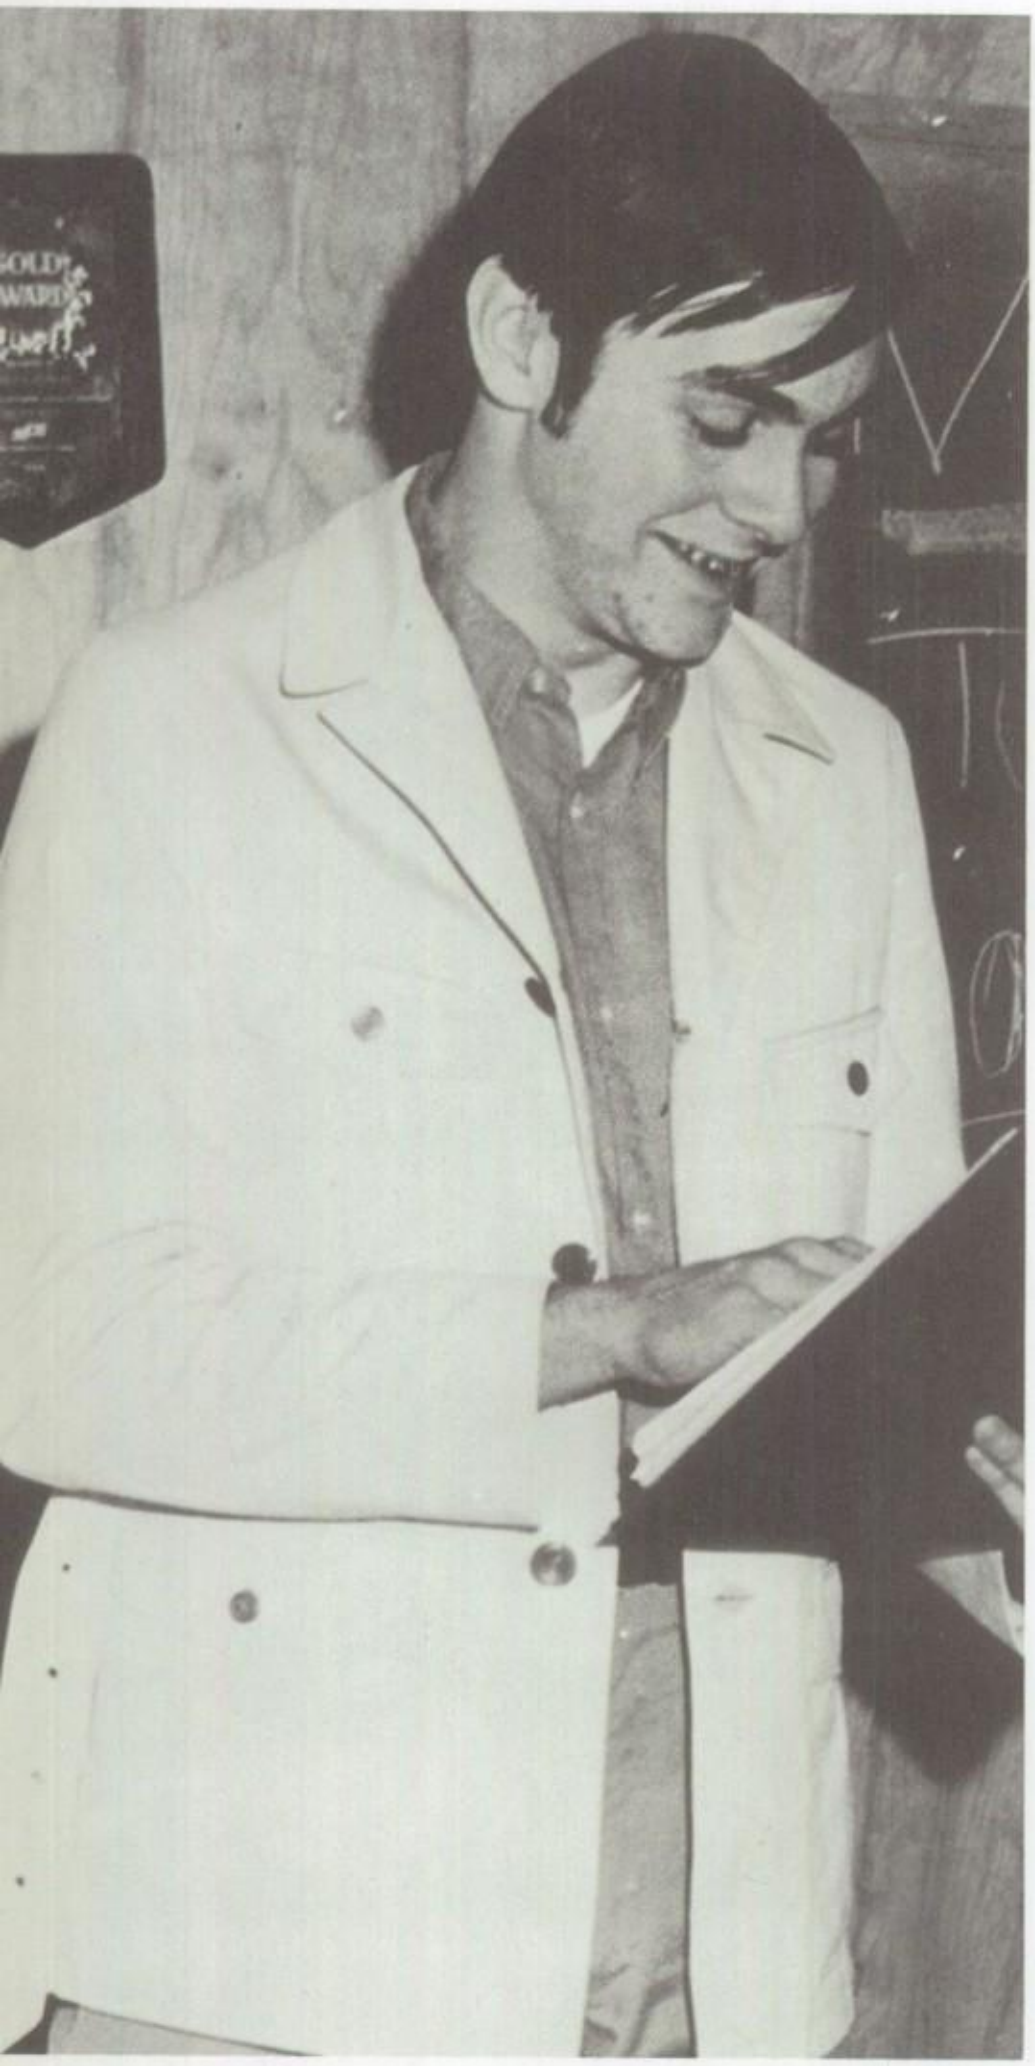
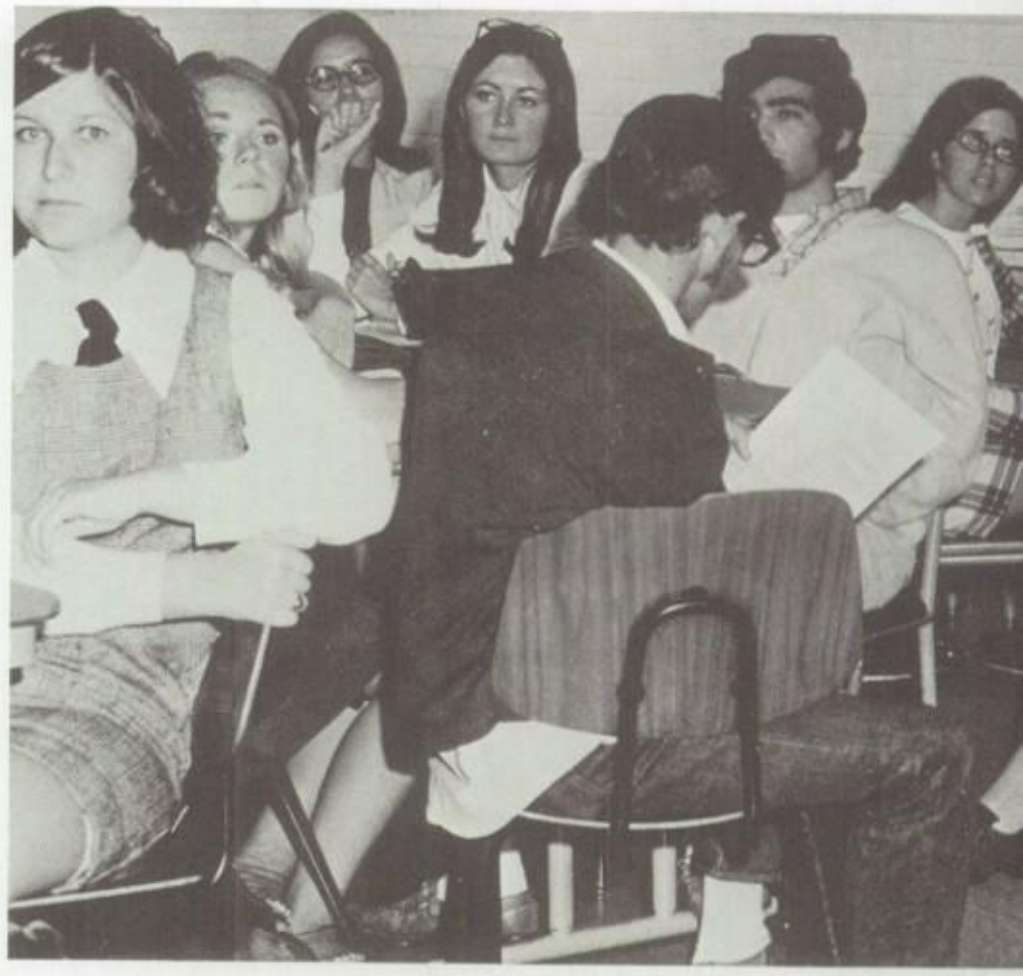
ORGANIZATIONS





Right: Acting as representative to Student Council for each club on campus was last year's I.C.C. president, Craig Scott. As a member of Student Council, Craig was responsible for relaying messages concerning the clubs to the presidents and also present each club's plans for approval by the Student Council.

Below: Discussing the agenda for the next meeting were the members of the board. Elected officers of I.C.C. were, left to right, Howard Cowlishaw; Vice President, Craig Scott; I.C.C. President, and Christi Jones; secretary. Working together, the board and members succeeded in fulfilling a successful year.

I. C. C. Was Successful In Improving Club Unity

cting as liaison to the Student Council, the Inter-Club ouncil was a crucial factor in promoting the welfare of lubs on Pacific's campus. Under the guidance of I.C.C. resident, Craig Scott, the council performed many duties ertaining to club activities. This past year a special effort as made to improve communication between clubs and tudent Council, and I.C.C. was successful in its endea- or. Club presidents and alternates served as I.C.C. repre- entatives, and discussed I.C.C. business at their club neetings. Increased interest and participation from mem- ers produced a prosperous year for Inter-Club Council.

bove: Listening attentively to he news of the day were mem- ers of the Inter-Club Council. lembership of the council con- sted of presidents and alter- ates from each club on Pacific's ampus. After attending the neetings, the president then ould relate any important mes- ages to members of his club.

Top right: Taking time out from his work as attendance counselor to act as sponsor to the Inter-Club Council was Mr. William Fox. Bottom right: Selling candy was one of club functions that had to be approved by the Inter-Club Council. Following tradition, Sobobans sold See's suckers and Lehis sold chocolate.

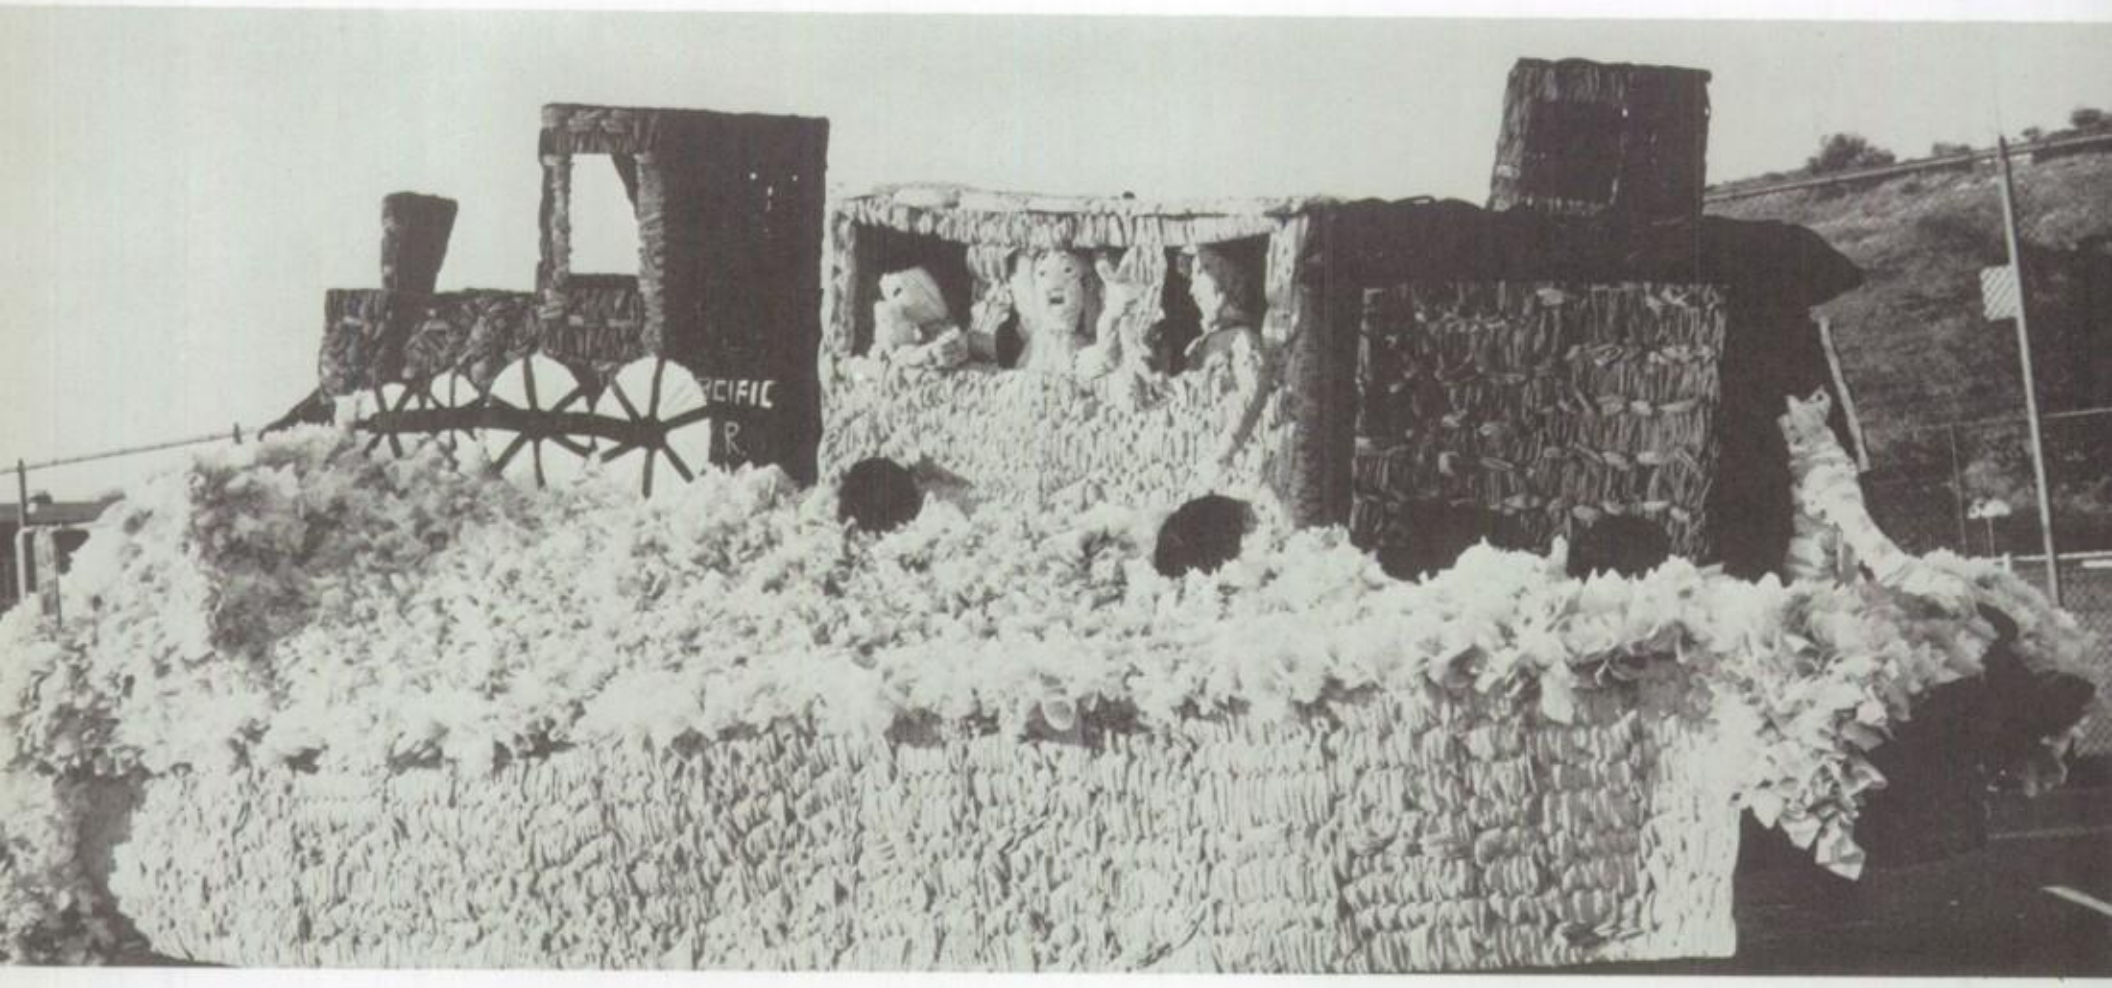
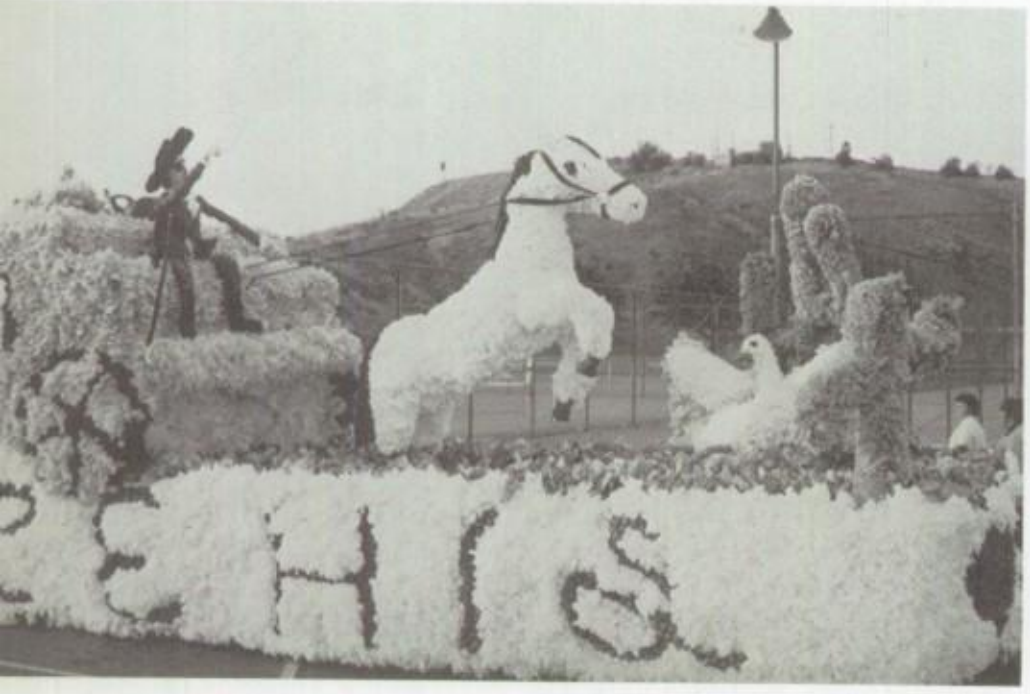
"California Bi-Centennial"; An Incentive For Creative Ideas





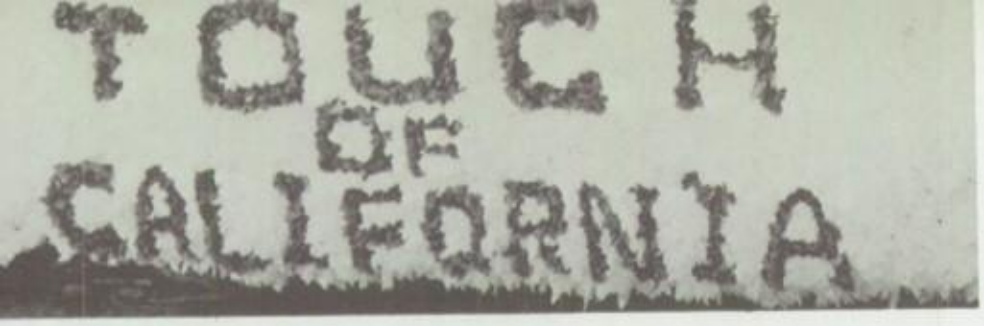
Top: Capturing the theme "California Bi-Centennial", The Pagette float was declared as the sweepstakes winner for the 1969 Football Homecoming. The members of the Pagettes chose the scene of a train loaded with passengers and headed west to represent the homecoming theme.

Above left: Representing the Lehis of Pacific High was the float depicting a stage coach and galloping horse. Under the hoofs of the mighty steed was a crushed eagle representing a victory for the pirate who was driving the coach. Lehis were awarded the first place trophy.

Above right: Accomplishing the honor of being chosen as second place winner in the homecoming competition was the float representing the members of the G.A.A. club on campus. Symbolizing the theme was a miner who was leading his heavily laden mule across the burning desert.

Right: (from top to bottom) Representing the five other clubs who entered in the 1969 Homecoming competition were floats from Mecha, Dantes, Rally, Zonta Z's, and the Pacific Band. Although these floats did not place in the finals, they aided in producing a great half-time.

HOMECOMING FLOATS



ompetition and rivalry were the main factors in the con-est for winning the Football Homecoming Sweepstakes.
close race came to an end during the half-time festivity hen Larry Stahlberg, Master of Ceremonies, announced ne three winners; second runner-up was the G.A.A. miner nd mule, first runner-up was the pirate driven stag coach epresenting Lehis, and the Pagette train took the Sweep-takes trophy. Inspiration for the floats was supplied y the chosen theme of "California In Its Bi-Centennial."

Top: Patiently applying the finishing touches to the caboose of the winning train were members of Pagettes. The club used a new technique of weaving the sides of the train instead of the usual stuffing. Their efforts proved profitable; Pagettes were the Sweepstakes winners for 1969.

Above: Working together to accomplish the special effects of their float were several members of Lehis. Many hours were spent twisting napkins, molding wire, putting the float together, and preparing it for the Homecoming competition. Lehis were awarded first-place Homecoming trophy.

Membership to Quill and Scroll was based on participation on Annual staff and the Hi-Tide.

Excelling academically, students who met the requirements joined the various honor clubs on campus. Petitioning was required for membership in all the honor clubs. National Honor Society and California Scholarship Federation honored students with high grade point averages. To become a member of N.H.S., a student had to acquire a 3.75 average as a sophomore, a 3.50 average as a junior, or a 3.25 average as a senior. To become a member of California Scholarship Federation, a student had to earn at least three A's out of four homework subjects on his semester report card. Balboa del Pacifico was for a select group of top Spanish scholars. Students on Pacificana and Hi-Tide staffs who had a great deal of journalism ability qualified to become members of Quill and Scroll.

HONOR CLUBS

Engaged in wrapping presents for the Salvation Army were members of Zonta Z's. The girls, left to right, Christine Caldwell, Cyndie Bauman, Sue Lopez, Gayle Van Ginkle, and Kathy Ferrar, worked hard to make their presents look beautiful. Throughout the year Zonta Z's gave time to community service.

Contributing countless service hours, the social service clubs at Pacific rendered their combined efforts in order to improve the school and the community in general. Mecha, the only co-ed service club on campus, was comprised of Mexican-Americans. Dantes and Lehis were both girl's clubs that dealt chiefly with school service. Kiwanis Demoiselles (KD's) was a community and school service club concerned with sending packages to GI's as a morale booster. Interact, Key Club, Pagettes, and KM's aided the community by ushering and selling concessions at the various Civic Light Opera productions and concerts coming to San Bernardino. The social service clubs reflected the spirit and good will of the students of Pacific High School.

Providing students an opportunity to seek and further new and old interests were many special interest clubs on Pacific's campus. Students interested in the German language were welcome to join the Burgermeister club. If the student was interested in sports, he was offered the chance to get involved in such clubs as Girl's Athletic Association, Ski Club, or Lettermen. Many clubs served as guidelines to particular careers. The Thespians club was designed to help anxious novice actors. Avid photographers could become entailed in the Photography Club. Students who were interested in careers in the field of radio or television announcing could join Radio Production. Besides offering clubs for vocational and career interests only, Pacific also had clubs for the interest of different races. Mexican-Americans found that they were represented on campus by the club, Mecha. Black students were also represented through the Take Care of Business Club. Both clubs sought to further relations among all students on the campus, regardless of race, origin, or creed. For those students concerned with the politics of the day, Veritas was successful in bringing together different views to be discussed at the regular evening meetings. Working together, the participants solved many problems and discovered peace and tranquility on campus.
